GRAND OPENING

THE NEW U.H.S.

Welcome to the new Urbana High School! The renovation, which cost 14 million dollars, has finally been completed and with it, a new era has dawned at U.H.S. The building, itself, which at one time was a fore runner in the use of gothic structure in public buildings, has been restored to its former beauty and upgraded in many essential areas that have enhanced every student's learning experience.

There have also been many new features added to the building, including a fully equipped athletic complex with two gyms, a weight/training room, coaching offices, an athletic directors office, a wrestling room, and spacious storage areas. Also, the cafeteria has

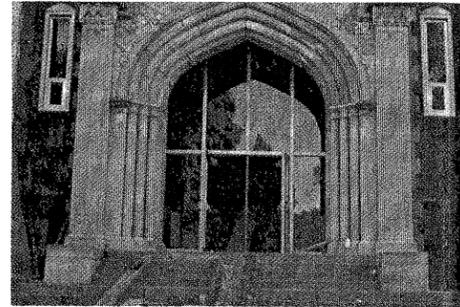

"The art of progress is to preserve order amid change and to preserve change amid order." Alfred North Whitehead been totally redone to include a skylight, a student commons area, and more comfortable accommodations for those who eat their lunches in school. All of the classrooms have also been fixed-up with everything from carpet to essential lab equipment, and provisions have been made for the special needs of each of the extra-curricular activity groups.

These changes, although totally exterior, reflected the inner change of spirit that has taken place within the student body as well. The beauty, comfort, and opportunities, offered by the improved facilities, complimented the "New Attitude" (theme for Homecoming) of the students, faculty, administration, and community. Everyone was excited about the changes. Once again, Tiger Pride roared in the halls of U.H.S. It was an exciting time for everyone.

GRAND ENTRANCE

Getting Started

It was 8:31 and students were still scurrying throughout the halls, trying to think of a legitimate excuse or even a good line, as to why they were late to class again. Although school had started 15 minutes later this year, students still found it hard to make it to class on time in the morning. This problem was much worse for those students who were into self-willed suffering, since they had decided to take a treacherous first hour class at 7:30. Things were certainly different this year, and it had taken the students awhile to get used to the new class, the new starting times, the new schedule, and of course, the new school.

The commencing of the school year was an exciting time, and the students, as well as the faculty at Urbana, had come to class anxious to get started. For the seniors, who were in total control, had the attitude that this was their year to shine, and overcome any obstacles that had previously prevented them from performing up to their highest abilities. The seniors had been through it all, and now it was their time to kick back and enjoy their last year of high school.

Although the Juniors had some experience in High School, they had worked hard to settle into the new building. They tried to set an example for the upcoming Freshmen and Sophomores by working hard. But they also knew how to have fun and exert their dominance on the underclassmen.

The Sophomores and the Freshmen were in the same boat together, because they were all new to the High School. The Sophomores however, had the luxury of not being the youngest class. They had welcomed the great changes at the High School and tried to blend in with the action at the U.H.S.

Coming from the Middle School, the Freshmen brought with them a lot of enthusiasm and few teachers. Many people were worried about the transition of the Freshmen into the High School, and especially the effect that the High School's atmosphere would have on them. Things went well from the start though, and many students felt that the addition of the Freshmen was good, in general. They thought that being in the High School, forced the Freshmen to mature faster, and that they had sparked a lot of enthusiasm that the upperclassmen had lost during the renovation.

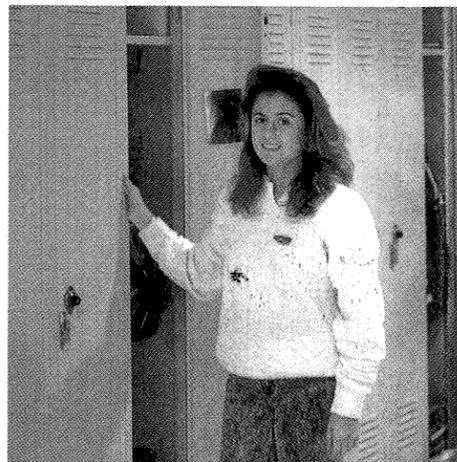

Overall, the start of school at the U.H.S. was a really stimulating time, and when the first day of classes rolled around, the students were anxious to face many challenges, hopeful for what the future had in store for them. The second day of classes was another story.

"This was the best High School that I had been to, but then again, it's the only High School that I have been to."

THE GRAND TOUR

Building Tiger Pride

This year things were a little more crowded in the bus barn as the freshmen class also join the action of float building. The overcrowding had inspired better competition this year, as every class had its members turn out in force to help build. This is the time of year when students who usually decide to stay home and "study" for the evening, go out and have a Grand Time with their friends at float building.

There, they are able to let loose and forget about all of the stress that has built up from school, etc. In fact, that was one of the "rare" times when student/teacher relationships were considered to be more pleasure than business since they were all striving for the same goal, neglecting the usual teacher "status" and the student "status," in other words a special kinship had grown between the two extremes.

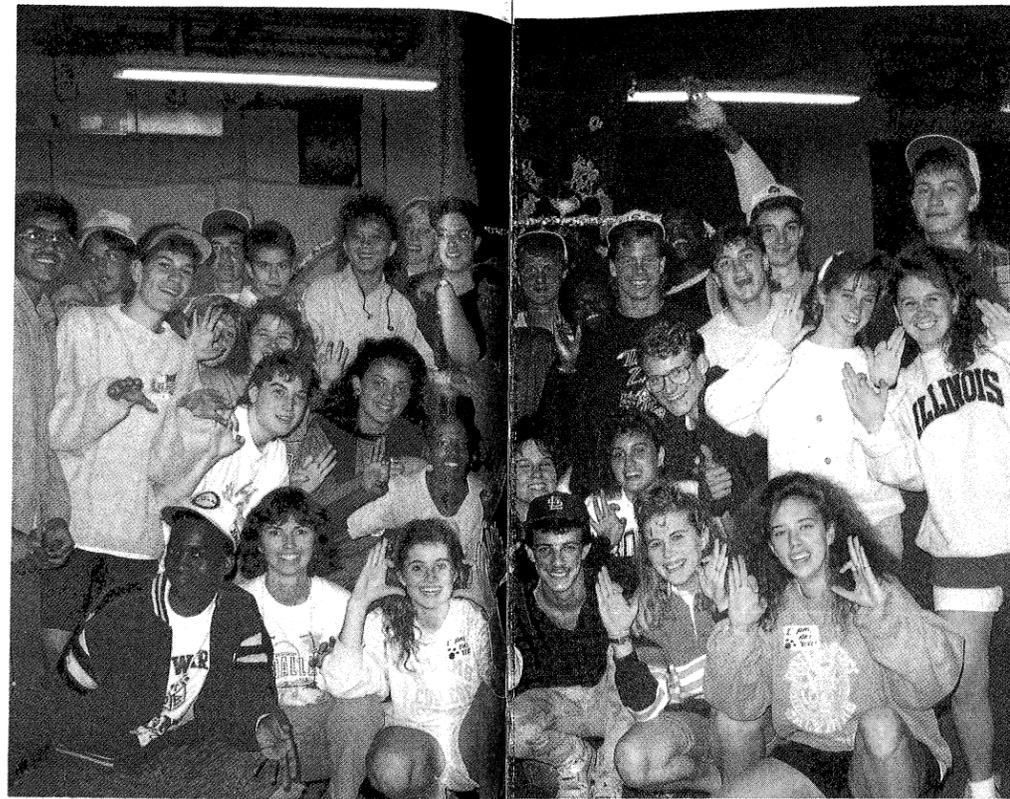

The participation showed, as the quality of the floats was better than in previous years, and the race for a winner was very close. The seniors were determined to finally finish a float this year, and they really had wanted to take the trophy for first, in the process. Things were really tight up until the end, but the seniors, with all of their experience, had pulled it out in the end. All the other classes showed really well, even though they lost, and they should be able to do even better next year. The Freshmen did not walk away from the weekend empty handed, as they has won float tear down and were given fifty dollars. When it was all said and done, the three nights at float building was a great time for getting together with friends, working hard, and consuming huge amounts of pizza. It was not only a time to get together with old friends, but it was also a time to form new friendships. Whether you were a senior or a freshmen, one's "rank" did not seem to matter, for a special bond had been created amongst the group of float builders, that being that they had shared the same goal; to have as much fun as they could possibly have during those three exciting days. As for the floats, they had turned out to be really vibrant and life-like, and everyone was proud of the work they did and proud of the school that the floats had represented.

"Cooperation was the key to the seniors dominating victory!"

Thy Tang

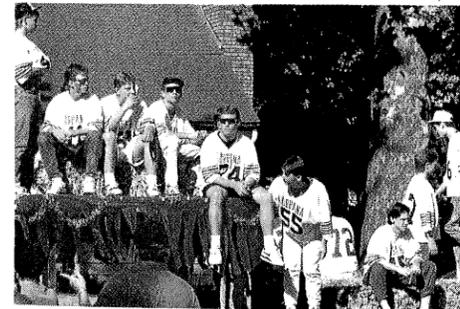

The Homecoming parade was also really exciting, as the number of entries were increased, and the number of people who had turned out to watch had also increased. Students in all clubs and organizations got vehicles to carry their members and were able to publicize their events and accomplishments. The football team used a hay rack, the Homecoming court used convertibles, and the Echo had used a Volkswagon covered with old newspapers. Whatever the mode of transportation, the study body was anxious to get involved, and those who were not in the parade had turned out to express their support for them. With the floats and all, the parade was a grand tour highlighting some of the best times that Urbana High School had to offer.

HOMECOMING '89

Tiger Pride was back on the prowl at Urbana High School, and this was never more evident than at the Homecoming Pep Assembly. Students were really riled up after the week's Homecoming events, and their enthusiasm had come to a peak at the rally. The cheerleaders worked long and hard to set up the afternoon's events and everyone got into the act, including the teachers who led the students body in an arousing cheer. Mr. Graham and the cheerleaders had started everything with a few announcements, concerning the success and support of the Urbana athletic teams, and then continued with a few inspiring cheers. Next, it was time for the introduction of the Homecoming court, followed by the announcement of the King and Queen.

since it was against cross team rival, Champaign Centennial.

By now, the crowds were going crazy, unlike in past years, when each class had a chance to show their stripes as the cheerleaders let them each do a cheer. A welcome addition to any cheering section, the Freshmen class showed that they were an important part of Urbana, by winning spirit shouting contest. In keeping with tradition, the pep assembly ended with the school fight song, and then it was off to Tiger Tailgreat!

This year Student Senate really out did themselves by putting on a Tiger Tailgreat that was bigger and better than ever before. Entries ranged from the Art Club's "Bar None" (which took first place in the club entry), To the National Honor Society's "Big 12 Wheel of Fortune."

In general, many more clubs participated than ever before;

there was food, music, activities, and overall, a great time for everyone involved.

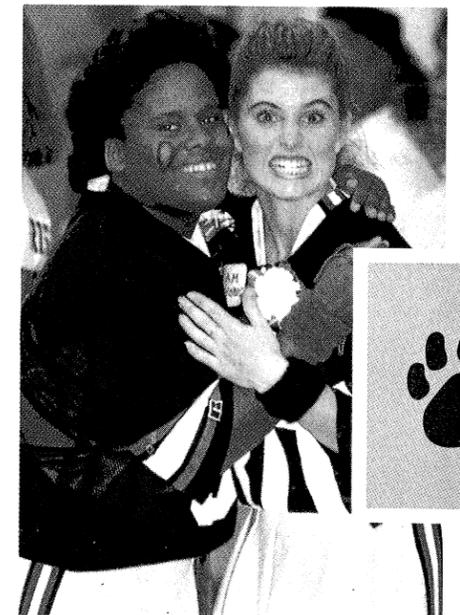

No matter what your taste or interest, Tiger Tailgreat had it all. Those who liked to shoot baskets or kick goals, found the basketball and soccer booths, those who wanted to dunk a cheerleader, found the dunk tank, those who wanted to eat, could buy Paglia's pizza, and those who wanted to rock'n'roll, found the live bands. Tailgreat was more than an event, it was an extravaganza! All in all, the pep assembly and Tailgreat were a grand performance, befitting the school and the student body, itself.

Homecoming Tradition

Everyone was really fired up about the big game between Urbana Centennial.

Not only was it Homecoming weekend, but it also was the start of the elusive twin city championship. Over 2,000 people had turned out in full force, including many alumni, to support the fierce Tigers and to get together with both old and new friends. Urbana had had an extremely rough season up until this point, and they really looked to get back on track with a crushing victory against Centennial. This just was not to be though, as the Tigers were unable to muster enough power to stop the Chargers running attack and to start their own drive.

From the kick-off the Chargers took control running the ball back near the 50 yard line. They soon jumped out to a 21 to nothing lead in the first quarter but the Tigers battled back in the second quarter, and their defense held the Chargers scoreless. The third quarter saw the Charger enlarge their lead with a few more touchdowns, but when the fourth quarter rolled around, the Tigers had mounted their attack. They took to the air to score their first touchdown from Scott Anderson to Justin Jett. They then rushed in the two point conversion to rack up the final points of the night. The final score was 42-8, and although everyone was disappointed, it did not dampen the Homecoming spirits, because it was such a hard fought game.

During the half-time festivities of the game, four new members were inducted into the Tiger Hall of Fame. John Gremer, who was a 1979 graduate, had participated in the following sports: football, as the quarterback safety; baseball, as the short stop; and basketball. Mike Dilley, who was a 1973 graduate, had participated in the following sports: football, basketball, and wrestling. Walt Franklin, who was a 1941 graduate, had participated in track, in which he had qualified for state in his senior year. He was the Big 12 Champ in the 100 and 220 meter dashes. The final inductee was L.C. Owens, a 1965 graduate, who had participated in football.

Rounding out the Homecoming festivities was the Homecoming dance. This year a D.J. and a light show was used as the seniors transformed the commons area into a top notch dance hall. The dance itself, was a huge success as hundreds of students packed into the commons to dance all night long.

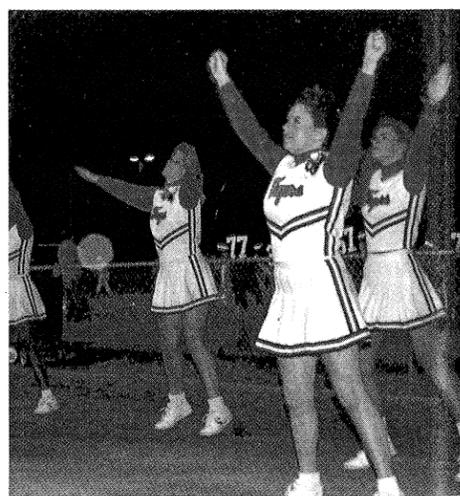

Everyone had a really good time, and they were all sorry to see the night come to an end. the dance was the perfect end to an exciting and fun filled Homecoming week that will be remembered by all for the many years to come. This was truly the best Homecoming ever.

GRAND CENTRAL STATION

Togetherness; How Sweet!

The bell sounds, and a unique and vibrant sub-culture springs to life within the halls of the U.H.S. For five short minutes, over 1,000 students crowd into the halls to talk, stretch, gather materials, and simply, to take a break. A sea of faces and moving bodies can be seen commuting from class to class, destination sometimes unknown, but none the less, determined to get there. As the students scurry about, making frequent and regular stops, jumbled roars of conversation can be heard everywhere. By glimpsing into the hallways of U.H.S. during passing time, you can get a true look at the character and spirit of the student body. Throughout the hallways, which are the catacombs of student life, you realize that Urbana is a school of unique individuals, who are as diverse in their character and actions, as in their dress. The hallways are just one area where this individuality is conducted throughout the school and eventually out into the community.

“Passing time and lunch time, are the best classes I have.”

After the long days ride, the last stop of the day for the students to really enjoy their free time in school, is by attending the after school activities.

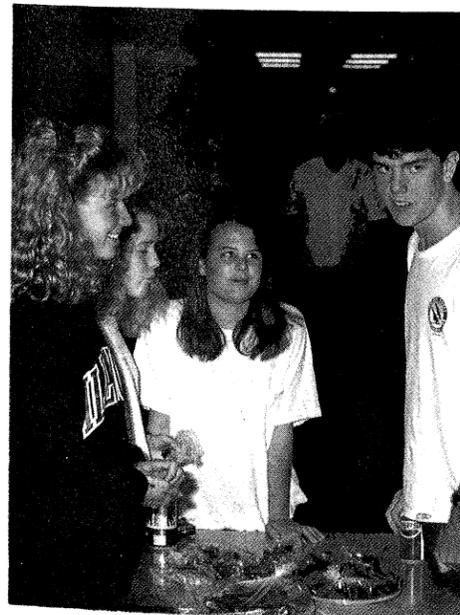

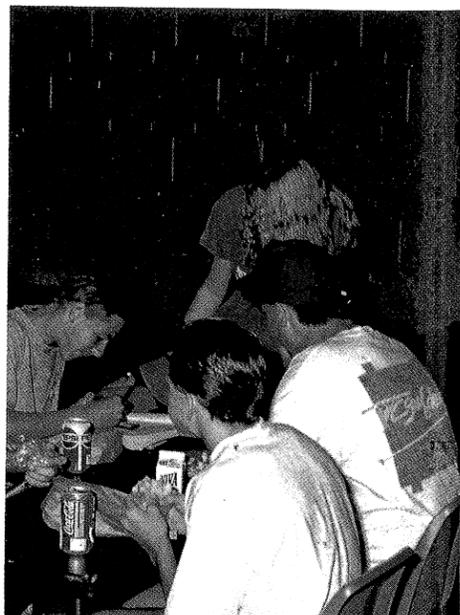

These are as numerous and as diverse as the students themselves, and they are free with the purchase of the day's ticket. Once they have completed their stop, they are then transported to their own homes, where they rest and await the next days exciting journey with a spark of anticipation.

