1975 MAROON Volume 65

Champaign Central High School, Champaign, Illinois

Express yourself!

Expression is a vague term. It's a type of freedom—doing your own thing without realizing it. It's your style, your way of life.

1. Between classes, these students gather in a stairwell by the circle drive. Many students express an interest in having a student lounge, but so far no action has been taken.

2. Senior John Cantrell announces the weekly Central High School news show, while Terry Elkin records the broadcast.

3. Sophomore Tom Uhlir listens to a favorite album. Listening to music is an enjoyable pastime for many students.

4. Mark Everette M.C.'s during the Homecoming assembly in Combes Gym.

Expression goes beyond verbal communication. Expression is sharing information through your actions, any creative actions you choose. Tossing a football, designing jewelry, playing a trumpet in the jazz band. These and countless others could be possible ways you express yourself.

This year's MAROON staff is asking the faculty and students at Central to express themselves in their yearbook, through their words and accomplishments.

1. Sophomore Kurt Mitchum runs equipment in Mr. Bowden's TV production class in room 118.
2. Adjusting the width on a lathe concentration, as Jessie Smith says
3. Guest soloist Bill McKeith performing the fall choral concert.

Summer is different for everyone. True? Yes! Especially here at Central. Over the summer students traveled to all corners of the country.

Results from the school wide Maroon survey indicated that Central students visited all but four States.

Thirty-four per cent of the student body had steady summer jobs. Average pay was $2.00 to $2.50 with most students working 21-25 hours per week. Restaurants, banks, farms, parks, gas stations, and retail stores benefited from Central talent.

Many students took part in school related activities over the summer including band contests, summer school, cheerleading clinics and yearbook workshops. Two hundred athletes practiced for several sports.

And, of course, if they could find the time, people relaxed by swimming, golfing, playing tennis, water skiing and sleeping.

When asked what event over the summer most affected them, many students answered Watergate. Others candidly admitted, though, that they were most affected by school beginning.

1. Coach Tom Stewart issues instructions during one of the football team's practices.

2. Jim Keenan, Mark Westfall, Steve Yount, Mark Schweighart and Tom Moran enjoy a pleasant day in West Side Park.

3. Drivers Ed is the summer school course most often taken.

4. Dave Kuelpman works 35-40 hours per week during summer.

Central "Pops the Reds" to highlight homecoming weekend

Roast 'em? Deflate 'em? Swallow 'em? Regardless of the interpretation, 1974's homecoming theme, "Pop the Reds", generated spirit, decorations, floats, endless plays on words, and a 25 to 6 football victory over Stephen Decatur.

Floats entered in Student Council's car competition depicted everything from popping balloons to popcorn. Rodney Zimmerman's winning entry featured a popping jack-in-the box. As a reward for his creation, he received a $10 gift certificate from Robeson's and an LP from Spritz Jewelers.

Tom Jones, sports editor from WCIA was warmly welcomed as Friday's pep assembly guest speaker.

During half-time ceremonies at Unit 4 Field, Sue Capel was named Homecoming Queen. Her attendants were Sophomore Cari Dunn and Junior Mary Blackburn.

At "Poems, Prayers, and Promises", Saturday night's dance, couples danced to the music of "Fool Killer" in the girls' gym. Queen Capel, joined by Homecoming King Bill Stahl, reigned over the festivities.

Floating sixth period adds variety to school schedule

"The only things certain in life are death and taxes." This may be true outside of school, but at Central students agree there are other certainties.

With unfailing regularity Vice Principals Carl Nelson and James Shifflet patrol the halls; students gather in the stairwells; the counseling office and library dispense passes; bells ring; halls fill during passing periods.

Announcements are made every second hour reminding students of other regular commitments including club meetings, sports events, and special activities.

At 3:00 p.m. lockers slam, halls clear, and janitors appear to prepare school for tomorrow.

2. Everyday the cafeteria provides 200 delicious meals.

3. Carl Nelson and James Shifflet, in the halls checking people for passes are a never ending sight.

4. Every student learns quickly at Central that knowing his locker combination is top priority.

5. Anyone who drives regularly must avoid time limit zones or he will end up with a parking ticket.

Led by "The Hunter" (out to capture the Tigers) and "Old MacDonald" (ready to plow the Tigers) Central students' school spirit mounted as traditional "Beat Urbana Week" progressed.

Three days of activities started Tuesday with hat day followed by farmer duds day Wednesday and maroon day Thursday.

Animals, streamers, balloons, coffins, tombstones, and signs greeted students and staff Thursday morning. For the first time in their Central careers, seniors won class competition with their decorating theme, "Try the Tigers."

Activities climaxed Friday night at Urbana's McKinley Field as the Maroons clobbered the Tigers 27-13. Directed by signal caller Bill Stahl, Central scored three second-quarter touchdowns in less than five minutes to put the game out of Urbana's reach.

In the final seconds of the game, excited Maroon fans began to chant "Na na na/Hey hey/Good-bye," signifying that Maroons had won the cross-town rivalry.

Victory over Urbana caps Coach Stewart's 22nd season

1. Sophomores Tom Skaggs, Vanessa Schumacher, and Michele Butler work on their second-prize winning floor.

2. Farmer clothes dominate fashion Wednesday as Harl Ray, Lisa Ward, and Deanna Daniels prepared for the messy job of "Plowing the Tigers."

3. As the game draws to a close, Central students jeer the Urbana crowd with cries of "We're number 1!"

4. Breaking through the Urbana line, senior halfback Steve Dickerson moves up-field during the second quarter.

Oklahoma, the classic Rogers and Hammerstein musical set in the Wild West of the 1800's, came to life in the Central High Auditorium November 23-24 under the baton of choral director Don Decker.

Playing to a packed house both nights, the play featured 16 musical numbers including four solos by cast members. Beautiful costuming and a very detailed set helped to account for the play's popularity.

Featuring lovers Audrey Remus as Laurie and Keith Gaines as Curly, the show depicted the range war between cattle farmers and ranchers.

Oklahoma was chosen for production because of the fact that it featured a larger cast, thus allowing more participants. Among the other performers were Mark Everette as Jud, Cheryl Cannon as Ado Annie and Nancy Hays as Aunt Eller.

Senior Mark Everette remarked, "Oklahoma was probably the nicest play to be involved in, especially in terms of technical work."

2. Keith Gaines (Jesse), Mark Phillips (Peddler), Ken Gaines (Curley) and Audrey Remus (Laurie) try to figure out a way to avoid fighting.

3. The Oklahoma set was a special design. This attention to detail extended to the silk-screened cover used on the program.

4. Lovers "Laurie" and "Curley" try to find a secluded spot where they can talk privately.

5. In the old West chivalry wasn't dead as Chris Henderson (Ike) demonstrates by helping Susan Berry (Gracie) onto the surry.

6. Cheryl Cannon (Ado Annie) sings to the audience about the sorrow of a lost love.

Students feel pinch as inflation sends all prices skyrocketing

An unelected President and an appointed Vice-President governed the country for the first time in history. Gerald Ford became the Vice-President following the resignation of Spiro Agnew. When Nixon finally succumbed to the pressures of Watergate, Ford was elevated to the Presidency. Nelson Rockefeller was named Vice-President.

Ford's presidency began in the midst of severe domestic crises.

The nation's economy was plagued with three problems: recession, inflation, and a large flow of capital to oil producing nations.

Nationally, unemployment approached eight percent although the rate in Illinois ran two percent lower.

Locally, unemployment was nearly five percent.

America experienced double-digit inflation in 1974, though it subsided substantially as the recession took grip in 1975.

In January, President Ford described the state of the Union as "sick" and proposed an income tax cut to bring the country out of the recession. He also asked Congress to tax oil in order to reduce gasoline consumption and, therefore, the earnings of oil-producing countries.

Local grocery shoppers saw sugar cost $2.99 for five pounds, while low grade hamburger peaked at $1.19 a pound.

The downtown Champaign mall was finally completed in November after months of delay. Most shoppers seemed fairly happy with the results. Century 21 closed due to legal and financial troubles. Ground was broken for a new shopping center north of town which will include a Sears.

The Champaign School Board finally decided to reorganize secondary education into a three-year "middle school" and a four-year high school beginning in the 1977-78 term.

1. Sugar is a major symbol of inflation because of its drastic price increases and its necessity status.

2. Downtown Champaign's mall provides greater shopper convenience despite delays in completion caused by bad weather and labor disputes.

3. Plagued by legal problems, Century 21 remains closed most of the year as new owners search for profitable ways to run its restaurants and bars.

4. The high cost of meat has not significantly reduced demand for it in the diets of most Central students.

Enter Laughing provides Bowden with successful debut

Wanda (Mary Laroque) or Angela (Julie Jaycox)? That was just one of the questions plaguing David (Mark Tymchyshyn) in this year's fall play, Enter Laughing, which was directed by the new drama teacher David Bowden.

Set in New York in the 1920's, the plot centered on the plight of young David. The son of Jewish parents, he wanted desperately to attend drama school. His parents, however, wanted him to pursue a more "honorable" profession.

David's path was strewn with obstacles. Angela, the theater owner's (John Cantrell) lovely daughter, made amorous advances while his old girlfriend Wanda waited for him to decide between them. His troubles were compounded by his inability to memorize lines and his difficulties with his factory job boss (Dana Gray).

Filled with theatrical and physical challenges, the script required 16 scene changes. "It was a miracle we got the right set on stage," commented Gray.

2. At the theatre the job of helping actors like Sam Oldham (Don Baxter) learn their lines fell on Joe Bannon (Pike).

3. Tymchysyn tries to explain his continual tardiness to his boss Dana Gray (Foreman).

4. Getting past Diane Gordon (Miss B), Mr. Marlow's efficient secretary proves hard for Tymchysyn.

5. In an effort to get back in her good graces, Tymchysyn asks Mary LaRocque (Wanda) to sit down for a talk about their future.

Head start on college, jobs possible for early grads

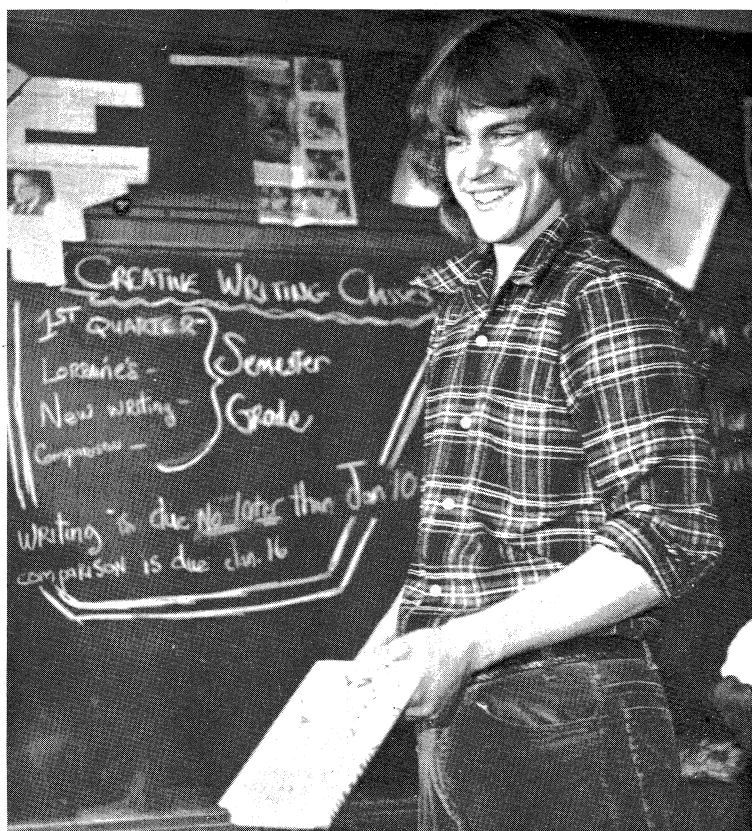

"I gotta graduate, I just can't hack seventy minute classes any more," emphasized senior Jamie Marikos when asked why he was graduating after the fall semester.

Jamie took advantage of an infrequently used option at Central called mid-year graduation. It is open to students who have fulfilled their credit requirements and don't want to take any more courses.

Primary reasons given for mid-year graduation included enrolling in college or starting full-time work to earn money.

Mid-year graduation made it possible for some students to work for six months in order to finance their further education.

"This is why the program was begun; it gives deserving students a chance to get a head start on life," said Carl Nelson, assistant principal.

Over 10 countries represented in 1975 International Supper

"We hope to make $1000 this year, but we'll have to do a lot better next week," said Marion Kessler, after the first night of International Supper. The second evening did attract a large crowd, and the Foreign Exchange club achieved their goal.

Over 15 school organizations donated time and food to this year's Foreign Exchange money drive. Each club chose one country and prepared food typical of that land.

The funds raised will help to pay the cost of sponsoring a student from another country and to finance sending a Central student abroad to study.

Economic recession, rising prices prompt student job hunting

"I do it because I need the money, why else?" This statement was the answer most Central students gave when asked why they have part-time jobs. Most students held jobs after school or at night. Others participated in the C.C.E. program which allowed them to gain work experience, make money, and still get school credit.

With an acknowledged recession in the U.S., money for non-necessities was becoming scarce. Jobs were especially hard to find because many of the University of Illinois students were competing for any available employment.

The most popular jobs seemed to be ones in restaurants and local businesses or as salespersons and secretaries. A few students found jobs offered to them by parents who owned their own business.

In any case, part-time jobs competed for student's spare time as the economy grew worse.

5. Junior Mike Bickers places a hubcap on a spare tire. The C.C.E. program allows Mike and other students to work during school hours.

6. Phyllis Christwell and Cynthia Frame seem to be enjoying themselves folding towels in a local laundry.

Clothes, especially overalls, dominate the year's newest fads

Central students are always forgetting things like pencils, books and reports. Just ask their teachers.

In 1974, however, a possible solution appeared: overalls. This handy, practical style of dressing came on the scene over the summer, and soon nearly everyone had a pair.

Although they may not have improved student organization, they did emerge as the major fad for the school year.

For guys, other trends included denim work shirts with smooth, shiny leather coats over them.

Girls were wearing longer skirts and shorter hair styles.

Language, too, was subject to fads. Conversation was punctuated with such comments as "really," "that's cold" and "I'm hip."

Another fad appeared as the streets surrounding Central were full of cars with gangster whitewalls and personalized license plates, which marked the year as 1975.

1. Rich Moore declares his Christmas was a success when he received a leather coat.

2. Many students order license plates with their initials on them. Can you figure out whose car this is?

3. With all their pockets, overalls offer Lauren Lucas a chance to carry just about anything she wants.

4. Mike Cabutti decides to liven up his work shirt by having a sun embroidered on the back in brightly colored thread.

Women's tennis maintains winning tradition; two go to State

Led by senior Ruth White and junior Kay Ginsberg, the women's tennis team made coach Kris Patton's first season at Champaign Central a winning one.

Netters ended their season with a 9-1 record and sent two women to State. Having won their District matches, White and Ginsberg advanced to State finals, but lost in the first round.

A 4-5 defeat at Lincoln, the only loss of the season, broke the team's eleven-game winning streak, which began last year.

Players praised their competitive experience. White commented, "I have learned a lot of strategy and had a great time."

"I had a lot of fun," added junior Diane O'Neill.

Coach Patton, pleased with her team's accomplishments, was even more enthusiastic about next year with five returning letterwomen.

"If the team works out a lot this summer, we're really going to be in it," Coach Patton predicted.

Cross country takes Twin City title; Rundus goes to State

Plagued by injury and a feeling of disappointment, coach Dike Stirrett's cross country team's 5-5 record was down from last year's 9-4 season.

"The season started out with promise, but those injuries really hurt our morale," senior runner Mike Trippedi summarized.

A mid-season slump, spawned by leg injuries and illness, halted the team's successful start. Finishing strong with three straight dual meet victories, the Maroon's hopes for repeating last year's post season successes were thwarted. They failed to qualify for the State Meet by finishing fifth in the sectional.

Leading the team was senior Rick Rundus who won eight races including the Twin City and the Conference Meet. He finished 44th in the State Meet as Central's lone qualifier.