Passing time is an intense five minutes, where enormous amounts of information is sent on down the lines and students scurry to meet other connections. Then this is all brought to an end as the bell rings, signaling the departure of the students on another educational mission. It is now that all of the chaotic bustling is brought to an abrupt end, and the students are all back to the grind stone of classroom work, waiting for the next chance at free time.

U.H.S. Students Excel

While enjoying themselves and excelling out of the classroom, the students at Urbana High School also had great success in the classroom. In fact, for what it was worth, on the average, Urbana High School had scored higher on College Standardized testing (ACT, SAT) than either of the Champaign high schools. Urbana had expanded its class schedule from six to seven classes this year, and it had opened up many possibilities for students to take more elective classes. In light of this fact, the high school offered a few new classes, like television production and honors seminar. For students, these were both welcome additions to the curriculum and had benefited many students. As always, though, if you did not find the classes you wanted, you could do an independent study or an executive internship outside of the general classroom structure. Eric Bailey felt that the independent study program "gave me a creative outlet to study in areas that interested me but were not offered by the school nor the classes."

In spite of the changes made in the curriculum and the scheduling, many students still felt that the number of required classes and credit demands, had inhibited their pursuit of a well rounded education. Frequently, students found themselves unable to take course work in the areas of art and music because of the extra requirements needed of the health classes. This was more of a problem for some than others, but the counseling department had worked hard to find solutions for these problems.

With the addition of many new teachers from the middle school and the reorganization of the different departments, the Urbana High School faculty had finally solidified. The teachers were just as excited about the start of the new year since the renovation was finally completed. Organization had arose out of the construction, and being able to locate the necessary teaching aids, as well as having adequate facilities to work with, were all cited as being primary contributors to the improvement of teaching at Urbana. Enough cannot be said for the way that the faculty had pulled together, the school pride that had arose, and the educational achievement that had also resulted.

The students themselves also deserved a lot of the credit for the educational improvement that the school showed. They also came to the first day of classes with a renovated attitude and a willingness to work. As a whole, the students at Urbana High School worked really hard, but they also partied hard, feeling that they had earned their free time.

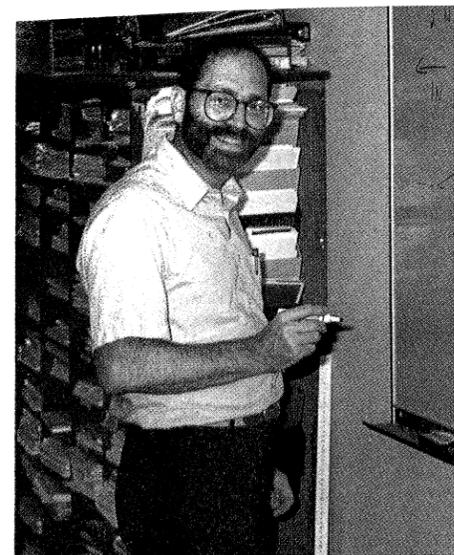

Admittedly, there were problems in the classroom this year, but, overall, the total educational environment was improved, as more students took control of their own future, and that was "simply grand."

Urbana High School offers a great diversity of activities to its students. There is a wide range of sports and clubs, each with a different emphasis.

For performers, UHS has many extra-curricular opportunities involving the performing arts such as: drama, thespians, madrigals, chorus, band, orchestra, and many more. For those who enjoy communications, Urbana offers speech activities, the Echo (UHS's very own newspaper), and the Video Club. Those students who enjoy academic pursuits can choose from an assortment of Honor Societies and other educationally oriented clubs. For the socially and politically conscious, Urbana offers various service organizations like Students for

World Improvement, Student Senate and Key Club. The list doesn't stop there, with such groups as the Art Club, MIA (Minorities In Action) which assists the community and sponsors the annual May Talent Show, and many more. This is by no means the extent of all the activities offered at UHS, but it is a good overview.

There's at least one activity for everyone and these activities not only broaden students' horizons, but also help them to find out who they are. Sports and clubs are just a few more pieces of the puzzle that fit in to the grand scheme of things.

Urbana High School has always been proud of its successful traditions in sports. UHS athletes constantly dedicate themselves to giving it their all! With the help from their respective coaches and supporters, several UHS teams made it to regional competition this year. These teams stirred up the proud Tiger spirit that made fans want to turn out in the grandstand in ever increasing numbers to support their team and help cheer them to victory. While some were winners, and others not as successful, they all learned a lot and came out the better for having tried.

In only four short years Urbana High School has seen its soccer team establish itself as a dominate threat and has gained the reputation as being one of the best teams in the area. This past season was no exception as the Tigers battled their way to an 18-3-1 record, placing second at the Sangamon State Soccer Classic, winning the Big 12 Conference, winning the IHSA regional, and winning the Twin-City championship for the third year in a row.

All of this success, though, did not come without a price. The team members worked very hard during the season as well as the off-season. Many players lifted weights, played with the Little Illini Soccer Club, played pick-up games at the U of I armory, and did a lot of jogging. Everyone was ready once the season started, and knowing their potential, the team practiced with an

Senior captain Adam Wilson felt that, "We won because we played together as one team, one unit, with one vision. All we wanted to do was work hard and play good, solid, aggressive, controlled soccer. We knew that if we did this, the wins would take care of themselves."

Lambardi (Coach Blackman)

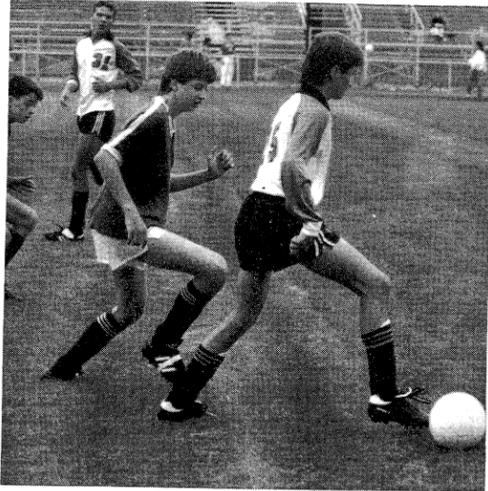

Ivan Medanic, another Senior captain said, "This year's team beat some of the toughest teams in the state. We could've gone all the way." This year was centered around a very strong defense that gave plenty of time for the offense to score. The Urbana soccer team played as a team, and as a result, they won.

Varsity Plagued with Frustration

S. Anderson goes long.

An undersized Varsity football team experienced a tough season this year. After a rousing season opener win, the Tigers struggled through eight more games which all ended in defeat.

This team found they did not have the size or more importantly, the mental intensity to compete well in the Big 12. Coach Wayne Mammen was quoted as saying that the team just didn't have the "killer instinct" to pull off wins.

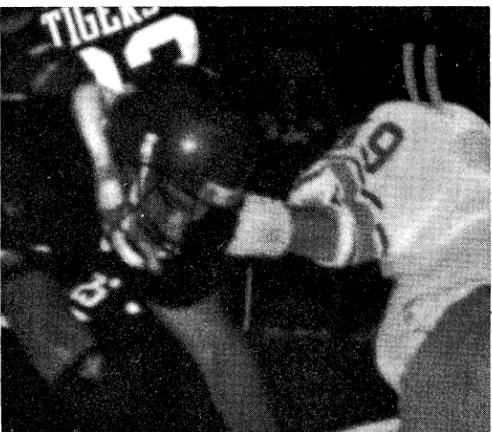

Several juniors contributed greatly to the team, despite its record. Two of these were Vashone Russell and Josh Shelmadine. Russell began his season with 224 yards rushing against Eisenhower in the season opener.

His progress was slowed during the rest of the season as other teams learned from Eisenhower's mistakes. He still had over 400 yards r

Urbana's huddled masses

S. Waaler warms up.

Despite the frustration of the Varsity football team this year, a stupendous 8 and 1 record belonged to the sophomore Tigers. Game after game was won by these "bad boys", who enjoyed mutilating and humiliating the other team. Disgruntled varsity players could be heard muttering about "luck" under their breath, but the sophomores did not really need luck to better the Varsity's dismal 1-8 record.

"This team had all of the necessary tools to be successful," was coach Krumweide's comment on his very successful team. The new sophomore Tigers successfully managed to hammer their way to an 8-0 record with one game left in the season, Big 12 rival Bloomington. The Purple Raiders also were 8-0 and looking to finish undefeated for the season. As it turned out they were too intense for the sophomore Tigers. Even though players were upset, fans and peers applauded these "Super Sophomores" for giving Urbana its most successful football team for the 1989 season. They

The freshmen football team didn't have much experience or natural talent to depend on for a winning season. Instead they relied on their hard work, enthusiasm, and ability to pull together as a team to get them through the season. Although they weren't as successful as they wanted to be, they never quit fighting. As was demonstrated in the game that went into triple overtime which the Tigers ended up winning. Striving To Get Par

With the loss of Brian Faulkner and Waqor Ahmad from a year ago, the Urbana High Golf team had a rebuilding year with returning seniors Eric Bailey, Jeremy Kaufman, Daniel Larson, Brant Muncaster, and junior Brian Webber. The team was faced with a losing record, but the surprise of freshmen Loren Massey, Brian Dupree, Charles Heisner, and Matt Hopkins play was unexpected by coach Sam Wright. Like many years past, the golf team held its home matches at the Urbana Country Club and also traveled to several tournaments in Bloomington and Rantoul. The players were also challenged in competitive play against some of the best players in the state at Big 12 and Regionals.

The highlight of the year was an upset victory over Danville-Schlarman, edging them out by several strokes. Also, Charles Heisner's low score of 85 for the team at Big 12 ranked the team in the top 10.

Golf is a game that may not involve brute strength, but it does require perfect technique and an excellent mental strength stability, which many of the younger teammates have several years to learn. All in all, coach Wright is extremely excited about the returning team.

Distance Running Animals

T. Trimble leads the pack.

Running to the edge and beyond.

Nonrunners can't seem to understand the "Pain is our friend" logo worn by runners at Urbana on their shirts. Cross country is not for the meek. It takes a strong mind to make the body a slave and drive it to its limits. Pain is well known among these animals.

Boys coach Jim Acklin made these comments about the sport: "You have to be able to maintain a fast pace over a long distance. Sixty percent of what should go into a race is pure leg speed. Only forty percent is endurance."

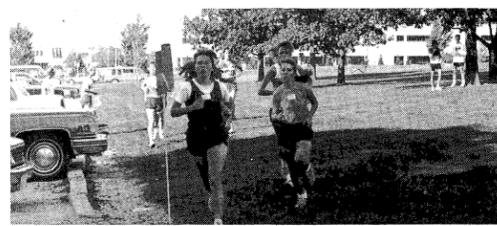

Returning seniors Tom Trimble and John Connor led the boys team for most of the season. Junior Aaron Miller, senior Andrew "Squid" Palmore, and freshman Kent Abbot were valuable additions to the squad.

"The very essence of cross country is speed over distance." — James Acklin

Trimble wrapped up his high school career with a commendable 16th place finish at sectionals. Trimble also honored Urbana by taking first at the Twin Cities meet for the second year in a row.

Returning for the girls were juniors Lauren Douglas and Anna Fox, and seniors Tiffany Osterbur and Leslie Martin. Joining the team were freshmen Jenny Moluf and sophomores Sophie Darrigues, Natasha Ritsma, and Latisha Beuchere.

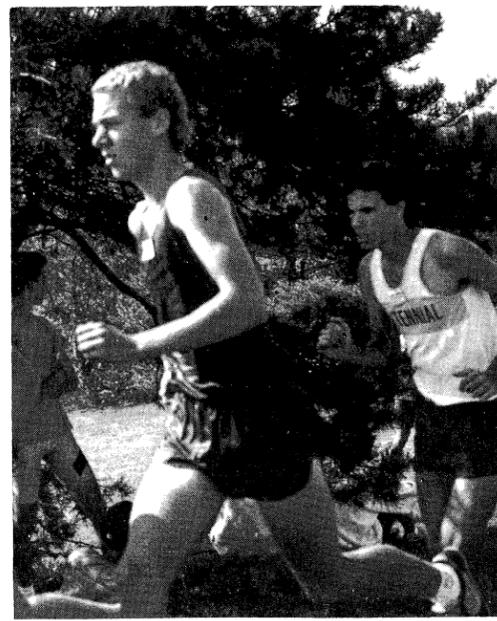

The girls are looking forward to next year. They are only losing two seniors and have tremendous talent coming up.

Girls Getting Into the Swing of Things

"BALLS. We need balls!" That call could be heard throughout the girl's tennis season. Despite all the setbacks (no balls, bees down their shirts and up their skirts, 30 degree temperatures, rain, injuries, and no one knowing exactly what was going on), the team had a surprisingly successful season. The dual meet record was 6-5, with three of those being 9-0 wins. The varsity line-up was this:

#1 was Jr. Tammy Cohen, #2 was Sr. Elizabeth Lim, #3 was Sr. Jennifer Waaler, #4 was Sr. Shelly Sechrest, #5 was Fresh. Sidney McClain, and #6 (alternating) was Jr. Clare Stacey and Soph. Akemi Graves. Included in the area Honor Roll were the #1,

#2, #3, and #5 players. The doubles line-up was this: #1 was Elizabeth Lim and Jennifer Waaler, #2 was Tammy Cohen, and #3 (alternating) was Dawn Hull and Clare Stacey, and Akemi Graves and Shelly Sechrest.

"Please, no more tennis aerobics!"
— Sidney McClain

The girls tennis team, with few exceptions, had enjoyed playing casually and relaxing SERIOUSLY. So how did this relatively young team come away with wins? The team share's its secrets. Sidney McClain — "I learned it's easier to win when you don't concentrate." Elizabeth Lim — "Never take anything too seriously." Clare Stacey — "I played lower than I could have." Tammy Cohen — "The promise of Dairy Queen when we were finished, kept me going.

The boys tennis team showed a lot of improvement in 1989 and had presented hope for an even better 1990 season. What caused it? Some said it was an overall change of attitude. Others had said that it was Coach Fred Schrupf's rigorous schedule of mental imagining. For whatever reason, the team had improved on a previous record, to have a winning season.

The Tigers were led in singles by Eben Gillette, Mark Swanson, and Adam Rak, Phil Beth, Rich Alster, and Eric Schlorff had completed the top six for most of the successful season.

The guys had surprised themselves with an amazing second place finish at sectionals, with the doubles team duo of Adam Rak and Mark Swanson finishing third overall. They were extremely pleased to have been given the chance to redeem themselves, for they knew that they had the ability to play at that level.

The second place finish at sectionals was not the only surprise of the season, though.

The Tigers had avenged a five year "stranglehold" held on them by the Country Club boys of Centennial, by beating them twice during the season.

With all of the players returning, and with the addition of some talented underclassmen, the boys tennis team is looking forward to an even more successful and exciting season in 1990.

H. Hewkin dives for the save.

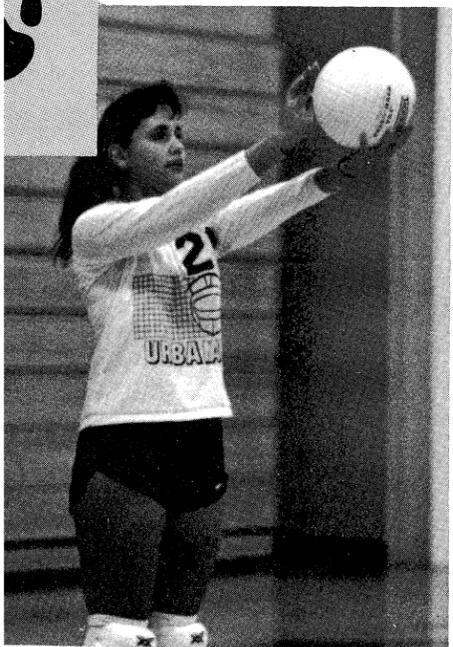

Other more humorous moments included the whole team playing "steam roller" at Eisenhower, and Mrs. Bantz's imitations of the players at freshmen initiation night. Tigers when led by senior Lori Thomas, were on a winning track. Unfortunately, she severely sprained her ankle in the first match of the year and was forced to sit out part of her season. The Tigers were also led by junior captain Hilary Hewkin, All-Conference Honorable Mention player, setter Steph Gerriets, middle blocker Jennifer Mabry, hitters Amanda Wiziecki, Kim Buckert, and Liz Whippo.

With all of the young players improving throughout the year, gaining experience, and becoming comfortable playing together, the end of the season started to look up for the team. With all but one starter returning and a new determination to win, the Tigers hope to have a great season next year.

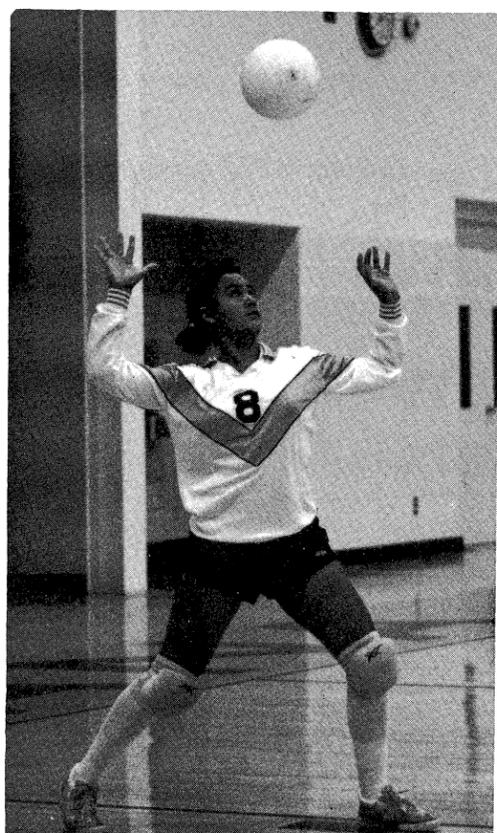

"Next year should be a banner year for Urbana volleyball." — Coach Bantz

The Varsity Volleyball team doubled the number of wins from last season! Their final record was 2-14, but the team improved tremendously and took huge steps toward having a winning season. With the loss of only one senior, the Tigers are sure to show even greater progress next year." Through hard work and dedication next year should be a promising one for Urbana Volleyball.