Backing Rundus were seniors Charlie Owens, Ken Miller, Steve Revak and Trippedi; junior Guy Wolf; and sophomores Dave Rundus and Tom Spence.

Even though the harriers won the Twin City title for the third straight year, the team considered the season below what they might have accomplished.

As senior runner Owens put it, "It was a year of over confidence, disgust, and frustration."

Gridders tie for third in Big 12 with a 5-3-1 record

With a stubborn defense and a dependable offense, Coach Tom Stewart's varsity football team came back from a mid season slump to finish at 5-3-1.

Central started off the season against cross-town rival Centennial. After a bitter struggle, the teams tied 7-7. Central netted its first victory the following week by thrashing Rantoul 27-7.

Although they lost the next three games to Mattoon, Quincy and Bloomington by close margins, the Maroons did not give up.

Senior flanker Mark Schweighart commented, "Looking back to the two Big 12 games we lost, I realized we almost won them both. When the coach said we had the ability to win the last four games, we all believed him."

This belief spurred Central to handily defeat Stephen Decatur in the Homecoming game, 35-6.

Encouraged by this victory, the gridders destroyed Danville 41-8 and the next week overcame Lincoln, in a closer game, 23-14.

Quarterback Bill Stahl passed for 118 yards and led Central to a 27-13 triumph over Urbana in the season finale. This marked the fifth time in six years that Central has been the victor.

Four senior gridders earned All-Big 12 honors: Bill Stahl, quarterback and defensive back; Karl Helfrich, linebacker; Doug Filkin, center; and Tom Cochrane, kicker.

Central's final record was good enough to tie for third in the Big 12, but members of the team felt that they could have finished better.

Senior fullback Steve Capes lamented, "We only defeated ourselves, but we proved we were a good team by our victories."

J.V. season suffers; sophomore gridgers finish above .500

The 1974 J.V. football team finished its rugged six game schedule with one big win over powerful Decatur Eisenhower of the Capital Conference.

"We gained so much experience that our 1-6 record meant nothing", said J.V. coach Jeff Trigger.

Coach Rich Wooley credited the team's poor record to lack of structured practice time. J.V. players do not have team workouts since they are also members of the varsity squad and practice with that team.

According to junior split end Dan Rebecca, "J.V. football is a lot of fun, and the added playing time gives you a chance to show talents to coaches that they might not see in varsity play."

Most players felt the experience gained during the season was profitable.

In a season highlighted by a 15-0 win over Urbana, the senior football team finished with a record of 5-4.

One view of the season from guard John Rawdin commented, "We didn't make crucial plays and were too tentative in our games."

In a season highlighted by a 26-15 win over Urbana, the sophomore football team finished with a good record of 5-4.

One view of the season came from guard John Rawdin who commented, "We didn't make the crucial plays and were too inconsistent in our games."

Coaches Gene Ward and Don

Pittman agreed the team had potential but as Coach Pittman noted, "We didn't jell into a consistently winning unit."

Leading the team was Chris Wicks, who passed for 284 yards, and Tim Mulcahey, who rushed for 475 yards. They and their teammates will attempt to help next year's varsity team.

2. Tailback Rick Wilson explodes through the Bloomington line for a sizeable gain.

3. Quarterback Chris Wicks talks over the game situation in the huddle.

4. Runningback Ken Neither breaks free from an Urbana defender for a first down.

Maroon golfers capture District title; finish season 10-6

Playing in the fall for the first time, linksmen capped their respectable 10-6 season with a first-place finish at the District meet.

Chicago area schools, which dominate State play, were behind the change in season. They have had problems using public courses in the spring.

This change caused difficulty at Central for original golf coach Rich Wooley. Wooley preferred coaching football to golf in the fall and named history teacher Fred Schooley to succeed him.

According to Schooley, "This team had better material than any I have seen at Central."

As expected, the Maroons finished well in their dual meets led by seniors Mike Tennant, Brian McGill, Dan Harrington; junior Sandy Leach; and sophomores Rick Wampler, Jack Hayes, and Tim Murphy. But problems occurred in post-season play.

As senior Brian McGill put it, "We just lost our consistency after winning District." With the lack of consistency the Maroons slumped to eighth place in conference and fifth place in sectionals.

Hours of practice help cheerleaders promote school spirit

Enthusiasm, agility and pep are three requirements needed for a Central cheerleader. The varsity squad consisted of 10 cheerleaders and one mascot. They were chosen in the spring of '74 by a student-faculty committee. The sophomore squad was made up of six girls who were chosen in the fall by their own class and finally selected by a faculty board.

According to Cindy Cler (Max Maroon), "We worked our tails off but it was worth every bit of it."

Cheerleading is a lot of hard work and it involves many hours of practice. During the year the varsity squad worked on their routines at Unit Four Field and along with the sophomore squad spent approximately 180 hours practicing in the girls' gym in preparation for their long and trying season.

Tankers capture conference title; place first in district

Early in October Coach Jeff Trigger was asked how he thought the 74-75 swim team would do during the season. He replied, "If we work hard, we stand a good chance to be one of the best swim teams in the State."

Trigger's prediction came true. Maroons finished with a dual meet record of 9-1; a first place finish in conference, and a first place finish in district. The only blemish on the Maroons dual record came at the hands of conference power Springfield.

Many records were broken this year. Yount broke the Spaulding Pool record in the 100 yard backstroke and 200 freestyle. The Medley Relay team of Thompson, Wolfinbarger, Capes, and Frisbee set a pool record. For the first time a team coached by Trigger defeated Bloomington twice in dual meets.

One-point losses, overtime defeats hurt cagers' season

Undermanned and undersized, victimized by three overtime defeats and one-point losses, and fighting fan apathy, Central's cagers chalked up a 8-16 season for Coach Lee Cabutti's 19th year.

Maroons dropped four of their first five contests including a double-overtime loss to Kankakee MacNamera.

Senior forward Steve Yount noted, "We were down after losing such a close one, but we had hopes of coming back in our next few games."

Yount's hopes were realized as Central won the next two out of three games against Lincoln and Decatur, but lost a one-point decision to Danville.

As the Centralia Tournament rolled around, Central planned to repeat Maroon victories of years past. A double-overtime loss to Rich East and a close defeat by Elgin foiled Central's plans.

Maroons lost their next three games to Rantoul and state powers Urbana and Bloomington, but returned to the winning track by defeating Mattoon handily, 56-39.

Their third double-overtime loss came at Lincoln. Maroons then lost to Danville, but finally won a two-pointer by beating MacArthur 57-55.

They came back the next week to beat Stephen Decatur 65-55 and Kankakee East 44-41. Cagers then faced cross-town rival Urbana and lost 56-43.

Central won none of its final three games to finish the season. Fans agreed the leaders of the team were Bill Stahl, Yount, and Dave Suttle, seniors; Carl Upshaw, Tom Sawtelle, and Jeff Clasey, juniors; and Terry Turner, sophomore.

Girls' basketball ends six-game winning streak at Mattoon

Central's Girls' Basketball A and B teams started their eight-game season by defeating Centennial 34-31 and 35-31, respectively. They finished with a record of 4-4.

Coach Becky Sheridan, an AAU basketball player, was pleased with her teams' progress.

"We had great potential on both squads. We should have a good year next season."

Coach Sheridan was assisted by Janet Hines, another AAU player.

Of the thirty-nine girls who tried out for basketball, 20 were selected for the two teams. Barb Babb was A captain while Marsha Shaw headed the B team.

Combining the girls' and boys' athletic programs meant improved equipment and more practice time for the girls. Practicing three times a week plus playing in scheduled games kept the girls busy.

Senior Barb Babb summarized the feelings of many of her teammates, "I've enjoyed experiencing the meaning of sportsmanship while having the chance to play against good competition."

Due's sophomores finish year with a 15-3 record

Central's sophomore cagers ended their rugged 18-game schedule with an impressive 15-3 record.

According to Coach Charlie Due, "These kids showed a lot of promise, and they will help next year's varsity without a doubt."

Led by Mike Wilson, Randy Strohl, John Pierce, J. C. McGee, Greg Larson, and Joel Luesse, the Maroons compiled one of the best records in the history of sophomore basketball.

When asked the reason for the team's success, Strohl speculated, "We won our games because we worked well together as a team and had balanced scoring from all our starters." The leading scorer was Wilson with an average of 17.8 points a game.

1. Basic skills and techniques are important as Coach Sheridan explains.

2. Junior Gail Shawley guards junior Shirley Casey closely during practice.

3. Sophomore Randy Strohl is confronted with a slight resistance while driving in for a lay-up.

1. Using a stand-up, Paul Palmer struggles to escape his opponent's grasp.

Grapplers show spirit struggling through losing season

After a disastrous 1-16 season in 1974, the wrestling Maroons came back with a 5-13 record.

"I was optimistic at the beginning of the season," said new head coach John Gann, "partially because we had nowhere else to go but up."

A former UI football player and wrestler, coach Gann claimed that he "saw much improvement during the season. However, we couldn't seem to get a winning attitude."

After a strong 4-1 start, the grapplers slumped to eight straight losses before beating Central Catholic in Combes Gym. They then dropped four decisions to finish the season at 5-13.

Leading the team in wins this year were juniors Kevin Stewart and Terry Sparks, with respective records of 12-2 and 12-4.

One of the major problems, according to Gann, was a lack of experience. "Next year, we should be a stronger team," he predicted.

State meet, new coach highlight girls' volleyball season

Central's spirited Girls' Volleyball team went to Illinois' first state tournament with a 12-2 record. Red Bud dashed Central's championship hopes by defeating the Maroons 12-2 in the quarter-final round.

Over 730 teams were eligible for the State title. In order to qualify for the finals, a team had to successfully compete through qualifying rounds which included district, sectional and super sectional. All but eight teams were eliminated.

Coach Twila Lookingbill commented on her team's season, "We had a great year. The State tournament was well organized."

Ninety girls tried out for the team, but only 20 were selected. Thanks to sales of girls' sports programs, each team member was issued a uniform for the first time.

Another first for the girls' sports program was the pep assembly held to send the volleyball team to State. It was the only one ever held solely in honor of Central's female athletes.

1. Alexis Gray bumps a spike in a girls' volleyball game as Theresa Cochrane, Jane Stuff and Lauren Lucas look on.

Central students' winter days highlighted by intramurals

Nearly 15% of the school's population was involved in boys' and girls' intramural volleyball teams sponsored by the Girls PE Department every Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday night in the girls' gym.

According to sponsor Miss Karen Rasmussen, "It gave these kids a chance to participate in something that was both good for them physically and fun."

This year for the first time the boys were allowed to form teams and to invade the girls' gym. The Girls PE Department felt the boys' program was very successful and will continue it next year.

It was a change for the guys who were used to playing volleyball using their palms, which is against the rules in power volleyball. Power volleyball required using clasped fists to hit the ball.

As senior Cam Wallace put it, "It was hard to adjust to in the beginning but most of us picked up the techniques quickly."

1. Power volleyball "bump" is demonstrated by sophomore Jane Dudley.

2. Sophomore Tom Skaggs returns a serve for the Bohemian Beaners in their game against Champaign Central Cross Country.

3. Fighting to return a serve are Lil Fluffers Janet Bates and Elisa Birnbaum.

A Capella gains experience through many performances

For most Central students who didn't spend much time in the catacombs of the music department, the distinction between Chamber Choir and A Capella was a difficult one to make.

The supposed difference lay in the fact that Chamber Choir sang with musical accompaniment while A Capella didn't.

"But," noted director Don Decker, "this is a misnomer. A Capella often performs with accompaniment. In this year's Christmas concert the choir was backed by brass and string choirs."

The major difference between the choral groups was age and experience. While Chamber Choir was composed mostly of seniors, many of the A Capella singers were underclassmen with little stage background.

By the end of the year, however, they were seasoned veterans. Their performances included the four annual school concerts and benefits for churches and service organizations.

Community profits from Afro-American Club activities

Anyone who listened to Central's daily bulletin was aware that the Afro-American club was one of the busiest organizations at CHS.

Throughout the year, club members managed to have fun while raising money for worthy causes. Activities such as bake sales and a talent show helped finance Martin Luther King scholarships for deserving Black students at Central. In addition, proceeds from the club's Christmas dance bought food for needy families.

Club sponsors Coleman Carrodine and Mrs. Carolyn Blackwell took the group on a fall trip to Black Expo in Chicago and helped organize the annual Black Ball. They also aided in planning a dinner for club members' parents.

Because the Afro American club was so active, Mrs. Blackwell stated that "our membership was more selective this year, and we tried to accept people whom we felt would make a commitment to our projects."

5. Concentration on proper marching technique reflects on the faces of drum major Bob Johannsen and Rhonda Morrill.

new director

"Considering the late start we got, I think the band did a fantastic job in putting together a fine show," commented new marching band director Sam Licocci who took over the helm from Richard Dunscomb in 1974.

While the change in leadership resulted in less preparation for band members, they quickly made up for lost time through their daily practice sessions. Rain or shine, the band members spent their early morning hours marching up and down McKinley field in an effort to perfect their act.

This practice paid off during the band's performances at football games and in band competitions. The highlight of the year occurred at the U of I Band Festival where the band placed second out of the twelve schools in the 1000-1600 enrollment division.

The program which merited such honors included the band's renditions of "Let Me Entertain You," "Brian's Song," and "South Rampart Street Parade." Leading the band in these selections were head drum major Bob Johannsen and assistant drum majors Dan Smith and Dana Gray.

The flag and rifle corps, in its third year, again played an integral part in the band program by adding color to each performance. This year's corps was led by senior captain Sue Latter.

Jazz wins Oak Lawn; concert adds pep to assemblies

New jazz band director Sam Licocci took over the job in 1974 with the difficult task of maintaining the band's reputation as one of the best in the State. He was certainly equal to the task.

Under Licocci's direction, the jazz band repeated its Oak Lawn Jazz Festival victory of the year before. The band also won first place honors at Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, and Millikin.

As a result of the band's success, Mayor Wikoff proclaimed a Central Jazz Band Week in February.

Individual standouts on the band included Tim Licocci, Bill Jones, Tony Licocci, and John Dudley who were named to various all-tournament bands.

Several jazz band members were also associated with Central's concert band. Concert band was a regular fixture at basketball games and assemblies. It also participated with the jazz band in concerts. Licocci stated, "Most people think the band's only purpose is to play at basketball games, but we regard the band as an outlet for music education."

Crowds greet Chamber Choir efforts with applause

"The kids in Chamber Choir are really interested in music; they're not just in it for credit." This statement by a choir member echoed the sentiments of Chamber Choir director Don Decker who said that "choir members are selected because of their vocal ability and their dedication."

Near capacity crowds who attended the choir's production of Oklahoma proved the veracity of these statements with standing ovations after each performance.

Other school performances included a fall concert entitled "More Entertainment," the Christmas concert and the spring concert.

The Chamber Choir also joined the A Capella Choir in several local performances throughout the school calendar.

Outstanding individuals in the choir had an opportunity to compete against other schools in state solo and ensemble competition to round out their very active year.

Long hours, innovation pay off for Chronicle Staff

"It's a masterpiece; yes, a masterpiece, with scores of articles and hundreds of uses," wrote CHRONICLE staff columnist Chuck Marvin in praise of Central's weekly newspaper.

And he had reason to be proud. CHRONICLE staffers spent approximately 300 long hours writing each CHRONICLE edition.

Reasons for such devotion are varied. "I have ambitions of becoming a writer, and this helps me out," stated editor-in-chief Paul Watson.

"I meet a lot of new people," added Bobbie Joop.

1975 editions of THE CHRONICLE featured several major improvements. Professionally set type saved hours of work for the staff, and the use of newsprint for the first time gave THE CHRONICLE the "look of a newspaper."

Editors Watson and David Poindexter attended a two-week journalism workshop in Indiana which provided new ideas for THE CHRONICLE.

In Poindexter's words, "I had a great time, but I also learned a great deal."

National Honor Society celebrates its fiftieth anniversary

Champaign Central's Illini Chapter of the National Honor Society celebrated its 50th anniversary this year. Club members bought a new blue and gold banner to commemorate the event.