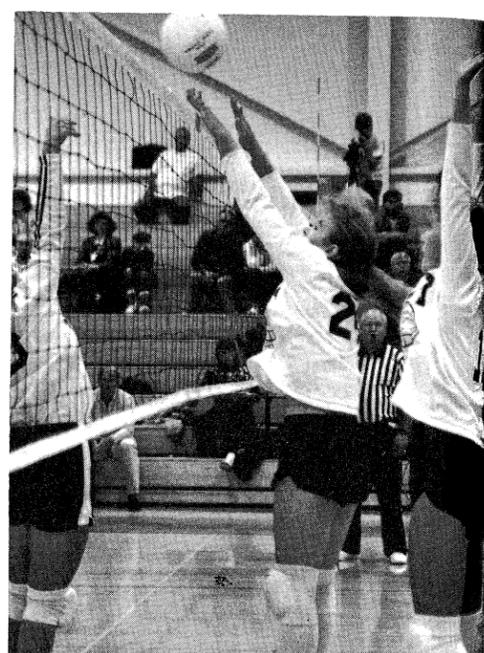

The Tigers' two wins came against non-conference foes Paxton and Monticello. The Tigers' two best matches came against regional champion Central and the regional match against the Danville Vikings. They were spurred on by the biggest and loudest crowd of the season. With the same kind of fan support, the team was glad to treat the fans to more matches of that excitement level!

Girls Keep Their Heads Above Water

Despite the fact that Urbana High School has no swimming pool, there actually is a girls swim team. Without this necessary facility, they were dependent on the University of Illinois, who had graciously let them use the pool located in Huff gymnasium. The girls were able to practice weekdays after school, and in the early morning Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

"We expect an even better season next year." — Ayshe Sozen

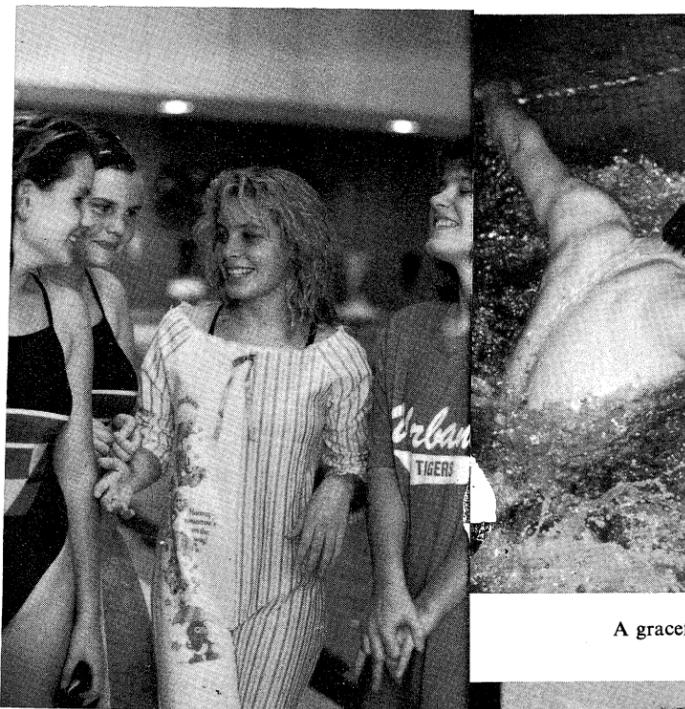

The only major drawback about using this pool, was that there were no diving boards and because no one could practice diving, they were always at a disadvantage at swim meets.

However, despite the inconvenience, the girls were able to practice. In the end, it had all payed off for the Urbana girls swim team had improved their record from the previous year's, and had finished their season sixth overall in the Big 12 conference meet. Coach Patti DeForrest was quite optimistic for next year, "I think we will see a much improved team next year!" she had praised the efforts of all of last year's swimmers, and cited Jaci Connelly, Sorcha Wool, and Theresa Hummes are having made outstanding contributions towards the team's good finish. The girls are looking forward to a great season next year.

A Stroke of Grace

A graceful swim . . .

It was never easy. Ask anyone on the team and you will get that answer about swimming. Workouts were not for the meek; the few that were meek had not come back after their first few practices. That left only a handful of dedicated swimmers on the traveling Urbana swim team. However, it didn't really matter since the team always managed to get the job done.

Once again this year, the team was stuck without a home pool. Despite this hardship, the team fared well. The first few meets were undertaken without divers. But the problem was soon solved by the arrival of Colin Milton and Chris Adams, two of the six seniors on the team, who agreed to dive for Urbana. "The divers really helped us out a lot," said second year coach and spiritual leader, Patti DeForrest. "They kept the team from starting out at a disadvantage." Urbana won meets against Danville and Normal Community, posting wide victory margins in those meets.

"We swam through a tough year!" — Joel Gebauer

The team will have to deal with the loss of six members next year. They will lose the entire diving squad, and four year veterans, John Connor, Joel Gebauer, Jon Moluf, and Todd Peters. Hopefully though, more students will become involved with swimming, so that the upcoming years will be promising for the Urbana High School Boy's swim team.

W. Utley asserts himself on the rebound

The night before the Mattoon game the Tigers basketball team carefully reviewed game strategy. As the coach talked, the players listened intently and concentrated on the game at hand. The basketball team worked as one body putting out their best effort as a team. The following night, they put their plans into practice and beat Mattoon, the number one team in the division, and proved that the Tigers were a definite threat on the court.

The Tigers played a very team oriented game which added to the strength of the team. Their strength was evident in the way the team stuck together. "All of our players are the best," said Chad Harper. This all-for-one attitude helped the Tigers to win over half of their games this season.

The Tigers basketball team practiced very hard not on just one thing, but in all areas of their game. This made the Tigers a very fundamentally sound team. This past season, the game that the Tigers played was against Decatur Eisenhower, because the whole team busied themselves with shots from all over the perimeter while also dominating the boards.

Behind every good team, there is a great coach and Preston Williams filled that tradition by coaching the Tigers for several years with pride and care. Urbana was very fortunate to have a knowledgeable coach at their school. Also on the sidelines for the Tigers was Assistant Coach Brady Smith, the offensive coordinator, "without him we couldn't score," remarked one team member.

If you were looking for Tiger Pride, it could be found in abundance with the Tiger's basketball team. The games were really action packed and full of excitement for all the loyal Tiger fans that attended.

Over all, the Tigers had a very good season, with strong offensive play, a tight defense, and a great coaching staff. The Tigers continued the tradition of having a powerful basketball team; which will be remembered many years from now.

Hard Luck Heroes

The Wright Stuff

Jordan!

Our very own sophomore Tigers exploded into the season with a decisive suppression of Kankakee. Sadly, from that point on, they struggled with the rest of the schedule. They suffered close defeats against Big Twelve superpowers Danville, Rantoul, and Decatur Eisenhower.

Sophomore Craig Lemons had these comments about the team: "I felt the talent was there but we couldn't seem to pull it all together for the wins. We were usually right in the game until the third quarter or so, but when it came down to the line, we would choke."

Taylor expressed his views, "Unity . . . team unity. That's the key word, son. Unity. No, not Unity High School . . . Urbana Unity . . . team focus. But we didn't have it. We needed it, but we just didn't have it. Unity, son."

But Gabe Rushing felt differently, "I thought that we worked hard and improved as a team over the course of the season."

Most of these hoopsters saw the season as a difficult experience, but all look forward to next year.

The freshmen team showed great progress under the coaching of Sam Wright. At the start of the season, they had very few skills as a team but, by the close, ultimately complimented each other with cooperative defense and offense.

Wright had these comments about competition at the freshman level: "At this stage the main concern is to develop a strong commitment to basketball and learn to utilize the basic skills of the sport. At this level, records and personal statistics are not emphasized, since we are dealing with only the basics."

The freshmen had a lot of talent in their ranks, and three or four of them played at the sophomore level. Jay Anderson, one of those mentioned, said, "I feel more of a commitment to the freshman team because I want to improve as a team, together. We will have to work together next year, so I think we should practice most at being a team."

In practice, the Tigers worked hardest on defense, especially man-to-man. By the end of the season it was their strongest attribute. All of these hard working individuals hope to carry their skills and talent to a higher level next year.

Lady Tigers Fight to Victory

Looking to the Future

H. Hewkin looks for an opening.

With three seconds remaining, the score was tied at sixty-four all and the awesome Lady Tigers prepared to inbound the ball against the powerful and swift gals from Bloomington. Nervous tension ran through the gym as Hilary Hewkin made a fast break. Then the ball came into the hands of Laura Sellers. She set herself for the shot as the tension mounted and apprehension ran through the air. Can she do it? Can she win the game for the Lady Tigers? She released the shot with finesse of an NBA crackshot. The ball rolled around the rim and the crowd was on their feet . . . It's good! The crowd was overwhelmed with enthusiasm and excitement. The Lady Tigers have won another hard fought victory!

The girls of Urbana never really beat Bloomington like that, but they did have some well earned victories. The Lady Tigers demolished crosstown rival Central with a shocking score of 66-37. This was a truly astounding victory that sent the Central Maroons home with their heads hanging.

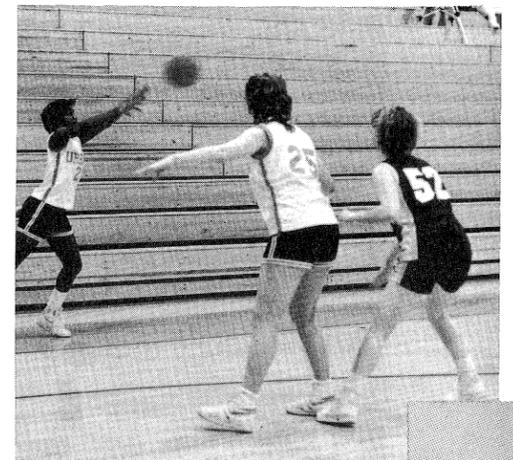

Holding Central to just thirty seven points was not just hard work on the part of these ladies, but also a spirited devotion and an iron will bent on achieving success. They play to win! The Lady Tigers exhibit all the strength and agility necessary to make them a force to be reckoned with in the Big 12 Conference.

Hilary Hewkin and Laura Sellers led the team throughout the season. Liz Muller, Kristy Gilliam, Laura Sellers, and Tyonna Peat also started for the Lady Tigers, and all contributed to the total team effort. Sophomore Liz Muller, expressed her feelings about the team's progress and dedication. "The team has shown a lot of improvement. We know how to work well as a team and especially how to work hard defensively."

The year was filled with both hope and frustration, but with all of the talented Lady Tigers returning next year, these girls have high expectations for a winning season. Under Coach Yarber's direction, great things are expected from the Lady Tigers in the future. The Lady Tigers personify the spirit of hard work, dedication, and a commitment to excellence that truly represents athletics at Urbana High School.

Matmen Grapple Another Season

And the winner is ... Abbott

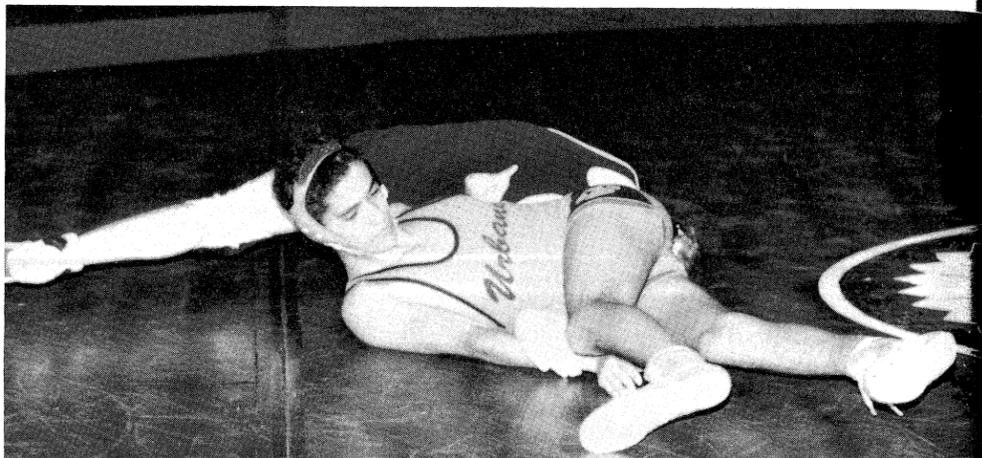

The Urbana High School wrestling team had yet another successful year with coaches Mammen and Blackman at the reigns. The grapplers had a 15-8 dual meet record for the 1990 season. They collected their 9th straight Twin-City Championship and won the Class A Regionals title for the 8th time in a row.

The team's success was due to many outstanding individuals who gave their all when they were on the mat. Leading the way for the team was junior Brian Madsen (33-9), sophomore Ryan Birt (28-10-1), and senior co-captain Jarrad Davenport (25-13).

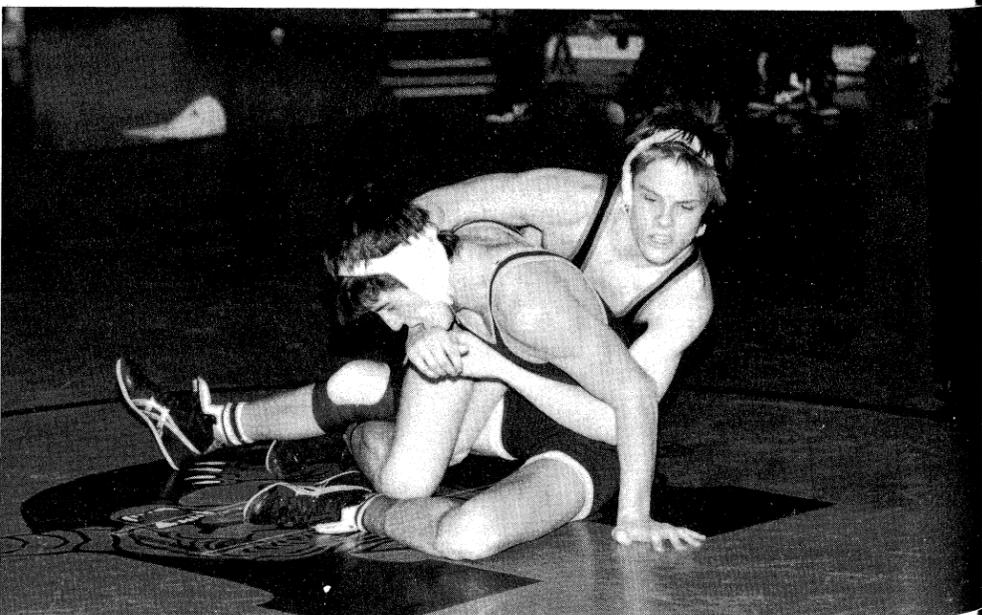

Birt states, "Considering all the difficulties and injuries the team faced this year, we showed an extreme amount of dedication and desire to win." The 1st Team News Gazer Honor Roll Meet consisted of junior Brian Madsen, sophomore Ryan Birt, and senior Mike Stephens.

Co-Captain Jason Campbell expressed his opinion on the Tigers' 19th consecutive winning season, "UHS wrestling is based upon winning and this year was no exception."

The Tiger wrestlers were not only winning this year, they were showing great strength pinning their foes. The team grappled their way to 115 total pins on the season, with Mike Stephens recording the quickest pin of the year at 22 seconds. Ryan Birt led the team with 29 reversals, and senior co-captain Mark Huls had the most takedowns at 46.

On a darker note there were some injuries that put a damper on the season at times. Sophomore Brian Hefley and senior Mark Huls missed a great deal of mat time due to their injuries. A broken arm ended Jason Campbell's season on a 17-10-1 record.

Coach Mammen completed his last season as the UHS coach, and kept in check with the impressive UHS wrestling tradition compiling a 94-73-4 record. In his career he has won the Twin-City Championship 17 times, regionals 7 times, and conference 5 times. Despite Coach Mammen's departure, junior Brian Madsen states, "The past twenty years has been a tradition of excellence, and will continue for many years to come."

Girls' Team Back On Track

The 1989 Girls' Track team was sparse, but everyone put forth their best effort. Track is a lot more than just running around in a circle. It is hard work, discipline and dedication. Team members encourage each other "to go that extra mile" while striving to meet their own goals.

The girls had a rather good year even though the size of their team prevented them from participating in all the events of each race. The girls' 800 medley consisting of Angie Laye, Danielle Riddle, Stephanie McNeal, and Jennifer Waaler generally placed well in meets. Despite a knee injury early in the season, junior Lauren Douglas won the 3200 meter

(2 mile) in the Champaign-Urbana News Gazette Honor Roll meet. Also, Tammy Splitstoesser had an exceptionally good year as a Freshman. Tammy, who throws the discus, but focuses on shotput, looks very promising for next year.

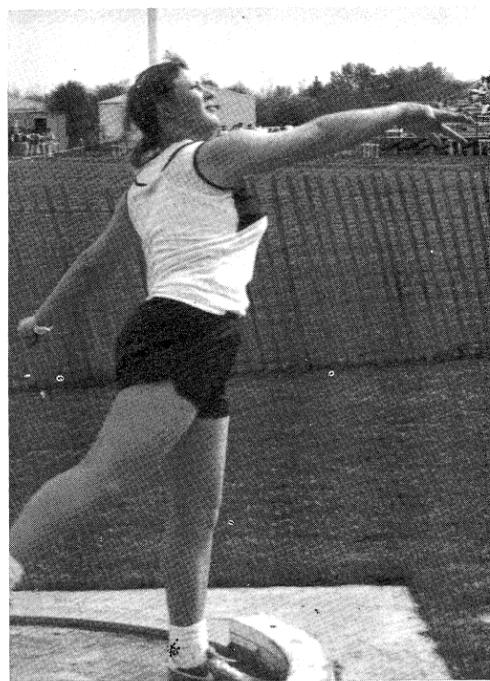

The Girls' Track team coach for 1989 was Harold Dean who was assisted by Judi Gross. They assisted in the training of the long and short distance runners. Stan Summers helped the girls in field events. Track brings together athletes who have different skills. The girls can choose to run short or long distance, throw discus or shotput, hurdle, high jump, or long jump. Track brings together all these events into one sport.