To be eligible for membership in NHS, students must display leadership, donate service to the school, and prove their scholastic ability. To join as sophomores, students must earn a 5.0 grade average. Juniors must have a cumulative 4.75, and seniors must average a 4.5.

National Honor Society members participated in International Supper by setting up a chili and beans table. Their theme was "The 20's."

During May new members were initiated at a banquet. For the first time in 50 years, a woman, State Representative Helen Satterthwaite was the guest speaker.

"Undoubtedly the banquet was the most important event we've had, especially since we celebrated our 50th anniversary," commented Joe Bannon, secretary.

Other officers included Julie Green, president; Cheryl Bates, vice president; Mark Everette, treasurer.

Spanish Honor Society rewards scholars, serves Mexican dishes

"Todas a una (all of one)" was the motto of the Spanish Honor Society.

The purpose of the society was to recognize achievement in Spanish classes. Students were eligible for membership only after they had taken Spanish for three years and maintained a 4.67 grade average.

The Mariano Azueta chapter of the society, named after a famous Mexican author, was founded in 1965 by Gladys Leal, a former Spanish teacher at Central.

Central's 110 member group was led by sponsor Travis Poole and president Carey Fletcher.

One of the major activities of the club was the sponsoring of a table at the International Supper. The club's Mexican table, featuring arroz con pollo, ensalada verde, and empanaditas, was a crowd favorite.

Drama club boosts membership to 35, gets new sponsor

"Drama Club is a loosely organized club," explained Dave Bowden, sponsor. "Anyone who was in either Enter Laughing or MacBeth is automatically in Drama Club. Anyone interested in dramatics is welcome to join."

In Bowden's first year at Central, he organized and directed the fall and winter plays. Bowden continued, "Perhaps next year we can have more social and organizational activities."

Election Board

Though many students participated in 15 school elections this year, the effort necessary to prepare for them was considerable.

Champaign Central's election board handled all elections including those for student body officers and class officers. The board's duties included publicizing all elections, distributing ballots and recording the results.

Voting procedures varied for local, State and national elections.

Sponsored by Mrs. Miller, the board consisted of four members from each grade. For each election, a person had to turn in a petition with signatures from his or her class. After the election, the petitions were resubmitted for each grade.

Council gets a new sponsor, attempts to battle apathy

Student Council started the year with many goals and a new sponsor, Robert Miller. Among the first of these goals was the organization of homecoming.

Other activities sponsored by Council included the Vice-Versa Dance, Christmas door decorating, and 50's Day. To finance these projects, Council sold refreshments at football games.

Traditional requests for hour lunches, a smoking area and a student lounge again confronted Council. And, as in past years, these issues were not resolved.

Student representatives had mixed emotions about the accomplishments of the 1974-75 Council. Ty Helms stated that "as far as organization goes, this year's Council was better than in past years." President Mark Sterkel added, "If Council gets over its apathy and raises more funds, it might become the effective organization the students want to see."

Election Board registers students for 15 school elections

Though many students exercised their right to vote in 15 school elections this year, few realized the time and effort necessary to prepare for and to run each election.

Champaign Central's Election Board handled major elections including those for student council, cheerleaders and class officers. The Board was responsible for publicizing all elections, making and then counting ballots and recording the names of registered voters.

Voting procedures were designed to imitate those of local, State and national elections.

Sponsored by Mrs. Sue Augustine, the Board consisted of four members from each class. To be a member, a person had to turn in a petition with at least fifty signatures from his or her class. Board members had to resubmit petitions for each year of eligibility.

4. Mary Tymchyshyn and Peggy Anglin talley-up votes after an election.

5. Karen Myers and Lori Marcellus exercise their right to vote.

"The main objective of German Honor Society is to study German culture, stated Lottie Nast, club sponsor.

Students who have taken one year of German and received at least a 4.7 grade average in the class are eligible for membership.

In the Society's second year of existence, 25 members held a Christmas party at Mrs. Nast's house and enjoyed studying German customs.

Members also participated in the International Supper, introducing unusual German dishes to the crowd.

In March newly initiated members elected officers and made plans for next year.

"Guten Tag" was the greeting one would hear if one walked into a German Club meeting. The 20 members of German Club participated in International Supper, made an advent calendar for the German room and celebrated Christmas at a party.

The Christmas party, held at sponsor Lottie Nast's house, included members from German Club and German Honor Society. The group played German games, ate German food and watched filmstrips on German Christmas customs. Mary Anderson, a German Club member, found that "German Christmases are more festive and traditional than those of the United States."

German Club sold concessions at a basketball game to earn money to buy supplies for International Supper. German Club's traditional menu at the International Supper had been bratwurst, but because the price was so high, they served viener heckbraten (a kind of meat loaf), German potato salad, sauerkraut and German chocolate cake this year.

When asked to comment on German Club, Mrs. Nast said, "Its purpose is primarily to develop an interest in German people, language and customs."

FHA-HERO busy sewing jackets, fulfilling pledge to send kids to camp

Every day, a few girls rummaged through Central's waste baskets looking for aluminum pop cans. They were not scavengers; they were FHA-HERO (Future Homemakers of America—Home Economics Related Occupations) members working to fulfill their pledge to send children to camp this summer for Project Impact.

Mrs. Walker, FHA-HERO sponsor, explains the project. "We're trying to leave an impact on the members and children that will help them in the future."

Money making activities for the project included a sock hop, dinners, candy sales, and pop can collections.

President of FHA, Gemma Miner, is also chairman of Project Impact. She commented, "This is great and I'm glad to see it happening."

The camp has two one-week sessions, one for boys and one for girls.

Children are recommended by social workers in the Unit Four district and are then chosen by a committee of FHA members.

With new officers elected every semester, FHA was always busy.

FFA travels to national convention, plants soybean crop

"Considering what I got from the convention, it was money well spent," commented Future Farmers of America chapter president Mark Hinds.

Mark, along with advisor Lowell Hillen and six other club members, spent $60 to travel to the national FFA convention in Kansas City, Missouri, October 15-18. Highlights of the convention included speeches by President Ford and agriculture secretary Earl Butz.

The convention was only one of many activities of this club which consisted of thirty members from Central, Centennial, and Urbana. A major project was the maintenance of a twenty-five acre soybean crop which provided the club with approximately fifteen hundred dollars. Much of this money went into the upkeep of the club's array of farming equipment.

The club sponsored a grain and poultry show which attracted FFA members from Douglas, Ford, and Champaign counties. In addition, club members initiated water safety and hunting safety programs.

FSA, OO help tomorrow's secretaries gain skills, practice

ASDFGHJKL: @. Recognize these letters? Ask one of the Future Secretaries of America, and she could probably tell you that they're the typewriter's second row.

This club, affiliated with the National Secretaries Association, was sponsored by Margery Davenport and made members more aware of secretarial skills and duties.

During the year, the club met monthly, visited the Plato lab at the U of I, and participated in the International Supper.

Many FSA members were also enrolled in Office Occupations, a daily class taught by Mrs. Davenport. Members learned advanced office skills and gained practical experience through jobs.

The class raised 300 dollars for its spring employer appreciation banquet.

Fantastique French club takes trips to Chicago and Paris

Viva l'association Française!

The French Club was active and strong this year. According to French Club members, one of the reasons for this strength was their new advisor Mrs. Catherine Madjack, new French teacher.

The club was extremely busy with activities ranging from fund-raising to interest projects. Fund raising projects included a bake sale on Halloween and a candy cane sale in December.

In October, the club went to see "The Mad Adventures of Rabbi Jacob," a French farce, and took a cooking lesson from a professional French chef, Madame Vess.

In December the club went to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago to see an international Christmas exhibit and to eat a French meal.

Unfortunately, club members agreed that the trip was a flop. For Christmas, the club went caroling (in French, of course).

Several members went to Paris in March for what they called "the most exciting trip they had ever taken."

Arguing: creativity and art for Central's debaters

"Superb" was the word Dave Bowden, debate coach, used to describe his squad. The 1974-75 debaters argued over the topic, "Resolved: that the United States should significantly change the method of selecting Presidential candidates."

Ken Kadel, a U of I graduate student who helped coach the team stated, "The debaters were quite good considering their topic which was poorly worded and too vague."

The team consisted of four varsity and six novice debaters who won many awards including the Peoria Richwoods trophy. Novices copped the Bloomington trophy. Seniors Joe Bannon and Mark Everette were largely responsible for the team's success as each won several first place honors.

This success was not unearned. Debaters sometimes worked three hours per day in preparation for upcoming tournaments.

While entering the northwest doors of Central, you may have heard a strange sound coming from the girls' gym. You might have been disappointed when you found out that it was only the Junior Gym Leaders blowing frantically on their whistles in an effort to master the skills of officiating.

Learning to referee was only one of the many skills a gym leader acquired. She had to pass a written exam on all major sports, play games well enough to demonstrate physical skills, and most importantly, she had to exhibit leadership traits which qualified her for the program.

A gym leader had to be recommended by her sophomore P. E. instructor and two other teachers. She also had to have a "C" average.

According to gym leader Lynn MacFarlane, "It's not that hard but you sure have to work to learn the rules for all those games."

Mrs. Dorothy Miller, class sponsor, noted that one of the rewards of being a gym leader was the training and experience that the leaders gained for future job opportunities.

For the eighth consecutive year, senior gym leaders have played an important part in Central High School's P.E. activities. Mrs. Dorothy Miller, head of the program, started with only six leaders in 1966, including one of the present P.E. teachers, Kris Patton. It has since ballooned to thirty-eight members.

"This is one of my best groups ever. They're excellent! Of course I expect each year's group to be more advanced than the last, but that just comes from experience. Hopefully, through this experience, we'll be able to improve our program even more."

Senior leaders work with the girl's Intramural Board and provide a foundation for the total girls' athletic activities. They also serve as assistants to all of the P.E. teachers in the department. Mrs. Miller believes that through hard work and dedication the program has become the best in Central Illinois.

Through Mrs. Miller's program, girls gain leadership experience and learn how to deal with people in a variety of situations. Past gym leaders have praised the experience as valuable preparation.

Senior Barb Babb emphasized, "I plan to go into P.E. for a career, I feel very strongly that the gym leading program steered me in that direction."

Maroon Staffers focus on forms of student expression

EXPRESS YOURSELF—two simple words which inspired over 600 photos and thousands of lines of creative copy.

Central students expressed themselves in a variety of ways. Whether their expression came through words, music, or pictures, MAROON staffers were there to record it.

The MAROON staff captured the language of students and faculty by emphasizing quotes in their articles and captions.

Led by new advisor Sandy Friedland and editor Mike Tomlin, the staff attempted to compile an accurate and informative record of 1974-5 while maintaining the MAROON'S national reputation. Awards won by the 1974 MAROON placed it among the top high school yearbooks in the country.

The MAROON'S reputation with the students, however, is most important, and the 1975 theme was designed to entertain the student subscribers. As Editor Tomlin emphasized, "There's nothing wrong with putting out a yearbook that's journalistically sound, but it should also appeal to students."

tributed to the education of many Central students.

Principle aims of the club were to raise the money needed to send a CHS student to another country and to supply the placement fees for a foreign student spending a year at Central. This year, Penny Cross traveled to Spain while Swedish student Gosta Ljungdahl spent the year at Central.

In addition to making Gosta feel at home, club members also helped other foreign students adjust to American life.

Transporting students around the globe was an expensive venture, and the club earned most of its funds through the annual international supper.

The club also hosted area exchange students from other schools at fall and spring get-togethers.

Mrs. Marion Kessler, club sponsor, stated, "It's a pleasure to work with these kids because they run the club. I just advise them."

Working to develop a new image, Pepettes proudly displayed a new Max Maroon applique on their sweaters. This symbol, designed by senior Evan Munnis, also appeared on the girls' booster buttons.

Their dance routines were updated by the addition of hats, canes, and Scott Joplin's "The Entertainer."

Pepettes paid for their new accessories by selling Lamb Chops shampoo in September, miniature Max Maroons in October, and CHS pencils in November.

Their advisor, Karen Rasmussen, worked to turn the Pepettes into "the most cooperative and talented squad ever."

Bowden's I.E. team achieves success despite little experience

To new Individual Events coach Dave Bowden, the 1974-5 season brought mixed emotions. As Bowden stated, "the interest in I.E. at Central wasn't as great as I had expected, but the talented people who joined the team made up for the lack of numbers."

The team, composed mostly of sophomores and juniors, worked hard to offset their lack of experience. Throughout the seven month season, team members put in as much as ten hours of practice per meet in categories ranging from original comedy to extemporaneous speaking.

This work yielded honors including a third place finish out of twenty five teams in the Peoria Richwoods tournament and the Big 12 championship.

Bowden expressed the hope that his future teams could, "add quantity to quality: a hard combination to come by."

Picture yourself in a chemistry class. You've been taking a nap when suddenly the teacher calls on you to tell him what  $\text{CsNO}_3$  equals. Before you can open your mouth to say you don't know, a girl walks into the room and hands the teacher a pass with your name on it.

Your "savior" might have been one of the VOA's or one of the counseling guides who served as messengers for the attendance and counseling offices.

Guides also alphabetized, checked career showcase attendance, and answered the phone for Mrs. Virginia Garland, secretary of the counseling office.

VOA's (volunteer office assistants) performed such duties as picking up attendance cards, making out monthly class reports, and otherwise assisting the secretaries and the administration.

Both groups of girls were screened prior to being allowed to join the clubs. Mrs. Garland termed them "an extremely responsible group of girls."

Quill and Scroll honors journalism students for outstanding work

"This organization used to be very active," explained Quill and Scroll sponsor Evelyn Kovar, "but interest has waned."

Sponsors of MAROON and Chronicle select outstanding journalism students for Quill and Scroll at the end of their junior year. Members chose officers, and made plans for the one thing that holds some clubs together: fundraising.

President Mary Verdeyen felt that "Quill and Scroll is more of an honor roll than a functional organization."

In recent years both the Chronicle and MAROON have won state and national awards for their efforts, and the members and sponsors of Quill and Scroll have played a large part in those achievements.

Board's intramural program proves to be a "definite success"

For the second year of its existence, Mrs. Dorothy Miller's Intramural Board worked diligently and proved to be successful.

I.M. Board meets the first Wednesday of every month organizing all women's intramural sports in volleyball, basketball, gymnastics and softball.

Senior and Junior Gym Leaders helped out a great deal, but the main responsibility belonged to the Board. Club positions consisted of two presidents, a vice-president, a secretary and members at large.

Members are chosen in spring and serve the following year. Sophomore representatives were elected in the fall. Elections were held during the gym classes, and each girl voted for a member of her choice.

Mrs. Miller stated, "I feel the program has been a definite success, considering that over three hundred girls participate."

1. MAROON organizations editor Jordon Morrow checks copy for the student council page.

2. Club officers Mary Verdeyen and Debbie Pheris pass out club pins.

3. Handling the paste-ups for the editorial page is one duty of Chronicle co-editor David Pointdexter.

4. Presidents Diane Hunter and Diane O'Neill listen to the minutes of the last meeting.

5. Jackie Burnett and Kate McMahon look over the schedule of girls intramural basketball games.

Academics

Dr. Fleener guides administrative team through another busy school year

"The role of the secondary school principal is an evolving one with pressures from parents, kids, and other principals. Many would like to maintain the inadequate status quo. Others are dissatisfied with the lack of skills in our finished product.

"Others urge us to teach communications, human relations, environmental awareness, and skills for survival. They say we should prepare students for every aspect of their lives out of high school.

"We are doing many of these things. However, the secondary school principal needs to find ways to prove that fact. In so doing, he will prove the educational value of the school and its program.

"Needless to say, the high school principal's role will be more complex. It must be able to adapt to the uniqueness of each student's immediate and future needs."

Bernard P. Fleener
Principal

"The changing role of today's woman causes me to emphasize urgently the need for a high school girl to prepare for a career as well as to plan for being a wife and mother. Statistics show a greater number of working wives and mothers, and more widows than widowers. Many mothers find themselves 'lost' when their children leave home. Thus, specialized training and career goals are vital to women."

Bertha Darsham
Assistant Principal

"This year, as in my past 12 years at Central, I have enjoyed working with students in a variety of school situations. We have faced the challenges of schedule conflicts, spectator buses to away games, I.D. pictures, lockers and the prom. It is a pleasure to work with this group of students and their ideas."