Led by an outstanding core of seniors, the '89 Tiger track team fared better than in past years, finishing the season with many personal bests and one state champion. Doug Phebus went all the way to the top with a discus throw that won state.

Terry Johnson was not able to compete at the state meet due to a leg injury just prior to regionals. "The Lord of Leap" had set a school record jump of 24'7" previous to the state series. Had he been healthy there is no doubt that he would have improved on his fourth place performance the previous year.

Despite a disappointing meet record, the Tigers had many brilliant individual efforts. Tom Trimble took away the first place trophy in the Charger relays with a 9:55 two mile. Brady Montz and Chris Plummer finished out their senior years with strong seasons, and the two mile relay made up of the underclassmen placed fifth at regionals. They and many others qualified for the News Gazette Honor Roll meet which was held to pit the toughest class A and class AA individuals against each other.

The Tigers are looking forward to a more successful season in '90 with the return of a strong field of runners from last year and an anticipated addition of some new runners with cross-country experience.

Striking Out the Competition

When the sunny days of spring arrive, it is time for our national pastime. That's right — baseball. Once again, we will hear the satisfying crack of a well hit ball and the swoosh of a runner sliding into home.

Baseball is fun, alright, but for the Tigers in 1989 it was a painful season. The team was young and inexperienced and had to learn some hard lessons by taking some tough defeats. They were led by the pitching of junior Todd Fryer and sophomore Josh Kelso. Hard-hitting seniors Rodney Sullivan, Kevin Fryer and Mike McKee, led the team's offense along with juniors Chad Patton, Scott Anderson and Todd Short, and sophomores, Josh Kelso and Josh Shelmadine.

Despite the tragic losses, the Tigers also enjoyed several glorious victories. The first came in the second game of a double-header against Stephen-Decatur. From that point on, the Tigers were on fire. They went on a five game winning streak that included victories over undefeated Mattoon and a 3-2 suppression of crosstown rival Central. Season highlights also included a split double-header against a tough Charleston team in Charleston.

Tiger coach, Preston Williams was in charge of rebuilding the Tigers in '89. Under his guidance, the team hopes for a stronger season in '90.

With a record of 7-16, the Urbana Tigers Varsity League had a very good season. With only nine players on the team: Jaci, Christie, Laura, Hillary, Kelly, Stephanie, Shelly, Lori, and Amy, the girls were forced to work extremely hard. The girls had worked on individual performances, but most importantly they had worked hard on being a team.

There were several outstanding players on the Varsity team. These had included Hillary Hewkin, Jaci Connelley, Kelly Chromek, and Laura Sellers. Hillary Hewkin was a very strong catcher with a batting average of .258. Jaci Connelly had seventy-two strikeouts last season, and was also a dependable player at the bat. Kelly Chromek was the best hitter in the league, having had a great batting average of .276. Along with her batting, she was also a talented athlete all around, on the team. She, along with all of the other players had improved their games tremendously as the season had progressed.

"Softball at Urbana is an on-going tradition of hard-hitting, fast paced competition." — Anonymous.

As for the Junior Varsity team, they had a slightly better season than the Varsity. They had ended the year with a record of 4-8, which had reflected all of the effort that they had put in. These promising girls will make great Varsity players in the coming years.

Tiger Pride at Its Best!

Well the school was knocked off their feet with all the work the cheerleaders did this school year. With the addition of two classes from the Junior High, we have added more spirited Tigers!

During the football season these spirited tigers sat in the new tradition at UHS, the block T. This was started by the cheerleaders with a lot of help and input from Mr. Lemons and Mr. Grahm.

This was a place in the bleachers marked off by streamers, posters, and balloons for students to sit in.

"We the Seniors hope that the school spirit we raised will always continue!" — Monique Penn ers for them throughout the season; starting in the summer with car washes and continuing through the school year, with suntan products and bake sales.

They put in hard practice times during the summer on Tuesday's and Thursday's from 8:00-12:00 A.M., and sometimes sacrificing sleep to practice at 6:00-8:00 A.M. This was only the beginning of their hard work and dedication shown throughout the year. During the school year, they still had to practice hard and they gave up Tuesday's and Thursday's to do so. They also gave up some days, nights and weekends to work on special activities such as Homecoming.

Varsity Cheerleaders at UHS definitely showed Tiger Pride!

The Junior Varsity cheerleading squad took on a new twist this year. Ordinarily, Urbana has had a separate Freshmen and Sophomore squad. This year, however, the two classes were combined to make one single squad.

The Junior Varsity cheerleading squad consisted of ten cheerleaders, three freshmen and seven sophomores. The captain's of the squad were Tammy Ford and Stacey Cox.

The squad raised money for their camp through fundraisers, such as car washes, selling sun tan products, and having bake sales. They had attended the NCA cheerleading camp with the Varsity squad on the campus of Illinois State University. The

J.V. did an excellent job at camp. They were awarded two blue ribbons, two red ribbons, and a spirit stick. They were able to maintain that excitement throughout the school year as they had cheered on the talented sophomore football team to an outstanding 8-1 season.

The Wrestlettes had a great season. They were led by senior captain Aimee Townsend and were sponsored by Mrs. Hanner. The Wrestlettes had participated in fundraisers, such as selling pizzas and candy bars. They practiced twice a week in preparation for the meets. The Wrestlettes were responsible for encouraging people to support wrestling, and help keep score.

For Mrs. Washington, Tiger Pride and school spirit is more than just a tradition; but also a time honored commitment. She has been the sponsor of Tigerettes for the past twelve years, and the sponsor of Pep Squad for five. As you can see, UHS half-time entertainment is definitely a tradition here. And we thank her greatly for her support!

To excel in athletics at U.H.S. takes a combination of dedication, commitment, mental toughness, and physical ability. It is often very difficult to combine these characteristics and achieve athletic excellence in a conference that is as tough as the Big 12. This year though, there were several teams and individuals that accomplished this task. These students are profiled on this page.

Swimming: Kristin Hasinger, a junior at U.H.S., is one swimmer who knows the strain of national competition, having been ranked nationally since the age of ten. During the Freshmen and Sophomore years, she placed tenth in the 50 freestyle at the state competition. Also, as a Sophomore, Kristin placed seventh nationally in the 100 backstroke.

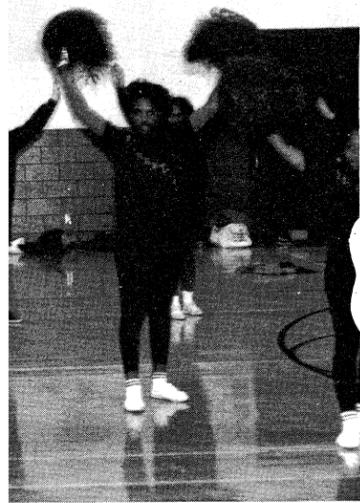

Soccer: After a truly exciting season, this year's soccer team defeated Danville to win the regional championship for the first time in the team's history. The team also won the Big 12 and placed second in the Sangamon State Soccer Classic.

"The secret of success is consistency of purpose."

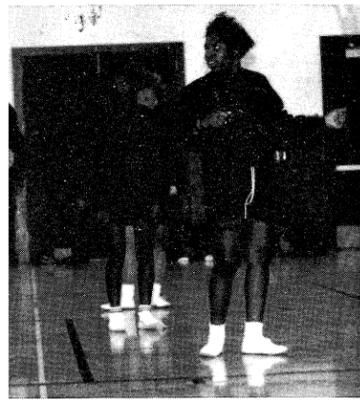

— Ben Disraeli

Wrestling: The winning tradition of the Urbana High School wrestling team was carried on once again this year as the Tigers won the team regional for the eighth straight year. On an individual level, Mark Huls, Brian Madsen, Jarrard Davenport, and Ryan Birt, all won regionals and qualified for sectionals.

"Pursue, keep up with, circle round and round your life, as a dog does his master's chaise. Do what you love, know your own bone: gnaw at it, bury it, unearth it, and gnaw it still . . . Do what you reprove yourself for not doing." — Thoreau

With a load of homework waiting for them at home, and with the responsibility of excelling in the sports that they may be involved in, it's a wonder how the students at Urbana High School are able to participate in the extra-curricular activities that are offered, and yet remain sane. But then again, that is why the students at Urbana High School are so grand. Whatever the activity, whether it's playing the trombone in the band, or performing a poem for a speech contest, the students definitely made a grand exhibition!

Banding Together in Harmony

A Fanfare of Music

Not only is band the largest class that meets during the school day, it's also the largest organization, and now that the renovation is complete, they actually have a classroom at the High School. The band was in the best shape that it ever with brand new equipment, a great new room, and about twenty-two Freshmen. All this helped to give the band an extra boost of glorious sound.

Like the High School, the Marching band this year made its "Grand Opening", too. With more members in the band, a super flag corps, with hard work, a lot of spirit, the Urbana High School Marching Tigers were a guaranteed success this fall.

Through the work of the Drum Majors Jennifer Phillips and Jennifer Woodward, Urbana's Marching Tigers added more thrill and showmanship to their performances. "We sounded a lot better this year," commented trumpet player Todd Peters.

Outside of giving powerful local performances, the band participated in other activities. One such activity was traveling to Northwestern's Band Day where they spent the afternoon playing with other bands from around the areas. Overall, the Marching band was a well gathered group, and will continue to play that way well into the future.

The Urbana High School Concert Band started out its season strong with about twenty-five new musicians and a new band room to play in. With a new surrounding and exciting new people, the concert band tried hard to work together in improving sound and musical ability.

The band started the season early by forming a band to play at Santa's arrival, the day after Thanksgiving Day. In December, the band got into the holiday spirit by performing holiday music for the Holiday Concert. Next, the band prepared for a concert in February. In March, Urbana High School sponsored a Solo and Ensemble contest, in which almost all of the band members participated in. They went to band contests and had a Spring Concert as well. Finishing the year off, the band took a trip to Six Flags for a day filled with fun and excitement.

After losing several outstanding musicians over the past years, the band is well prepared for the new in-crop of students that await. Being a musician takes a lot of work, and especially sacrifices like summer school or taking a first hour class. But all in all, the band needs a big handshake and a salute. For where would we be without music? In the years to come Urbana's concert band will indeed continue to make good music and have the perfect surrounding to do so.

Take Note U.H.S.

A Note of Excellence

The Urbana High School orchestra put on another year of fine performances, individual achievements, and group ensembles. Under the direction of Mr. Calhoun, this year's orchestra saw more diversity giving more public performances. Also in this year of change, the orchestra saw a new program instituted into its regular curriculum.

petitions held every semester and write a report similar to a term paper. This was very inspiring for many students who had participated in the weighted grade option in the first semester; all three qualified for the all-district fall competition. According to John Connor, "Orchestra provided me with a way to express myself musically. Also, because of the new weighted program, I was not hurt academically."

*"When words leave off, music begins."
— Heinrich Heine*

Coming on the back of concerted efforts by teachers, parents, and students, there was an option to take orchestra for a weighted grade. Previously, there had been no way to get advanced credit for outstanding achievement in orchestra, but the new program allows students to receive a weighted grade if they participate in com-

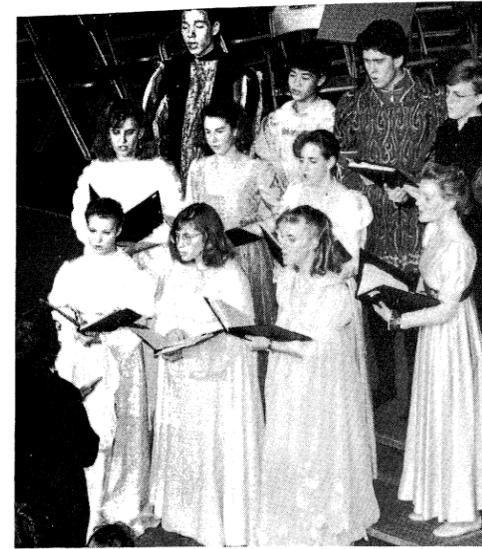

This year, Urbana qualified eight people for all-district by being chosen in a comprehensive audition held among all of the schools in the Big 12. Only one of those students who qualified was a senior, so that the orchestra will still have a good deal of talent next year coming from the underclassmen.

A sing-le harmony!

Hungry Madrigals in a moment of silence

Shouting and screeching, noise fumbles into the halls echoing with terrifying vibrations throughout the school. You slowly enter the room and you see everyone violently panting and clutching their stomachs. Something is amiss, are you witnessing suffocation, child birth, or worse yet the effects of some ghastly disease? No, just the choir and madrigals warming up to sing.

Choir was a class at UHS that offered a huge variety of music and was great for those with a love for music. The choir performed at several big events at Urbana High School, including singing at the homecoming halftime show and singing at the music department's annual holiday concert.

The madrigals was an extra-curricular singing group that does the majority of its singing during the winter holiday season. All of the madrigals hard work in the fall culminates in the annual Madrigals Dinner at Jumers. After the dinner, the Madrigals took their show on the road. This year, they sang more than a dozen holiday concerts throughout Champaign-Urbana bringing holiday cheer to the community.

As popularity for the program increased, Urbana unveiled its newfound talent, and UHS can be sure to see more great things from the choir and madrigals in the future.

Everybody ready? 5,6,7,8 . . . No. No. The left foot. Everybody has to start on the left foot. Let's try again. 5,6,7,8 . . . Much better, but don't rush it. You have to keep time with the music. Take it from the top one more time. Ready 5,6,7,8 . . . Perfect it looked great that time!

With the completion of the new wrestling/dance room, the dance club members stepped out in grand style by dancing their way toward another successful year. Members spent most of the year getting ready for their annual spring recital, which is organized and planned solely by the students, with the help from their advisor, Janey Propst. The dancers were able to choose their own music and choreograph their own routines. Once the routines were choreographed they had to be taught to the rest of the members. Dance styles ranged from ballet and jazz to even modern styles as well as tap and many others.

"It took a lot of hard work, but it was worth it!"
— Alison Abel

With all the hard work and dedication that was put into it, the show was bound to be a success. By the time the show was over the dancers had danced their way into the audience's heart. The dancers walked away from the show with a sense of pride and accomplishment, knowing that all the hard work and sweat was worth it because they were able to turn their vision into a reality!

UHS Drama renewed a grand tradition in doing their first full scale musical in the newly renovated auditorium. The musical was a great success. In fact Matt Tepper said, "Singing in the Rain" is the greatest thing I've ever been associated with."

"Singing in the rain" tells the story of Hollywood's transition from the silent movie to the talkie. The musical had an outstanding cast and crew that collaborated in a strong group effort. It would not have been possible without the help of Mr. Greg Chew, director, Mr. Lyons, music director, Miss Dunn and Kiki Coates, choreographers, and Julene Harrison, assistant director and official troubleshooter.

A question that hits most minds as they look at the title of the musical is, did it rain? You betcha! The production's greatest triumph was when it actually rained on stage. Masterminded by Malcolm Carroll, designated "The Rainman", a sigh of content came from the cast when it rained on stage for the first time.

With the completion of the renovation, UHS Drama is finally back in its auditorium for good. Director Greg Chew basically summed it up when he said, "It was a relief to be back on our own stage doing musicals." With the huge success of "Singing in the Rain", we can look for many great musicals.

Backstage Pass

Everyone's Favorite

Ah! The stage... where dreams come to life. A place where one can see the advent of the talking picture, a messenger from God, flying fairies or Matt Tepper. Most of the credit goes to the actors and actresses, but a great deal of the work goes on behind the scenes and in rehearsals.

The show would certainly not go on without crews to support the actors and actresses. Without the costume crew, all the performers would be naked. Without the lighting crew, the performers would not be seen at all. Without a set crew, the stage would be bare. Without a stage crew, the curtains would never open. Last, but not least, without a publicity crew, there would be no audience.

"The applause is worth the effort"
— Shauna Whetton

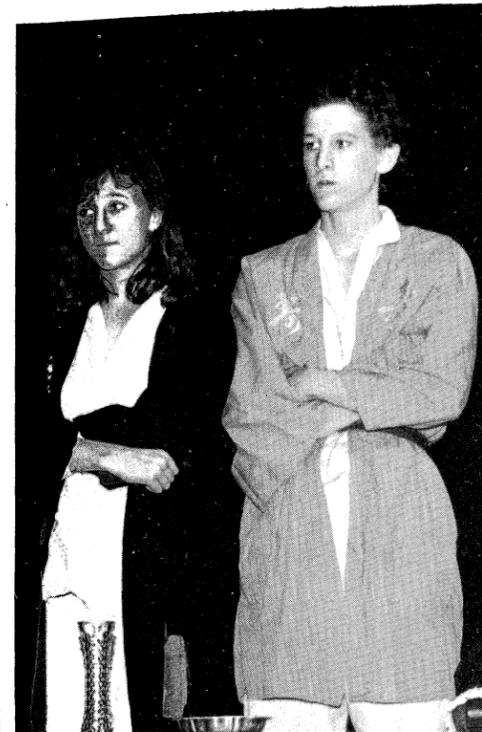

Urbana's very own director, Greg Chew, did an excellent job in 1989-90, handling production of the spring musicals and the fall play.

The Thespians are a small group of individuals within the Drama Club who are looked up to for knowledge and experience. Thespians is an international honorary society for those people who have logged in 100 hours in two different facets of the theatre such as acting or technical work), and have participated in more than one play.

Director Greg Chew says, "with the addition of freshmen, we're startin' 'em young, and can only look for better things in the future of the Drama Program."

"God's Favorite," a comedy by Neil Simon, was performed on November 9, 10, and 11 in the newly renovated auditorium. The play centered around Joe Benjamin, a wealthy but charitable businessman with an amazing ability to endure. God decides to test Joe's faith after the Devil bets God that "there isn't one man who wouldn't renounce God, if the heat was put on."

Joe Benjamin, "the man who was being tempted, was superbly played by sophomore Jacent Jackson, who Mr. Chew said was "right for the part."

Rose Benjamin was played by Junior Vanessa Villegas. David Benjamin, the elder son was played by Senior Jon Smith. Joe's twins were played by Juniors Tammy

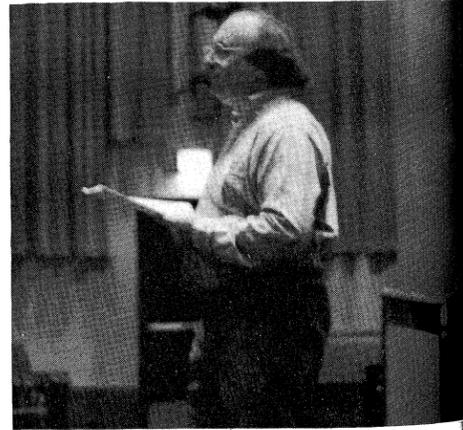

Cohen and Aaron Clark. Joe's faithful maid and servant were portrayed by Sophomores Ana Zorzopulas and Junior Aaron Swartz. Matt Tepper, who had played Sidney Lipton, the messenger from God, commented about the production: " 'God's Favorite' was a lot of work, but a lot of fun. Where else could you get struck by lightning, and not even feel it?"

The Quest for Knowledge

Do your friends bow at your feet after a game of Trivial Pursuit? Do you find yourself "cleaning house" on Jeopardy? Are you occasionally glancing through the almanac for no apparent reason? Perhaps Quiz Bowl is the activity for you. You don't have to be an Einstein to be part of the Quiz Bowl team, you just have to know a bunch of trivial facts.

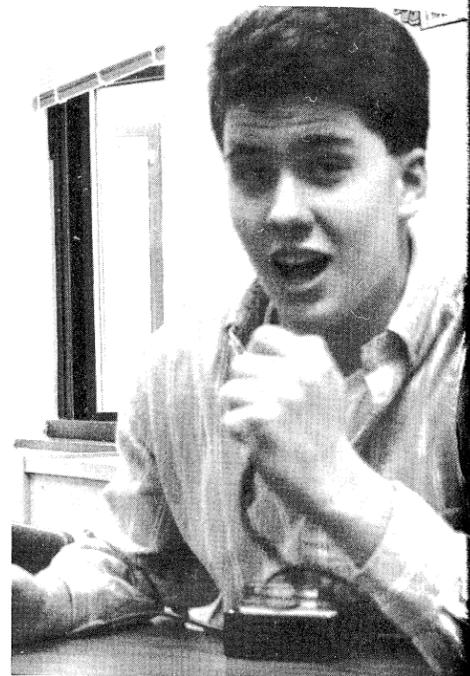

"Quiz Bowl is the sport of the future"
- L. Mueller

Quiz Bowl is set up in much the same format as the old college bowl that you could watch on weekend mornings. Two teams of five are pitted against each other armed with only buzzers, pencils, paper, and a multitude of facts. There are many different reasons why people join the Quiz bowl team.

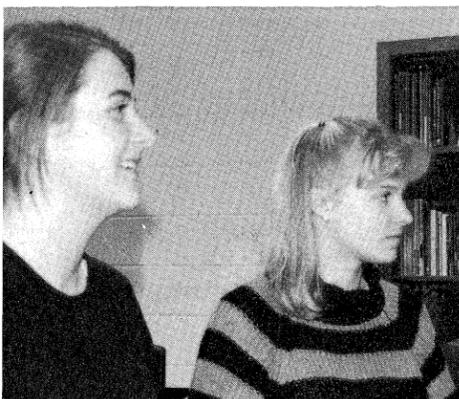

Some can't resist those little buzzers, some figure it would look good on a college application, and others are seeking the thrill of victory or to just have fun.

Many people hold misconceptions about Quiz Bowl. They assume that every member of the team is armed with taped up glasses, an ugly tie, and a pocket protector. In reality, one simply finds a bunch of people who look like and act like normal teenagers.

Urbana's very own Quiz Bowl team didn't face as much action this year as in previous years. This was due to the fear that Urbana evoked in the other teams around the Big 12. Although this year's team didn't have an abundance of matches, it was a young team that quickly gained experience.

Last year's Art Club, sponsored by Marcia Wolter, was a great success. They began the year with a large turnout of new members. With the new members, came new ideas to make Art Club even more creative than it had been in the past years.

Tailgreat marked the spot where the Art Club won first place as the best club category with their non-alcoholic bar: "Bar-none". But selling non-alcoholic drinks to the students at Urbana High School was not the only thing they did for Tailgreat, they also sold Tiger Talent t-shirts, which had printed on them virtually all of the names of the clubs and organizations of U.H.S. Because of the success at Tailgreat, Art Club members were able to

"The way to another world is through the artist's imagination."
- Shaheen Shorish

visit Chicago's Art Institute, which in turn made them more enthusiastic than ever to be active in the club.

Enthusiasm was the key word for the spring semester in the Art Club. They made decorations for a few dances and visited places such as Billy Jackson's art studio. To culminate last year's success, the Art club sponsored an art contest, to obtain work to hang in various places around the school. The purpose was to give the halls of U.H.S. a little more of the student's personality.

Art Club hopes to continue this year's success again next year!

A Year to Remember

Pressing the Issues

Late nights, a lot of talking and eating, playing basketball, taking short naps, shooting darts, decorating the office, laughing till you cried, and oh, of course putting together a yearbook. These are just some of what went on during the late night sessions in the yearbook office just before a deadline. It was not uncommon to find members of the yearbook staff staying after school until 8 or 9 o'clock working on copy or layout.

"We must always have old memories, and young hopes."
— Arsene Houssaye

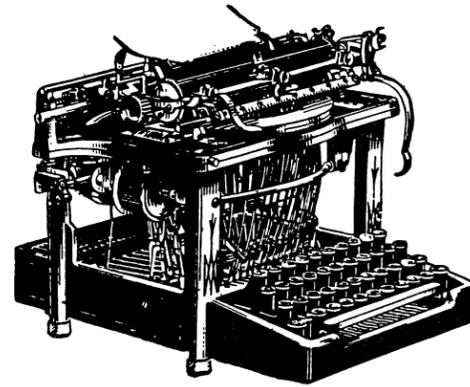

quote boxes and senior quotes. The editors experimented with the use of spot coloring on the 1st 16 pages, they added an extra 20 pages to the book, they increased the amount of copy and they used overburns and clip art to make the book come alive.

It should be noted that without the help of the dedicated yearbook staff, and our ever patient adviser Mrs. Cox, the yearbook would never have attained its goal. It is the 1990 Rosemary staff's deepest wish that you, the students of UHS will look upon this book 10, 20, 30, even 50 years from now, and remember both the good and bad times at UHS that have made us who we are today.

Rush, rush, rush, are the best words to describe the 1989-1990 Echo staff. Whether it was rushing to make a deadline, or to finish an article, the Echo staff was always on the rush.

The main core of the "rushing writers" on the Echo staff was comprised of teacher Clare Barkley's sixth hour journalism class, plus the addition of many other students who voluntarily offered their time and effort, although they were not taking the class.

"It's a nice class to visit, but I wouldn't want to stay here!"
— Gary Clark

The sense of leadership came from the student editor, Michele Spence. Michele spent many long hours working on the layout of the newspaper and coaxing the staff members to write articles for the paper in order for them to upgrade the paper's quality. When the young journalists weren't writing their articles or typing them up in the computer lab, they enjoyed playing with the wax machine that was located in the Echo office. Despite this though, the staff managed to publish four newspapers before the Winter break. The articles contained in these pages ranged from Cari Anderson's expose on "Cheerleaders," to Michele's article on an "Out of Body Experience."

The highlight of the year was the commitment of the staff to keep the student body informed about the exciting current events.

Welcome to WUHS . . .

Now Hear This . . .

Drum roll please!

"Good morning and welcome to WUHS, the voice of Urbana High School." Yes, the old tradition was heard in the halls and classrooms of UHS once again every Friday morning. This year's anchor was Daniel Larson who had great support from speech director Griffiths and student director Kevin Johnson. The show kept up its great success with informative editorials, interviews with the high schools students and staff, and weekly edy skits. Many of the traditional WUHS pieces such as the Top 10, the News, and others were regularly on the show. The show also added a new appeal with Sports Reporter Adam Wilson brought to life with his "many" interviews and personal commentary, and crazy (but not always funny) skits of Alan Ostergren. One of the highlights of the year was the special interview with the lead actor of the Broadway hit Les Miserables during the Homecoming special. WUHS had another successful year of broadcasting which was possible by the help of the whole staff. When the doors were shut and the lights turned on the voice of WUHS could faintly be heard in the halls of Urbana High School.

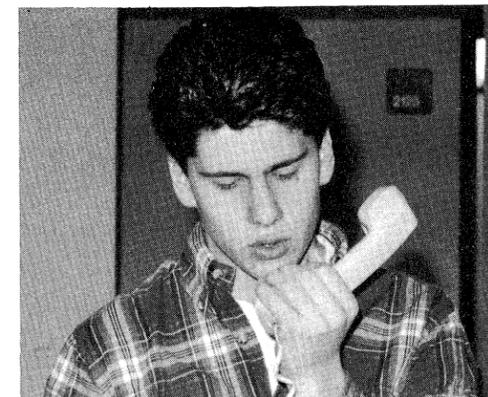

As in the past, the UHS daily student bulletin was read every morning by our students. The days meetings and announcements were heard in the classrooms of the student body. With the many delightful voices the announcements brought about the start of every students day.

Also, the press box squad had an exciting year here at UHS. Every home game football and basketball game one could hear energetic voices calling out the players and the score, keeping a close eye on the game. Even if you missed the game you could see it on television because the games were taped by Cablevision and the press box squad provided the color commentary. Before every home game you could find this fearless group of men preparing themselves for the nights action. Like WUHS and the announcement crew, the press box squad lived up to Urbana High School with devotion and enthusiasm to its task.

Versed In Eloquence

You'd think that climbing on the bus at 6:30 on Saturday morning's with a pillow in hand, the speech team would be an unhappy lot; however, with the joy of practicing on the way, and with an occasional nap, the speech team rallied for an exciting day's competition.

When they arrived, the awakening speech team threw themselves bravely into their first round of competition.

When the second round came, everyone was ready to win! And by the third round, everyone had stocked up on rice crispy treats and chocolate chip cookies from the bake sales that were set up. Then, the time had arrived when the team nervously waited for the posting of finals. Everyone could relate to Grace Han's prose piece, "The Time I Died."

Urbana usually fared well and jumped into the final rounds. The competition was stiff because now they wanted the medals. Besides, nobody wanted to sit down first, at the awards assembly! The awards presentations often brought many unexpected surprises.

The team was fortunate this year to have members from the U of I speech team help them. They, along with Mrs. Griffiths, gave the team continual encouragement, laughs, and a great deal of help.

The speech team consisted mostly of Juniors; thus, the team should have a very promising season next year.

Tenston filled the air as the countdown began — "four... three... two... one... you're on!"

"Ready camera one! Here we go — fade camera one," said the director. The switcher quickly hit the lighted button marked with a one and pushed up the slider.

"Welcome to the show," began the host.

It was not uncommon to hear this type of technical dialogue at one of this year's Video Club shows held at Urbana High School. This year the video club expanded its scope to include Introduction to Television Production, and a class that makes it easier for the students to learn more about video production and technology. Students in this class learned everything from how to use an 8mm camera to how to edit special effects. With

Mr. Drew's excellent leadership they used their talents to improve their overall production knowledge and to produce great videos.

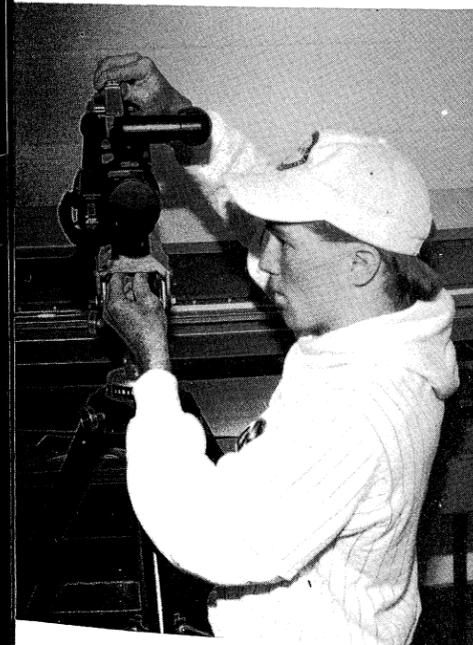

Besides doing their own projects students volunteered to direct and film many important activities. Basketball games, both boys and girls, were taped and aired on cable channel 22 along with a remarkable Homecoming video, and "On the Spot" shows, just to name a few.

The project of the year for the video club was to run the "On the Spot" talk shows at UHS. The club set up sound, state, and video. "It took hard work, time and patience," said Celeste Glende. It would be fair to say that the Video Club exceeded its expectations.

A Tradition of Leadership

Another Successful Year

On an all too early Monday morning, students struggle towards the cafeteria from student parking lot. Some may rush to get their well balanced breakfast of free coffee and Cheetos, while others plagued by allergies, rush to the nearest classroom to soothe their throats with a Kleenex. Later as the sun beats down on the hot day, students flock to the nearest classroom or satisfy their afternoon hunger in the cafeteria with a slice of Garcia's Pizza.

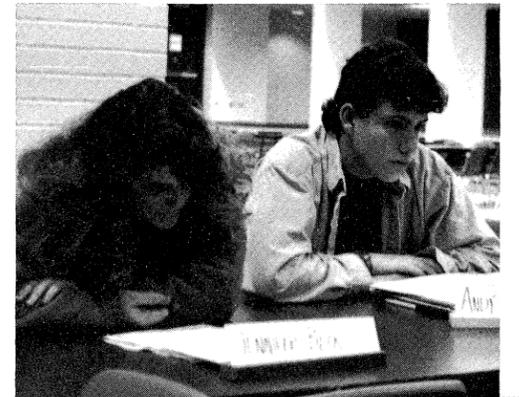

So what is this scenario doing under Student Senate? Without Student Senate, students wouldn't have these benefits. Student Senate is an organization that represents and benefits the students. It has brought student parking, vending machines, free coffee, Kleenex, paper plates, and many other essentials to the student body. Also Student Senate sponsors many events for students and staff that have become mainstays at Urbana High School. A couple being: The Tailgreat (during Homecoming week), the annual Senate auction, and Teacher Appreciation Day. Senate has even brought UHS its own television talkshow, "On the Spot", that has been a great success in opening the lines of communication between students and adults.

Senate is much more than a school service organization though, it's also an organization that helps the community. It collected over 3,000 pounds of food in a student canned food drive during the "Food for Families" campaign and helped out every year with the local Special Olympics. What Senate is best known for in the community is its annual Thanksgiving Dinner, where it feeds several hundred people who would normally spend thanksgiving alone.

Under the capable guidance of Mr. Lemons and David Thornton, Student Senate worked hard through its variety of committees. "We do more in one day than most student councils do in a year", remarked David Lemons, and it was definitely true this year. Student Senate did not sit back and wait for change, but rather they initiated it by utilizing their resources and dedicated senators to see that things were done right.

Making A Difference

February was Black History month and one group at UHS was hard at work to inform its members about their own humanity and past, while simultaneously working to create a desirable future.

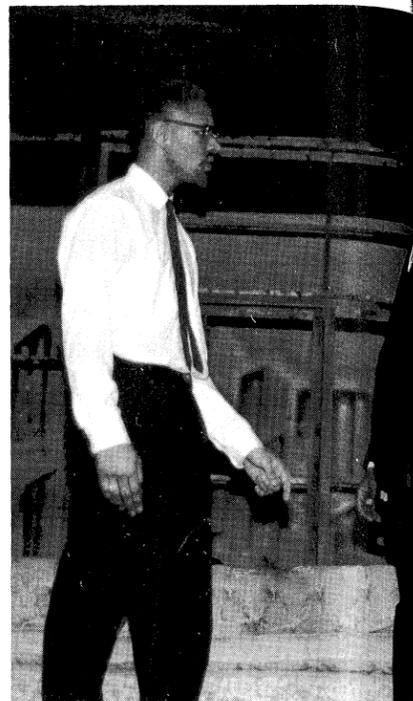

The organization is M.I.A., which stands for Minorities in Action, a group of black students interested in the enlightenment of their history and the betterment of the present. "We feel it is our responsibility to teach blacks to appreciate their past and learn from it so that they can plan for their future," said M.I.A. Secretary Crystal Powell.

The group kicked off the month by hearing a speech by Steve Birden, "Remembering the Past, But Not Repeating it." They also participated in their own speech competition sponsored by the principal Scholars Program on March 16th and 17th. Students were chosen from each grade to represent Urbana in the contest. Crystal Powell represented the senior class, Nina Smith the juniors, Sadi Ar-Raheem, sophomores and Sean Tatum for the freshmen.

"Working on the future; remembering the past"
— John Smith

The highlight of the year was the Black Ball held at Jumers in April. Under the supervision of Grace Mitchell, M.I.A. had an exciting year, and hope to continue their fine tradition next year.

FSA Shaping Our Future

The entrepreneurs of tomorrow were what had composed the Future Secretaries Association of UHS. This school group was open to sophomore, junior, and senior girls. The club was sponsored by Helen Miller in the Business Education Department and had meetings monthly at the Urbana Free Library. These meetings were on Tuesday evenings and had featured speakers from the business world. Some speakers during the last year were; a representative from Illinois Bell on telephone courtesy, a court reporter from Champaign County, who brought her equipment and showed the club how she takes trial testimony, and a representative from Casual Corner showing business clothes. In December, the club enjoyed an informal party with pizza, presents, and conversation.