Carl L. Nelson

Assistant Principal

"The best way any person can relate to another person is through communication. We must listen fully to what the other person has to express and then try to understand it. Only then can we relate better to the student and his problems. However, he must be willing to communicate his ideas before we can relate to them."

James D. Shifflet

Assistant Principal

"Teaching business education has greatly influenced my relationships with students. I advise them to acquire the knowledge and skills necessary to enable them to spend their working years in enjoyable careers which best utilize their talents. I consistently urge them not only to finish high school but to take as many vocational courses as possible."

Dorothy Munger

Assistant Principal

Counselors try to help students to better help themselves

"The counselor's role is to help the students to better help themselves," explained Mrs. Doris Clements, head counselor. Personal problems, schedule changes, future plans, and graduation requirements were some of the topics students often brought to counselors.

Many students sought advice on colleges, careers, and background courses needed for each. The Guidance Information System, a Time Share Corporation machine new to the department this year, provided information concerning occupations, colleges, and costs.

Counselors are kept quite busy. Each day 75-100 students seek their counselors' help. First semester alone almost 550 schedule changes passed over counselors' desks.

Creative classes, department head give math new angles

"For each person, there exists a unique place in our world. The mathematics department offered courses to help each student to find that place," reflected Mrs. Joyce Hill, new instructional department head.

While college algebra students considered problems of existence and uniqueness, students in Miss Potter's geometry classes visited Spaceland, an excursion calling for "real imagination."

Technical math students made good use of two new calculators in figuring out how much it would cost to paint and tile Central's third floor hall.

Many students found the clarity and brevity of mathematical language a satisfying means of expression.

Science students' senses extended by microscopes, weather apparatus

Science courses have two extremely important functions for students, according to Al Smith, science instructional department head.

"First, science itself is an attempt to build a reasonable picture of the physical world we live in. Second, our courses help many students prepare for further formal education in science areas."

Many students are interested in the field which offers studies from Advanced Physics to Environmental Science.

One of the achievements of the year was the installation of meteorological equipment in a few classrooms, allowing students to read and to make weather predictions without consulting one of the local forecasters.

Independent study courses such as Advanced Chemistry gave students the chance to carry their scientific inquiry to the college level.

Smith emphasized, "The science staff hopes students will find that science courses help them to interact more with other people and their environment. We hope more understanding produces more enjoyment."

Staff provide

1. Gerald Webb: Biology, Anatomy, Physiology, Microbiology, Chemistry. B.S.Ed, M.S. Southern Illinois.

2. Allan Smith: Physics, Independent Study. B.S. Ed., M.S. Oregon. Chess Club.

3. Junior Gary Herzog records his results during an experiment in Chemistry.

Staff provides services for students with special problems

As a comprehensive high school, Central provided counseling and assistance to students with special personal problems or physical disabilities.

Two social workers, Sherry Boyer and Julie Griffith, met with some students on a regular basis. Others sought their advice only during times of acute need.

Cherene White met daily during second hour with hearing-impaired students. She tailored her tutoring sessions to meet each student's classes and individual needs. She maintained weekly progress reports on each student and counseled teachers so they could best assist students with hearing problems.

CHS Social studies department clashes with school board

Usually devoted to the study of controversy, Central's social studies department found itself in the midst of one this year.

Board of Education member Harold Baker charged that sophomore American history classes focused more on "sociology and philosophy" than on "facts and dates."

History teachers met with the Unit Four Board in March to discuss Baker's objections.

"We are committed to the belief that every child should be encouraged to think clearly, logically and independently in order to gain an appreciation of the facts and ideals which made this country great," stated Les Bowman, instructional department head.

Bowman cited his department's continuing efforts to meet the Board's dictum that "differentiation of instruction is imperative if individual needs are to be met."

"We are attempting to develop conceptualized mini-courses," Bowman explained. "We've already instituted six mini-courses in U.S. History and hope to have more."

World History classes will include regional mini-courses by Fall, 1976. Students will be able to elect areas of interest.

'Stacked' library provides students with resources for work, leisure

Books about witchcraft and the occult were this year's fads in the library. "We can't keep enough of them," said Al Grace, the head librarian at Central. Books about science and social science, including economics, sociology, ecology, and crime have also been popular this year, according to Grace.

Central's library contains over 12,000 books, 600 filmstrips, and approximately 200 short sound films. Grace hoped to give students more say in what is purchased. A showcase by the Little Theatre was provided to help promote the library.

New business machines give students more experience

Business was not just for the business-minded. According to Dorothy Munger, department chairman, classes were provided for any student regardless of his goals.

College-bound students could learn typing and note taking skills to help them through college while those interested in working after graduation were able to get the training necessary to begin their occupations.

The Office Occupations (OO) program, offered through Cooperative Career Education, gave students a chance to get credit for working in offices during their last year of high school.

FSA (Future Secretaries of America) and OO classes visited the National office building of McDonald's Restaurant in Oakbrook, Ill. and Indiana Bank of Indianapolis in the fall.

New equipment added to the department — including key punch machines, calculators, electric typewriters, and Stenorettes—gave students a better opportunity to work with business machines.

"We hope our students will gain better self-understanding, explore family relationships and career possibilities, clarify their values, and learn basic skills for living and working," stated Mrs. Helen Walker, home economics teacher.

Classes encouraged students to express themselves through cooking, sewing, interior design, and creative play.

Students enrolled in Interior Design combined wood, fabrics, and plants to create "unusual effects" in the Building Trades class Project House.

Child Development classes sponsored eight-week long play groups for pre-schoolers, and Central's halls echoed with verses of "The Wheels of the Bus."

Interior designing, cooking, child care increase life skills in Home Econ.

New lab helps to develop foreign language skill

The Foreign Language Department, with 33 percent of Central's students enrolled in its program, encouraged students to study the language and culture of people other than their own.

German, French, and Spanish were taught this year with the help of a new lab in room 007.

Two new teachers were added to the staff. Catherine Majdiak replaced Janet Sandor as the French teacher, and Debbie Black was added as a part-time Spanish and French teacher.

English Department employs new registration procedure

"Express yourself" could well have been the theme of the English department, noted Mrs. Shirley McGreal, instructional department head. Students expressed themselves out loud, on film, over the radio, on video tape, on stage, and in writing.

These communication opportunities were offered in the 38 semester-long English electives. MAROON and CHRONICLE, Film Club, dramatic productions, and the debate and individual events squads were extensions of the department and were sponsored by English faculty members.

An experimental pre-registration procedure was tested this year. English teachers conferred individually with each student about his or her English courses and made written comments to parents about each student's choices for next year.

"We hope to increase our opportunities to explain our curriculum to both students and their parents so that we can better meet each individual's needs," explained Mrs. McGreal.

Three new teachers, David Bowden, Mrs. Sandy Friedland and Mrs. Cathy Thurston, joined the English faculty. The department also acquired a mini-studio for video recording and monitoring.

Varsity coaching, health, driver ed, safety round out PE teaching load

The schedule of a Central student almost always included classes in either health, safety or driver education. In the words of instructional department head Thomas Flanigan, health classes were designed "to give the student knowledge relating to physical and mental health, ecology and consumer and sex education." These are useful to the individual in the adult world.

Classes in safety and driver education provided students with the basic knowledge required to safely operate motor vehicles.

Girls' PE features tennis, basketball, fencing, football and sixteen more

P.E. was regarded by many students as a break from the mental tensions of the day and as an opportunity to develop their physical talents.

Central's girls' P.E. department offered over 20 different activities during 1974-5. These activities included instruction in track and field, tennis, field hockey and gymnastics. Mrs. Dorothy Miller, department head, cited the motto of the girls' P.E. department: "A girl for every sport, and a sport for every girl."

Central's male students got their exercise through activities such as basketball, weightlifting, softball, and badminton.

CCE students get on-the-job training for future work

One of every ten Central High School students worked part-time at a Cooperative Career Education (CCE) or a prevocational job.

CCE students attended school half-day, during which they took one course related to their job. The remainder of their school day was spent working. Students earned credits toward graduation while getting on-the-job training.