FSA earned money with two fund raisers during the year. They sold M&M's and gift items at Christmas. The money raised was used for a field trip to State Farm or Country Companies in Bloomington and a banquet at the end of the year.

All in all, FSA had an extremely good year, and hopes that his club will be able to grow and become more prosperous in the upcoming years.

"FSA is a club for fun and friendship."

Taking Care of the Future

PUPS (Parenting Utilizing Pre-kindergarten Skills) is a program that allows Urbana High School students to interact with community parents and children. It consists of three levels: Infants and toddlers, three to five year olds and parents. UHS students rotate through the three levels in order to get a rounded education in child care. Some of the set activities involve singing, crafts, finger plays, water coloring, etc. The parent level involves discussion between the children's parents and UHS students. On this level students get the chance to receive advice from the "experts" on the best ways to raise a child. The teachers managing PUPS are

"PUPS is parents and children learning together."
— Mrs. Robertson

Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Williams, and Mrs. Dawson, each one was responsible for conducting the activities in each level.

The major improvements that have taken place this year regard the facilities. PUPS's newly remodeled facilities include a complete kitchen for preparing snacks for the kids, a teacher observatory where the teacher observes the students and the playroom and craft area.

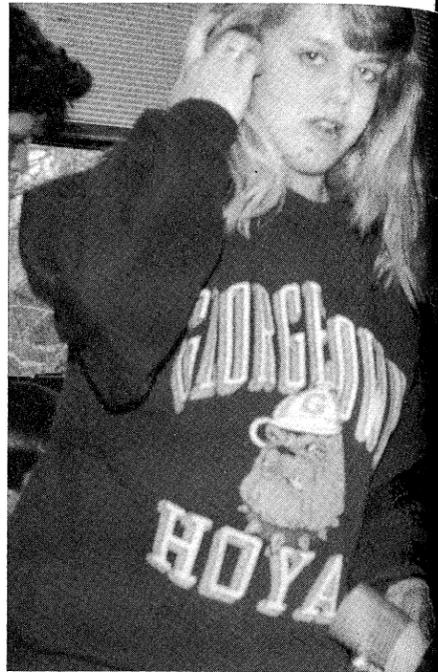

By providing activities for the kids such as sensory learning, group games to teach social skills, and structured play situations, the children involved in PUPS were encouraged to be independent and individualistic through the positive guidance provided by UHS students and teachers.

Driving the Issue Home

One teenager is killed every hour throughout the United States by someone driving under the influence of alcohol. In fact, more young people between the ages of 15 to 25 die from drinking and driving accidents than from war, drugs, and disease.

Students involved in the 1989-1990 Saferides program, a chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD), participated in three sections — community awareness, school education, and safe rides.

Students involved in community awareness gave speeches, volunteered time, and helped make the public aware of one of the country's largest problems: drinking and driving. The Staying Alive Peer Education Program is a student developed, 45-minute classroom presentation in which the SADD members actively involved other peers in the effort to prevent teenage death and disability caused by drinking and driving.

The third section in SADD is Safe Rides. Safe Rides is a program to provide a free and confidential safe ride home to any students who is not in the condition to drive safely, or to any student who wants to avoid being a passenger in such a situation because of alcohol or drugs. Safe Rides is a program which holds the potential for changing attitudes about driving while drunk.

Preparing for the Future

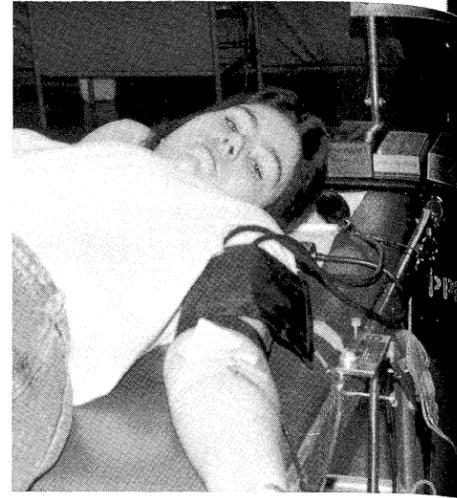

Friends Indeed

A career in medicine is not only being a doctor or a nurse, as many seem to believe. There are various different fields and specialties that are related to medicine. The purpose of the Medical Careers program is to inform students who are interested in pursuing a medical-related career about the different possible occupations they may wish to be involved in. The medical Careers program is split up into two sections. The first part deals mostly with learning about the technical side in medicine. This includes medical terminology and being able to take the vital signs for another person.

"This was excellent training for the future."

— Bill Bryant

Careers course deals with the various medical occupations. Many guest speakers came in to the class to talk about certain vocations such as dental hygiene, pediatrics, pharmacists, or occupational therapy. Many students who were interested in a certain vocation were able to take part in a clinical at various hospitals and offices where they could experience it first-hand. Medical Careers also deals with something extremely important in our community, the annual blood drive. More students became aware of the importance for the annual blood drive and therefore, donated blood. The blood was then given to the Champaign Blood Bank to save lives.

A common day for a peer counselor

L. Busey and A. Hawkins discuss their problem.

Every day during fifth hour students in Grace Mitchell's Peer Counseling Class do something a little different from the rest of the students at UHS. Peer Counseling is not a boring lecture class where you have to listen to a teacher the whole hour, it is an interactive environment where students exchange ideas and discuss their feelings openly. "I liked Peer Counseling because it gave me a chance to relax and talk about the daily stresses that go with high school," said Cozanne Johnson, a senior in the semester long class.

"Working as a peer counselor was a great experience."

— Shelly Sechrest

Senior Andrew Palmore summed up the activities of the class: "Each day during class we would be asked how we felt that day and would talk a little bit about ourselves." Students went through an intense training period during the first part of the semester. They did role playing, activity sheets, and held deep discussions on the meaning of life.

"It's nice to know that there are people in this school who care enough to help others sort out their problems," said senior April Hawkins.

Grace Mitchell's class may have ended at the semester, but what students learned in the class will be useful afterwards. It is a valuable trait to be able to relate to people and Peer Counseling teaches that.

Getting the Job Done

Experience that Works

The Cooperative Education program, COOP, and the Work Experience and Career Exploration program, WECEP, provide the opportunity for students to receive credit toward graduation while employed at "training stations" throughout Champaign-Urbana. These training stations are selected job sites where employers have agreed to work with the COOP and WECEP coordinators. The employers work with the students to teach them responsibility and discipline. They are also there to ensure a rewarding and successful experience for the Urbana High School students who are enrolled in these programs.

These programs allow qualified students to experience "the best of both worlds." Academic subjects of interest can be studied while gaining first hand experience in the work place. To be eligible to enroll in the Co-op course students must be at least 16 years old, while the eligibility limit for WECEP is 14-15. Students can earn up to one credit for the classroom portion of the program and credit for the training segment per semester. The classroom portions of these programs are designed to include what has been deemed as important employment skills. The edition of the valuable job experience works to compliment the classroom study.

Another special aspect of these programs are their annual honor awards. Every spring the coordinators of these programs, Kristine Sherrick and Patrick Atchley, choose two outstanding students from each program who have demonstrated a positive attitude and commitment toward the program, to be honored. The Urbana Rotary Club honors these four motivated students by inviting them along with their respective parents and employers to a luncheon held at Jumer's Castle Lodge. "I enjoy working with these kids year after year because they are all individually motivated and hard working," said Mrs. Sherrick.

Thanks to the help of the involved employers and the dedicated Urbana staff members involved, the CO-OP and WECEP programs hope to continue their successes in providing job experience and education to interested UHS students.

"WECEP has really prepared me for the world."

Changing The World

Minds of Steel

You see them walking in the halls, you sit next to them in many of your classes, and you stand behind them in the lunch lines. Who are these unexplored modern-day hippies that wear the, "Think Globally, Act Locally" t-shirts? They call themselves the Students for World Improvement, or SWI.

Students held weekly meetings to discuss world wide political activities.

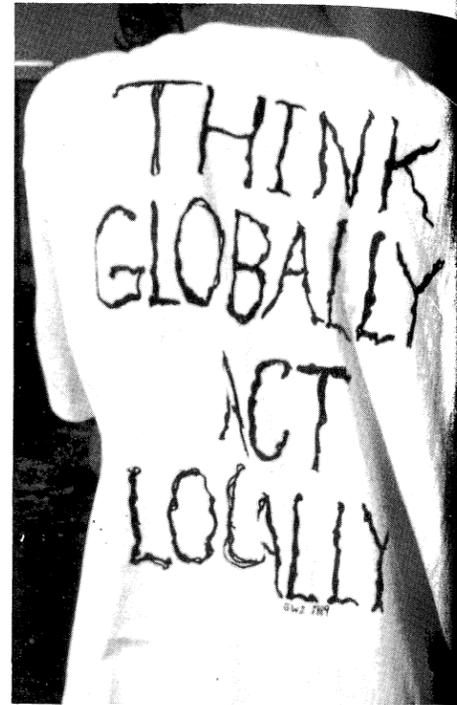

The main areas of discussion that SWI dealt with was that of nations, people, and environments they believed needed help. As their t-shirts said, the SWI were thinking globally and acting locally. They were concerned with global topics such as racism, reproductive rights, environmental hazards, and animal rights. They acted locally when they boycotted a well-known pizza place that was against animal rights.

They were able to raise money and donate it to a Women's Place in Urbana, and the other part to a High School in Zambia who are anti-apartheid. Also in classrooms, and throughout the entire school, SWI put boxes where students were able to recycle paper.

With the helpful guidance of Ms. Hanna, SWI had another fantastic year. Next year they hope to be even more successful with a soviet student exchange.

Pensively they sat, waiting, watching and wondering what the next move their opponent would cautiously make. No, it is not the boy's tennis team or the basketball team, but the chess team. Chess was a proud tradition at Urbana High School that was dutifully upheld by a noble group of high school strategists. Because of the commitment these thinking men possessed, it led the team to many impressive victories.

One such victory included a third place finish in the Class AA State Chess Tournament. Last year was the fifth consecutive time that the team won the leadership of the East Central Illinois Chess League. Last year also marked the second year in a row that the team went undefeated in the league. The Urbana Chess team finished the season with a remarkable record of 28-3.

At the Individual State tournament many outstanding victories were also accomplished by a select number of the Chess team members. The members who qualified for the Individual Tournament were Malcolm Carroll and Greg Leuthold. Malcolm Carroll finished the tournament with five wins, one draw, and he came in second place overall. Greg Leuthold was just as impressive as Malcolm Carroll with two wins, two draws, one loss, and he finished in the top 25 overall.

To many students the opportunities offered through the foreign language clubs at Urbana High School go far beyond just added practice at speaking the language (although that is important). For these students involvement in the Spanish, French, and German clubs meant a broader understanding, tolerance and overall sense of appreciation for other cultures and traditions.

According to Neah Smith and Kristy Howery language clubs at Urbana are muy divertido (very fantastic). This year students in these language clubs discovered through first-hand experience of becoming involved, whether the activity was an Oktoberfest celebration, school screenings of French films, or an authentic dinner party at Chi-Chi's. Most of the language clubs entered booths in Tiger Tailgreat where they sold genuine foods and apparel to raise money for other events that they planned for throughout the year. There were also activities that all three clubs participated in, such as the Urbana High School's own World Cup soccer tournament (started this year) that pitted each language club's best team against each other in a round robin soccer competition. After one such match John MacDon remarked, "I enjoyed getting out on the field and kicking the ball, as well as other teams around."

Learning through cultural understanding was the focus of the French, German, and Spanish clubs activities and overall it was a great success, truly celebrating the diversity of each language's heritage. Most students really felt that this was an important and needed addition to their comprehension of the language. "It really brought a lot of fun into the language," remarked Drew Edwards, "and I was more than happy to participate." Overall, the students taking a foreign language felt that their clubs Hicieron bien Traibhjo, Sie haben es gut gemacht, and ont fait un bon job did a really good job.

"Foreign Language — there's nothing like the feeling."

An Exceptional Year

The Key to Success

The National Honor Society enjoyed another successful year. Students with a 4.5 grade point average and teacher recommendations were invited to join. The NHS basically acted as a service agency that raised money and then distributed it to other groups and organizations.

N.H.S. Students proctored at the U of I psychology exams and raised money. NHS also tried something new this year. They abandoned the idea of the annual Run-A-Thon in hopes of something easier on the cardio-vascular system. They organized a "Cruise Night" where approximately 150 students gambled with fake money

"NHS became pioneers of new traditions" - Rachel Katzenellenbogen and danced to the songs selected by D.J.'s Dan Larson and Jeremy Kaufman.

Another new idea adopted by NHS were the forums. These forums allowed students to discuss current event topics in small groups and with guest speakers. Topics discussed in these forums included terrorism, the environmental problems of man made land fills, and the issue of student right's.

NHS also carried on the tradition of the Volleyball Bonanza.

Students formed teams and played each other in a single elimination tournament. Although the competition was tough, the team called "Orchiophobia" triumphed.

The NHS was based on a tradition of academic excellence, fun and excitement.

Urbana's Key Club had another successful year of fund raising and community work under the new leadership of their sponsor Gaye Dunn. The Key Club participated in many of their traditional activities such as the Bowl-A-Thon and Rake-A-Thon. In early December, many of the Key Club members came out to ring bells for the Salvation Army. Later that month, they participated in one of their biggest fund raisers of the year, their Grapefruit and Orange sales which was once again a great success! Starting a new tradition this year, Key Club had the opportunity to work as ushers at 3 U of I basketball games where they raised a sufficient amount of money. They had no rest with the dawn of the new year because they began work on the Rehabilitation Project of C-U. The members were given the experience to help fix-up a variety of odds and ends and re-flourish several homes.

Over all their year was successful as viewed by the board members. The highlight of the year for them was that they raised more money than in the past several years which was once again donated to the Woman's Shelter in Champaign.

Classes

"Achievement is the knowledge that you have studied and worked hard and done the best that is in you. Success is being praised by others. Always aim for achievement, forget about success." -Helen Hayes

The students at Urbana High School had experienced a lot of changes this last year; they adapted to a new school building, new teachers, new class hours, and the addition of the freshmen class. However, not only did the students have to deal with the new changes, but they also had to deal with the usual work load of homework, and even more homework! Nevertheless, the students at U.H.S. were able to take all of this in the traditional Tiger stride, to the extent where they even managed to have a little fun on the way. After all, they are grand, aren't they?

By letting their focus drift from fundraising to fun-making, the senior class officers worked really hard to make everyone's senior year a year that they would never forget. No longer having to worry about raising funds, the senior class officers had fun spending the money they collected over the past three years. They put on some truly memorable events, including two great dances, a senior picnic that was a feast of mammoth proportions, and a graduation that surpassed all others in size and extravagance. The dances sponsored by the senior class were the "New Attitude", Homecoming dance, the "Mid-winter Fling", and the Vice-Versa dance. Both dances turned out to be a tremendous success for everyone involved. Always laid back, but never laying off the senior class officers executed their duties thoughtfully and diligently, working in the best interest of the entire senior class at all times. It truly was a "Grand" year.

A Class With Class

"One small step for man, one giant leap for mankind." These were the historical words that Neil Armstrong stated as he had made his first step towards a world of new explorations, filled with both aspirations and doubt. On June 3, 1990, the seniors of Urbana High School had experienced the same phenomenon, as they too had embarked upon a world of new discoveries and experiences. Some seniors decided to continue their education and attend college; some decided to start working; and some seniors even decided to marry their high school sweethearts. Whatever their fate had been, the graduating seniors of Urbana High School had commenced the new decade with both excitement and bliss, but also with sorrow, for not only had their new lives begun at that point, but there had ended the warmth and security of their high school careers.

Regardless of the destined path that was laid out for them, the class of 1990 at Urbana High School was definitely prepared for the new and prosperous times ahead of them, because of their memorable hardships that they had to endure during their experiences at the Urbana High School. Some of these hardships had included being hunted down by certain teachers to ask the students about their whereabouts during that specific period; suffering from the good old "Senioritis;" and having to put up with the addition of the Freshmen class. But, on a more serious level, the true hardships that the Seniors had to face was the emotional realization that their "cavalier" interpretation of life would soon be altered by the awaiting responsibilities of adulthood. However, the Seniors at Urbana High School do not only have their hardships to remember, but also the fond memories of the different types of friendships that they formed during those years.

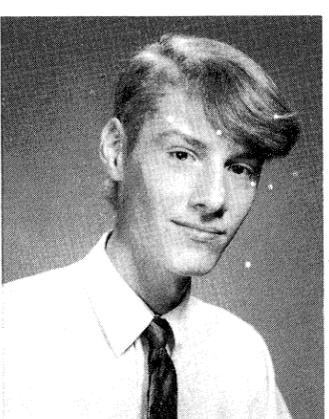

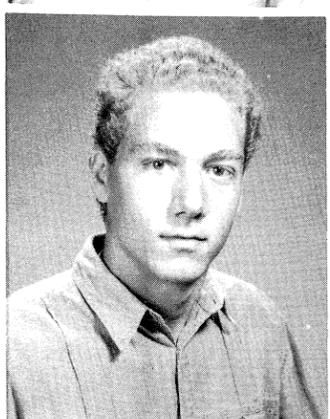

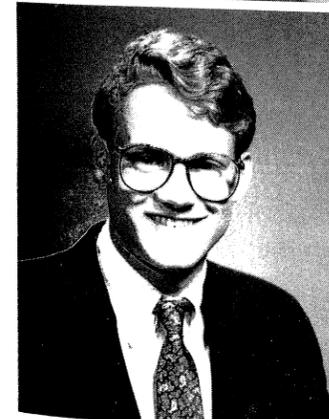

So as the decade commenced, so had the lives of the 1990 Seniors at the Urbana High School. Although it meant the end of one chapter of their lives, it also meant the beginning of a new and more exciting adventure that was waiting to unfold before them.

This Senior section was made possible by a gift from the Class of 1990.

JUNIORS

This year the Class of 1991 faced one of its toughest obstacles in the preparation, organization, and execution of the 1990 Junior-Senior Prom. When the year began, the junior class and the prom committee had three goals: to work hard, have fun, and make the 1990 prom the best ever.

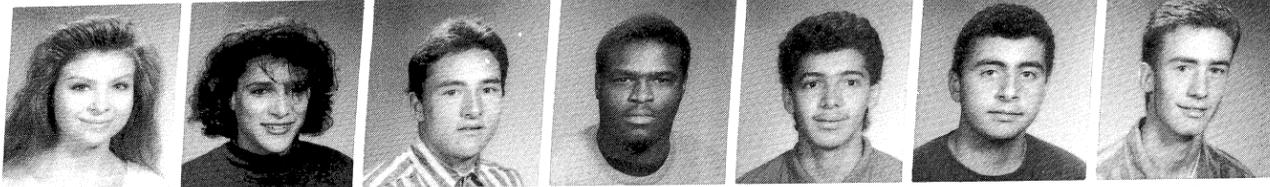

Led by their fearless sponsors, Ms. Dunn and Ms. Kron, these brave souls, along with a few others, embarked on a fundraising campaign second to none. Starting with their sophomore year, the class has staged fundraisers including sales of candy, balloons and boxer shorts, as well as ushering at several Illini men's basketball games.

One class officer said his hopes for the year were to work together as a whole on the task at hand. Thanks to Ms. Dunn and Ms. Kern, the class did this to achieve and surpass their goals.

Juniors: Stressed for Success

J. Schomberg at the point of no return.

As juniors, we face what many of us consider the most difficult school year of our lives. "Being a junior is like taking a Mrs. Newhouse Trig. test. It's extremely stressful and way too long," said junior Phillip Beth.

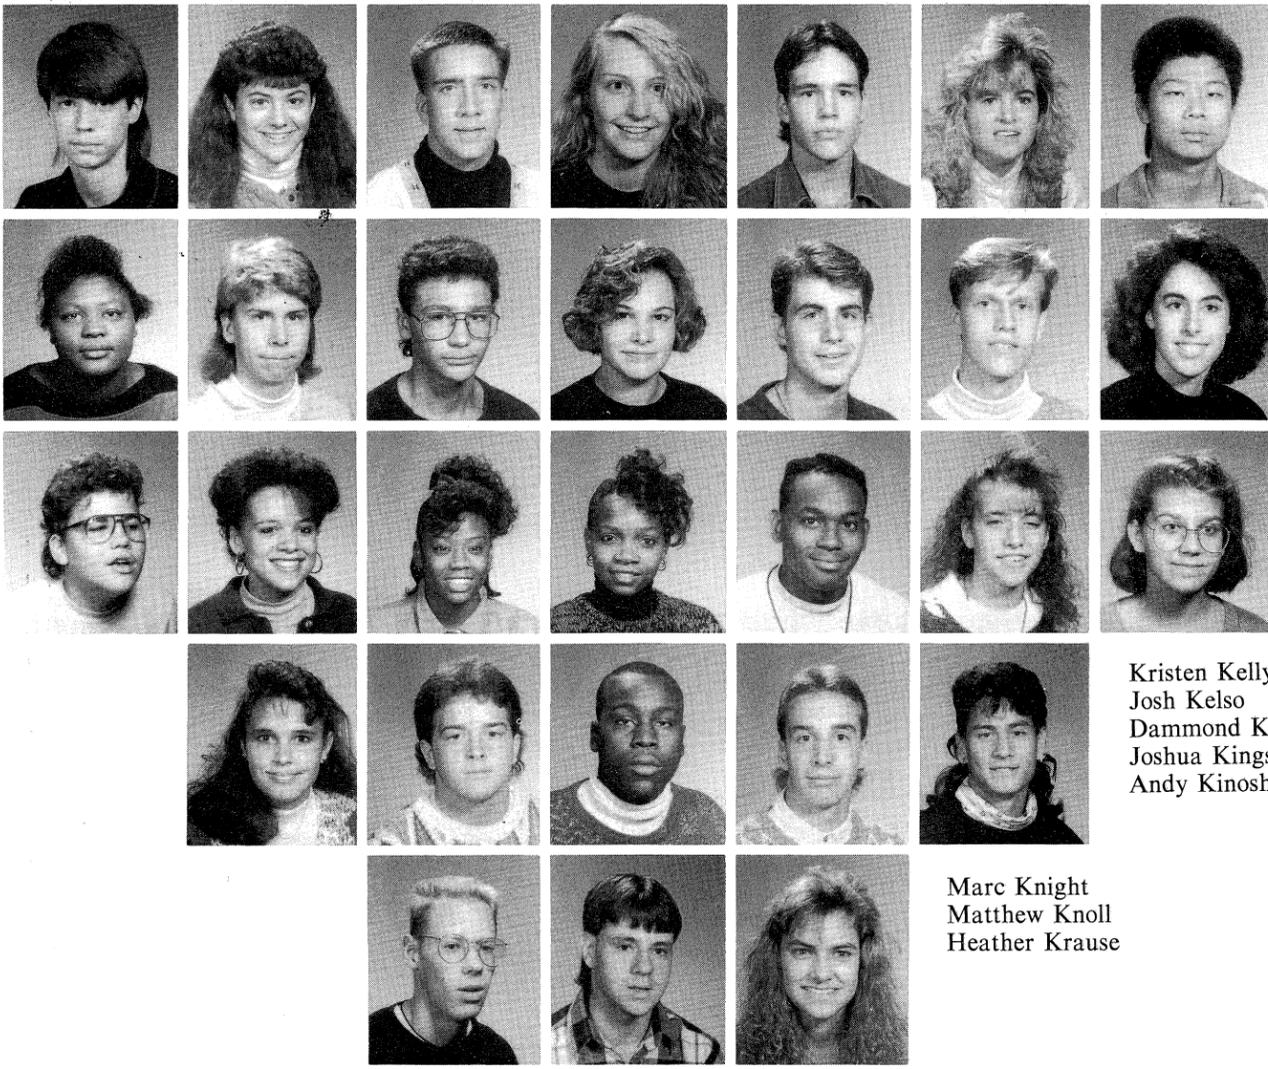

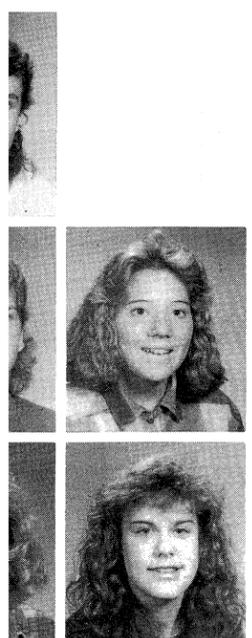

It's true. The junior year is the year of the PSAT, the SAT and the ACT, and those well known achievement tests. One junior expressed the importance of those tests by saying, "I threw up right before the test, but I decided to take it any way. Then I threw up afterwards. I'm glad it happened."

The level of stress created by tests such as these is comparable to that which is experienced by a mouse trying to solve Algebra problems while having rubberbands shot at him by an eight-year old.

We, as juniors, were fortunately endowed with enough ability to deal with such stress. We realized that dealing with stress was like eating oysters. You just have to swallow it whole without thinking about it.

"The way I see it," said Lauren Douglas, "we juniors are one step above utter immaturity yet one step away from ultimate superiority."

To summarize the emotions of many of our overworked third-year slaves of education, junior year is a crock of polluted sewage. However, we know that hard work and persistence will pull us through.

SOPHOMORES

The sophomore class took pride in its school spirit. They were perhaps the most intense and diverse group at UHS. There was a great wealth of talent in this class, which featured many outstanding athletes, musicians and writers as well as Urbana's very own — Tig the Tiger Mascot (who was, in reality, the mild-mannered Matt Foster).

This class considered itself one big team, and that team's job was to promote school spirit. The sophomores lead cheers at pep assemblies and raised funds for school events. Hey — they even sold their own spirited T-shirts.

Making The Transition

"This move may have been the hardest on the sophomores," commented Mrs. Greenhalgh on the transition from the junior high to the high school.

However, they succeeded in surviving the move. Though difficult for some, it was all-in-all a much awaited change making the adjustments to the high school easier.

"It took a few weeks to adjust to the new and bigger school, but after awhile I got the hang of things," confided Ben Burrus.

The general feeling of appreciation among the sophomores seemed to be the result of the much awaited new freedom they were not able to experience at the junior high. Students here enjoyed privileges such as vending machines, no dress code and off campus lunch.

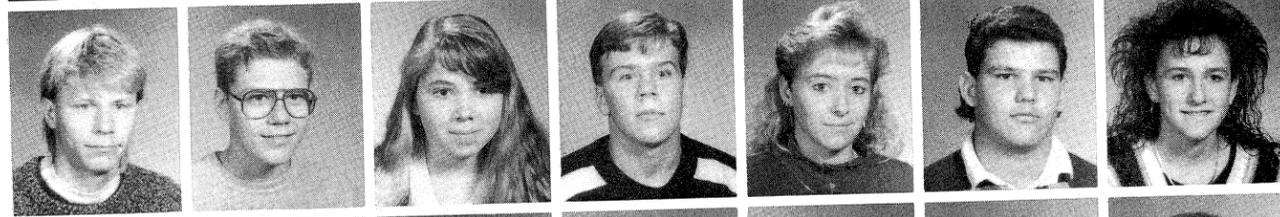

Through the year, many students experienced changes. Some were minor; others seriously affected them. Whatever the case, they all managed to survive their first year at UHS.

FRESHMEN

As the first freshmen in the new high school, people had varied expectations of what they would be like. They were expected to be immature and unable to cope with the stress of a high school curriculum. Some older students expected short, wimpy nerds roaming aimlessly about the hallways. Others just couldn't seem to adapt to the change. One upperclassman was quoted as saying, "You mean there are freshmen in this school?"

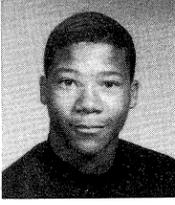

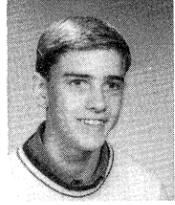

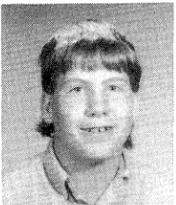

Well, they proved to be above everyone's expectations.

No one got stuffed in lockers or trash cans or toilets. In fact, they turned out to be one of the best freshman classes ever. It just goes to show that good things can come in small packages.

A Year of Firsts

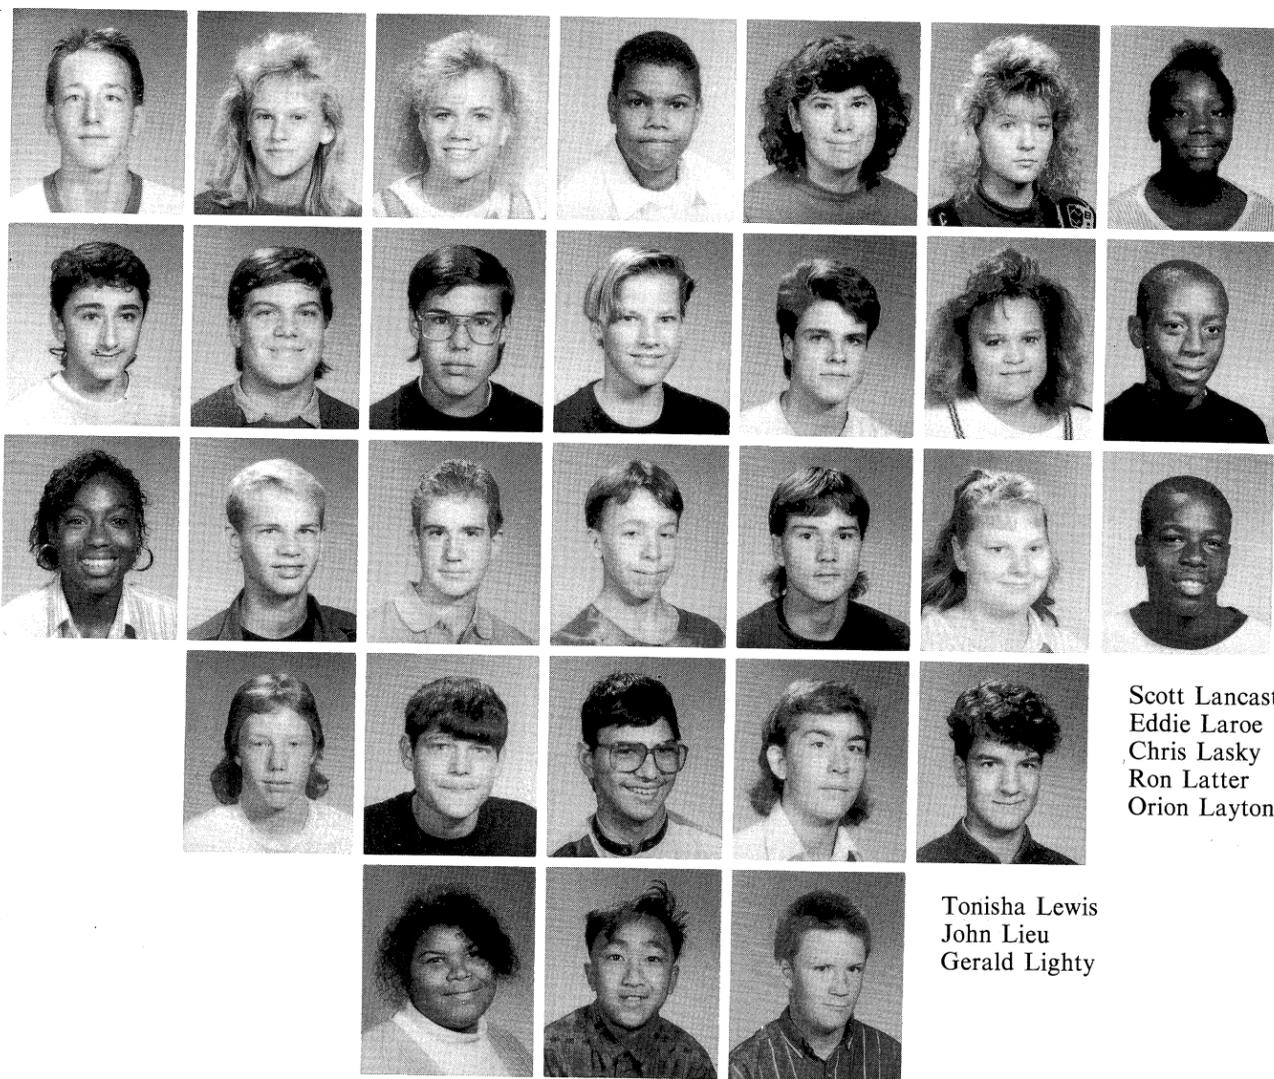

This year was definitely a year of firsts for the freshman class, and something deserves to be said about it. This year was the first year that our class has been together as a whole without being separated by the "pilot program." All of us felt intense excitement about coming together to form the best freshman class ever in Urbana High School.

This was also the first year that freshmen had participated in the whirl of Homecoming activities.

"It was a really busy week, but it was so much fun. I can't wait till next year," said one stimulated freshman about Homecoming week.

That week also found Jay Anderson and Cyndee Rodriguez in the Homecoming court. Sadly enough, Jay Anderson became the first freshman court attendant in Urbana history who could not be at the Homecoming Dance because of a tragic skateboarding accident.

Overall, this year's events have definitely composed a year that the freshman class will never forget. Although we mighty freshmen were considered runts and germs, we have a lot to gain in the future. We have many things to look forward to, and a super environment to receive an education. Our experiences this year, if anything, have shaped us for our next three years at UHS.

Captured In A Dream

Not just a pretty face.

May 13, 1989, was a special night; it was the Urbana High School Prom. Prom was not just a dance, it had symbolized the culmination of the school year. It was a time to reflect on past accomplishments: Float building, basketball games, Tailgreat, and Tiger Pride. It was a time to spend with friends, whom you met throughout your high school career.

The Illini Union ballrooms A & B served as an excellent setting for "Captured In A Dream," the theme for the dance. The Prom committee had worked diligently, in order to transform the ballrooms with floral arrangements, and balloons. When they were finished, the decorations were a compliment to the evening, and they were largely responsible for the romantic atmosphere.

After a hard round of campaigning, Grant Waaler was finally elected Prom King. Grant quite possibly could have been the first individual ever, to campaign for such an honor. The festivities would have not been complete without the election of the Prom Queen, who was Dawn McKinley.

Everyone was sorry to see the prom come to a close, but the night was still young, and there was always post-prom to attend.

All in all, for everyone involved, "Captured In A Dream," will always live on as a vibrant memory!

"We're gonna dance every dance like it's gonna be the last time." — Prince

The court of appeals.

S. Roberts and date, share the moment.

Dancing the night away!

Prom-pted to dance!

Each year at Urbana High School many students are awarded special recognition for their excellence in extracurricular involvement, leadership, community service, or academic pursuits. In acknowledgement of the time and dedication these students put into making these awards possible the Rosemary has set aside this page to honor some of them for their achievement.

Writing Challenge: This year Rachel Katzenellenbogen and Adam Wilson became the first students at Urbana to place at the creative writing challenge held at the U of I. The challenge is a timed, collaborative, impromptu writing contest that asks students to examine and argue a current controversial issue. Rachel and Adam were awarded first in the senior division for their piece.

National Merit Finalist/Semi-Finalist: Each year students from high schools throughout the nation are selected to be national merit scholars based on their PSAT scores. At Urbana Tom Trimble was the "Quality is the goal toward which method is aimed."

lone student selected for this honor. John Connor, Jason Hayden, and Alan Ostergren were designated commended scholars and Eric Lewis and Gabe Williams were also recognized for their performances on the test.

Principal Scholars: The Principal Scholars Program (or PSP) honored another group of students this year for their leadership, involvement, and achievement. Being selected as a Principal Scholar was an important honor because it makes them eligible for a variety of scholarships.