"Prevocation, a CWT (Cooperative Work Training) type program, doesn't require a related class like CCE," stated Jack Higgs, head of prevocational training. Students were eligible for post-graduation training through a division of the Vocational Rehabilitation Office. This could have included on-the-job training, trade school, or college.

CCE gave high school students a work record to use as job references after graduation. This program included students who were not ready to graduate, but who had taken all the courses they wanted from the regular school program.

Many students got the chance to work in business, sales, trades, and other jobs to help them decide on a profession. According to Claude Murphy, program director, students learned from jobs they didn't enjoy as well as from those they did enjoy.

In November, those involved in CCE went to Peoria for their annual field trip. They toured several offices, stores, and businesses.

CHS art students express themselves with clay, silver, acrylics, charcoal

Early American Crafts was a new course offered both semesters in the art program. It dealt with the history of tools and skills of early American crafts. It was hoped a greater appreciation for the art developed when students learned to make their own crafts.

According to art teacher John Lindstrom, of the 16 art classes offered this year, Pottery and Jewelry were the most popular.

Other courses taught included Drawing, Painting, Print Making, Sculpture, and Metal Design.

Students in Miss Anne Miller's design and drawing classes kept daily journals which helped to sharpen their perceptions for expressing themselves artistically.

3. Robert Pittman: Ind. Arts; B.S. McPherson; M.Ed. Illinois.

Industrial Arts use showcase to help promote department

"Industrial arts are for everyone," proclaimed the display in the showcase during the week of January 6. And the department's 26 courses did appeal to a cross section of CHS students as more women joined the ranks of previously all-male courses.

Some students took industrial education because they wished this area to be their life work. Others chose industrial education as an avocation or purely as an exploratory avenue, according to Charles Griest, department chairman.

Industrial education, a practical art, dealt with materials, tools and processes of construction as well as maintenance and servicing of products.

"It was hoped more relevance would be added to the students' education—not only in this area but in the more theoretical or academic courses as well," Griest emphasized.

OE, EMH emphasize practical skills, consumer education

Linking basic skills to practical life experiences continued to be one of the major goals of both EMH and OE.

Creative classroom activities, often focusing on topics of current interest, were tailored to meet each student's needs.

Mrs. Ellen Cook and Mrs. Leslie Wood combined original teaching techniques with patience and enthusiasm to encourage their EMH students to develop their abilities.

Miss Susan Smith, fresh from the Peace Corps in Thailand, joined Thomas Klumb in the OE program. They taught their students to apply knowledge gained in the classroom to everyday problems.

Many OE students worked half days with the CCE program.

1. Thomas M. Klumb: O.E. math, U.S. history, consumer ed., English, vocations. B.A. Arkansas; M.S.E. Arkansas State; E.A.D. Illinois. COED.

2. Susan E. Smith: O.E. English, consumer ed. B.A. St. Olaf.; M.A., Illinois.

3. Leslie Wood: E.M.H. math, vocations, consumer ed. B.S. Illinois.

4. OE students Carol Foster, Bryan Brown, Dennis Dearing, Christy Lookingbill, Phyllis Combest, celebrate Halloween with a party.

5. Ellen Cook: E.M.H. English, reading, U.S. history. B.A. Milikin; M.A. Illinois State.

6. Christy Lookingbill prepares to treat Mrs. Munger and Mrs. Eadie to a scare as OE students trick-or-treat in the office.

Independent Study students meet self-determined goals

"Independent Study gives students a chance to work beyond the course offerings in particular areas," stated Allen Smith, program head.

Although the students met together in room 314, each one had goals that he or she set up with the help of Smith and cooperating faculty.

Fields of study varied widely from chemistry to humanities and art. Students explored the areas in which they were interested with methods that best suited them. Some wrote themes while others did special projects like growing crystals.

The course was good for those who knew what they wanted to study and could work independently.

Teachers and administrators had more paperwork and meetings than usual this year as Central prepared to be evaluated by the North Central Association.

Schools belonging to the Association are assessed every seven years to insure their maintaining high educational standards. Evaluating teams included superintendents, principals, department heads and teachers from colleges and other high schools in the Midwest.

Prior to the April 14-17 evaluation, each department conducted exhaustive studies of curriculum, materials, and working conditions and made recommendations for improvements. Interdisciplinary committees of teachers and administrators met to examine extracurricular activities, the physical plant, publications, and other aspects of life at Central.

Following its visits, the North Central team presented both oral and written reports which pointed out strengths and weaknesses in the educational process.

Seniors enjoy a time to relax and look at past escapade

"Memorable," "busy," and "a relief," wrote seniors, describing how they felt about their last year at Champaign Central.

They came to Central three years ago with both anticipation and anxiety. As juniors they got their drivers' licenses, chose class rings, found first jobs and many suffered through the PSAT's, SAT's, and ACT's.

As they completed their final year, many looked back on it as being a busy one. 131 seniors chose to work half-days through the CCE program, a combination work-study schedule. 72 seniors attended school partial day. They were able to spend either the morning or afternoon away from school without having a job. Students who stayed all day worked on completing graduation requirements. Many were heavily involved in the clubs or other curricular activities.

A poll taken by Maroon staff found that 80% of the graduating class plan to further their education either by entering college or trade school. The rest plan to find employment, to travel or to marry.

When asked what they liked best about Central, senior responses varied from "clowning around with teachers" and "the interesting variety of people in school" to "the rotating schedule."

Here they sit, stuck in between sophomores and senior

"You know that computer did it again! It messed my schedule all up," moaned Chris Walker, junior. From that point on, the school year presented one challenge after another to the class of '76.

This year was perhaps the busiest of their lives for many juniors. Their required courses included English, health, and drivers' education. Many took the PSAT-NMSQT's and the SAT's.

Juniors participated in varied extra-curricular activities such as athletic teams, music groups, school clubs, and publication staffs. Many of the '76ers got their first jobs.

Junior class officers were president, Ingrid Basler; vice president, Joni Kmetz; treasurer, Melissa Hartley; secretary, Gail Brown; and sponsor, Jim Beck.

Officers organized decorating the second floor hall for "Beat Urbana" week and numerous fund raising projects to support the junior-senior prom. They saw unifying the class as their most important job.

When asked about his junior year, Richard Barbercheck responded philosophically, "This has been the best year that I have ever had, because I felt more like a participant than just a member."

Sophs cap juniors in Beat Urbana week hall competition

Sophomores had sole possession of Central's halls for the first time in the school's history. August 27, the class of 1977, 496 strong, began their high school careers without upperclassmen to sell elevator tickets or point out the escalator.

Sophomores this year were required to take safety, basic communication, and U.S. history. In safety, which they must pass prior to taking drivers' education, they learned the rules of the road. Basic communication brought them before their peers and helped them develop self-expression. The U.S. history course, which was criticized by some parents, was questioned by some sophomores and praised by others.

Sophomores have been enthusiastic in many of Central's organizations and activities. In the fall they efficiently began to build their class treasury through bake-sales. Their efforts paid off as the sophomore hall decorations topped the juniors' entry during "Beat Urbana" week.

Charles Evans and Fred Schooley, sophomore class sponsors, were always there when they were needed and found the class to be "a very organized and cooperative group."

What Are You Doing After School?

Some of your friends will be going away to college. Others to jobs. What are your plans?

If you haven't made any yet, consider a job with today's Army.

It's a chance to catch your breath. A chance to find out what you want out of life before plunging in. A chance to find yourself before beginning the daily routine of a regular job, or another four years of study.

Think of a job with today's Army not as an interruption in your life, but as the beginning of a meaningful career.

Sergeant Jesse Jones explains Army opportunities to seniors Jane Stuff, Doug Filkin, Susan Scanlan, and Cam Wallace.

Hours of work by MAROON staff produce 1975 Central yearbook

"... One's definitions, assumptions, and metaphors determine what 'facts' one will uncover, ... the world is in a constant process of change and we can never 'see' it all; each of our senses is a censor ... our language is our prison," state Neil Postman and Charles Weingartner in Teaching as a Subversive Activity.

Language may be our prison, but it is also our major form of expression. We hope that the hundreds of hours put in by the MAROON staff have made your yearbook much more than an autograph album.

Simply said: the 1975 MAROON has tried to capture your self-expression.