Chess Team: Few clubs at Urbana High School have consistently attained the type of excellence that the chess team is renowned for. In 1987 the chess team finished first in the state championship chess meet. They have followed up that great performance by finishing third in the state each of the last two years.

DAR/SAR Award: Once again the Daughters and Sons of the American Revolution sponsored their annual award to recognize good citizenship. The criteria that the faculty at U.H.S. considered when voting on students for this award included: leadership, dependability, service, and patriotism. This year's recipients were Rachel Katzenellenbogen and David Traugott.

Speech Team: The speech team had tremendous success at the regional tournament where the team finished fifth and Shauna Whetten, John Schomberg, Matt Tepper, and Eben Gillette all qualified for sectionals in their individual events. Shauna also qualified for All-State competition by winning at the Urbana Invitational and the Regional Tournament.

Music: This year there were three individuals Robert Klug, Jenny Woodward, and Elizabeth Lim, who excelled far beyond the parameters of the classroom in music. Robert, an accomplished trumpet player, is now playing on a regular basis with the Chicago Youth Symphony and has already won a music scholarship for his achievement in competition. Jenny, who plays the clarinet, placed third in district competition this year which qualified her for the All-State Band. Elizabeth was a finalist in the Stravinsky International Piano Competition. This is the highest competition that young musicians have the opportunity to play in.

Senior of the Year: On May 10, 1990 the Rosemary Outstanding Senior Award was presented to Adam Wilson for his accomplishments throughout high school. Also honored were Todd Fryer, Rachel Katzenellenbogen, John Smith, and Alan Ostergren. The winner of this prestigious award was selected through the voting of the student body at Urbana. The criteria for the award is a student who: maintains a good academic record, participates in school activities, assumes leadership responsibilities, works congenially in the school community, and achieves excellence in areas not necessarily academic.

The Year in Review

August

The continued decline of Communism affected Poland this month. With the political shrewdness of Lech Walesa, a new government was formed which peacefully pushed Communism aside. In the United States, we chuckled at the stubbornness of Zsa Zsa Gabor after she was incarcerated for slapping a police officer. Janet Jackson debuted her new album "Rhythm Nation 1814."

On August 23 UHS students walked the renovated halls of the new school for the first time as school began its first day.

October

The United States shook along with the rest of the world in October as we watched the horror of the '89 earthquake in California. The earthquake which struck the Hayward Fault on October 17, 1989 just across the San Francisco Bay caused an excess of detrimental damage. An estimate of 400 people were killed along with thousands of others who received injury. Another major "quake" occurred in the U.S. due to the start of the Rolling Stones American Tour. The English group rocked the U.S. from coast to coast selling out show after show.

January

January 1, 1990, the start of not only a new year, but a new decade in which all sorts of exciting events occurred. President Bush ordered an invasion of Panama in order to arrest their leader and drug lord, Manuel Noriega. After several days of hiding, Noriega gave himself up to U.S. forces. There was also some exciting times in sports during January. Joe Montana led the San Francisco 49ers to their second consecutive Super Bowl championship. There was a mild winter for UHS students this year except for a few days in January when winter reared its ugly head and the temperatures fell twenty degrees below zero. The students of UHS experienced several sleepless nights trying to cram a semesters worth of work into 15 hours of studying for the infamous Finals.

September

South Africa elected their new President, F.W. deKlerk. Due to his obvious disregard to attempt any black-white negotiations, violence broke out which marked one of the bloodiest battles in South Africa since 1985. In the occupied West Bank, Yasir Arafat got fed up with what he considered a lack of concern by the U.S. for the PLO's movement. The U.S. had discontinued peace talks between the Palestines and Isrod, and many PLO members feared what no negotiations would come about. President Bush waged his war on drugs this month by nationally broadcasting a speech where he asked the entire nation to get behind him and help stop this serious problem. Jim Bakker's trial closed the chapter on his charade when he was found guilty on 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy.

November

The walls came tumbling down in November, literally. The Berlin Wall, which was erected in 1961, came down at the hands of its people. After more than 28 years the city was reunited as one, and the people were free to walk the streets of East and West Berlin without fear. What was only a dream became a long awaited reality. Continued fighting in El Salvador claimed the lives of 6 Jesuit priests and hundreds of other citizens that were stalked down by the infamous death squads. The great piano player Vladimir Horowitz at age 86 died this month. He was considered the last great romantic for he captured a genuine 19th and 20th century sound. Paul McCartney's solo tour hit the states, and as always was a show to please. Once again the annual Student Senate Thanksgiving Dinner was a success serving over 500 people on Thanksgiving Day.

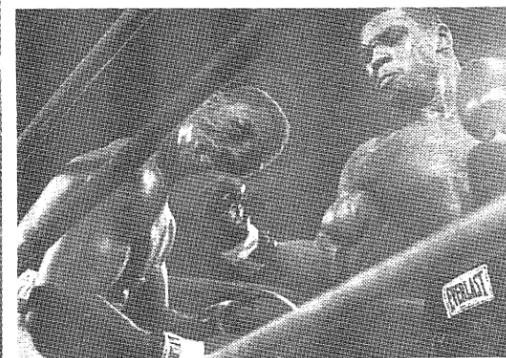

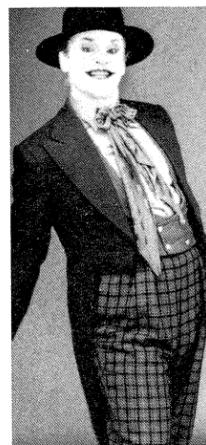

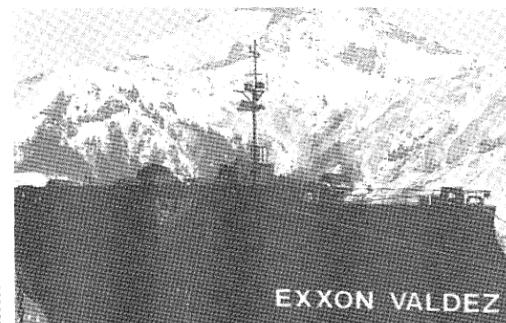

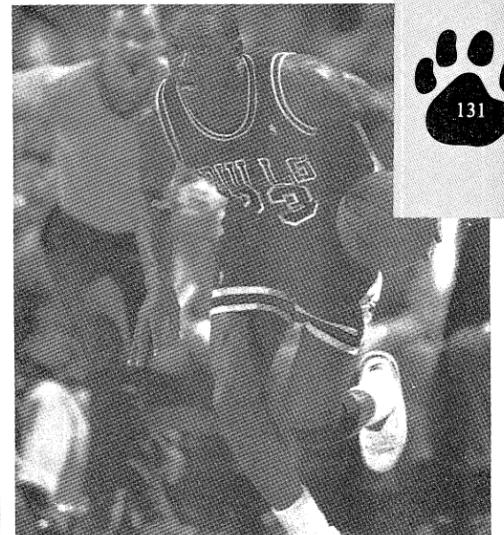

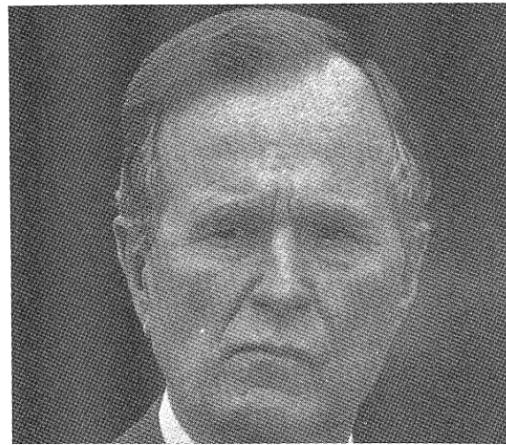

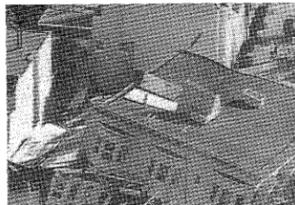

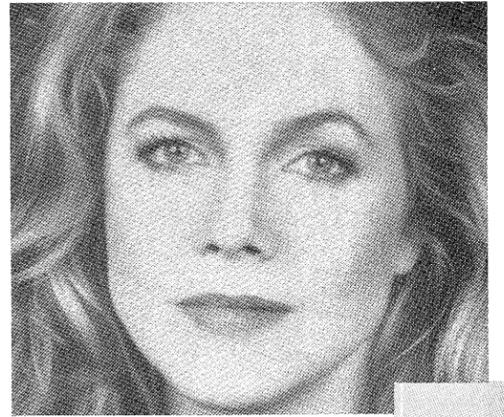

December

Just a month after the Berlin Wall came down and the government's reign over its people, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and Bulgaria followed this pattern. The once powerful government control in these countries crumbled, and the people were free from fear. Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and President Bush met at the Malta Summit this month with ideas of loosening the socialist world in the Soviet Union and sketching an arms-control plan for both countries to follow. Leona Helmsley, "the Queen of Mean," received her sentence for tax evasion in December that added up to $7.1 million in fines, 750 hours of community service, and 4 years in jail.

February

After 27 years of imprisonment in South Africa, Nelson Mandela the renowned political prisoner was released from his confinement. The ice storm of 1990 struck the Champaign-Urbana area severely in February. For nearly 5 days 15000 local residents were without power which wiped out all local schools for 3 days. Many trees in the area took an extreme beating from the ice which caused much of the local damage and took several weeks to clean up. UHS hosted the annual midwinter conference in its newly remodeled school and also celebrated Black History Month with several assemblies sponsored by MIA.

Parting Thoughts . . .

Late Night Thoughts From My Side of the Story

"We get very few true images in our heads, the kind that become more and more vivid for us as if the passage of the years did not obscure their reality, but year by year, drew off another veil to expose a meaning we had only dimly surmised at first. Very probably the last veil will not be removed, for there are not enough years, but the brightness of the image increases, and without the image our lives would be nothing except an old piece of film rolled on a spool and thrown into a desk among the unanswered letters." — Robert Penn Warren

It seems that some stories live on forever. They are ever-conscious reminders of times past that maintain their livelihood in the minds of the few who have experienced them. Thrust into the corners of our memories, they are reborn and grow as they are passed from person to person; like the mind itself these descriptions become better and better the more they are used. It is my sincere hope that through this yearbook we have captured the stories that are an essential part of the time we have spent together in high school. The stories and memories contained in the pages of this book represent our experiences at Urbana High School — sometimes good, sometimes bad, but always influencing our lives.

There are few things that I enjoy more than a good story; that is why I have found my work on this yearbook truly rewarding. I want to take this opportunity to thank all of the yearbook staff members, Mrs. Cox and especially my co-editors, Dan (the Danimal) Larson and Liz Lim, for making the late nights before each deadline bearable. I would also like to thank all of my teachers, coaches, and advisors who inspired me over my four years of high school. To my friends who challenged me, joked with me, played soccer with me, put up with my puns, watched "Fletch" with me, wasted time with me, arrived late with me, and just kicked back and swapped stories with me, what can I say that you don't already know? I hate to sound like a sap, but I want you to know that I care for you jerks and I wish you all the best.

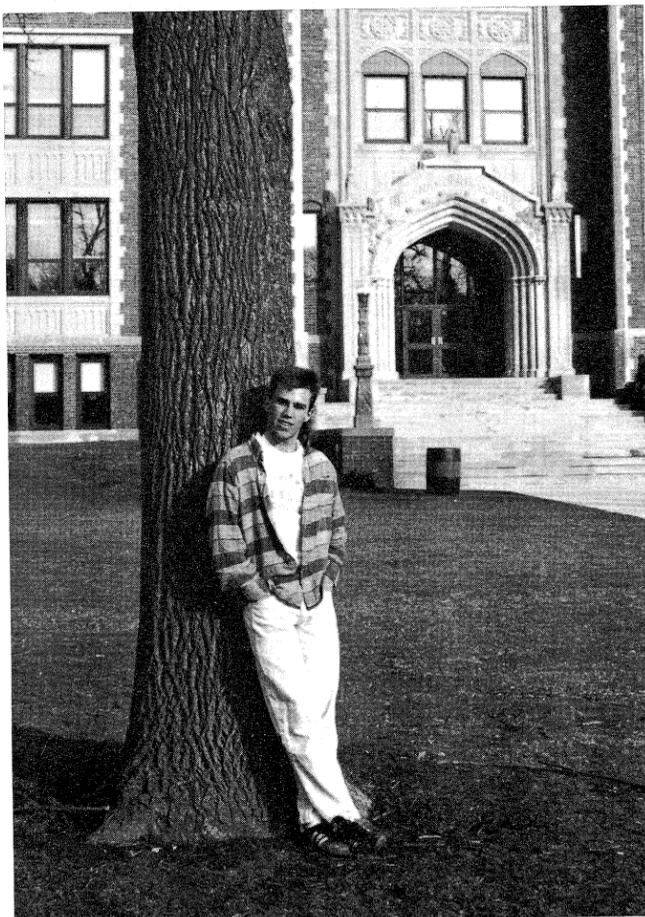

"It's better to burn out than to fade away."

Adam Wilson

Reminiscing the Good and the Bad Times

On July 9, 1989, my fellow co-editors and I embarked on a journey of no return; for that day marked the beginning of our "undying" commitment to the yearbook, and of our first taste of what being a yearbook editor would be all about.

As we arrived late (due to someone's need to buy toothpaste) at our destination, the Midwest Yearbook Camp, we began to wonder just what were we getting ourselves into. During the three days of "intense" work sessions, along with the little escapade that we took, we realized that we knew nothing about producing a yearbook. In fact, it was rather frightening to imagine that we, the three "greenhorns," would be responsible for creating the 1989-1990 Rosemary; the three who did not know what the terms like "copy" and "pica" meant before attending the camp, and after. However, this ignorance was soon shattered by the traumatic experience of living through our first deadline, which involved sleepless nights, stress, and the act of sniffing markers, as a way of galvanizing our fatigued brains. Once that experience was over, we had the pleasure of living through it again, and again, and again, and . . . through the deadlines that followed. Although living through those heinous deadlines

EXPECTATIONS

— Faculty —

"If I had a child who wanted to be a teacher, I would bid him God's speed as if he were going to a war. For indeed the war against prejudice, greed, and ignorance is eternal." -James Hilton

This year's faculty members taught their students several new lessons through example and experience. They taught their students more than just reading, writing, and arithmetic, they taught them the correct way to do a cheer during a pep assembly and even demonstrated how to do a show on WUHS.

The teachers at UHS are as unique as their students. Good natured and humorous are some, strict and demanding are others, but all work with one grand expectation in mind. That expectation being to teach the students at UHS how to get everything out of life that they always wanted.

New Additions

With the completion of the renovation we have added many new students to the student body, but the freshmen are not the only new faces around Urbana High School. With more students than ever, we needed a few extra faculty and staff members to lend a helping hand. Several teachers from the Junior High School, and other teachers from all over Illinois moved over to the High School. Almost 30 new teachers joined the staff, all of which added to the uniqueness of the school in their own way. Such teachers were Mrs. Helm, Mrs. Musser, Mrs. Hanner, Mr. Eyestone, Mr. Myers, and Ms. Greenhalgh packed up their belongings and moved in to make this their new home.

As we welcomed the new faces, we also had to say good-bye to a few of the old ones. We will sorely miss teachers such as Mrs. Conrad and Coach Oaks because of the stability they provided to the students and school in general.

"I am not a teacher, but an awakener."

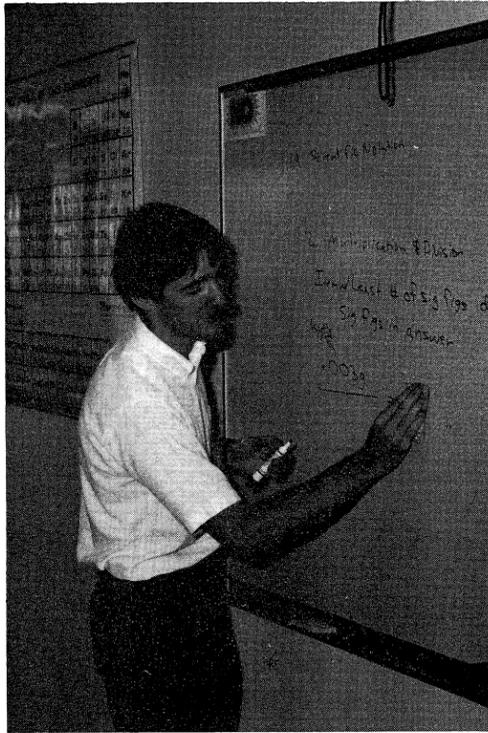

Robert Frost

It took a while for all of the new teachers and even the old teachers to actually get accustomed to the heavily populated halls of

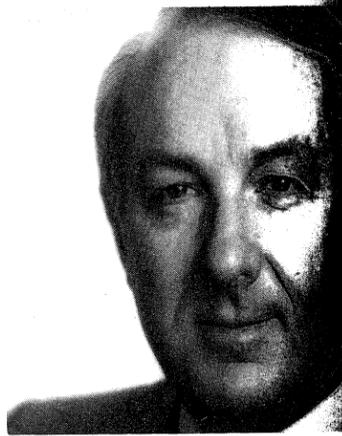

UHS. Many teachers were overheard saying, "Remember when there was actually room for us to walk to our classes?" However, as the year progressed, teachers became more relaxed and less frustrated about the crowding situation.

I can't believe you've come so far in such a few short years — I love you so!

I salute your accomplishments and hope you have a wonderful year in college. Love, Mom. P.S. You haven't changed a bit!

Bobbi,

Your Junior year passed so quickly! As always, life with you has been hectic, interesting and fun. You and your friends, (Zoey, Jackie, and even the Butt Bandit) never allow for a dull moment around the house. It's a joy to watch you grow into fine young adults. I love you, Goob. You're the best.

God Bless You,

Mom

To R.A.K.,

Wishing you and your friends all the best now and in the future. We are very proud of you. Viel Glück! Bonne Chance!
