On a brisk, perfectly clear morning in March of 1987, a large group of people gathered in front of Urbana High School. Four officials planted four shiny brass shovels into the UHS front lawn. Thus began a colossal project costing over 14 million dollars.

Some said that this groundbreaking ceremony marked the beginning of dozens of problems for UHS. Others welcomed the renovations, looking ahead to the benefits of the finished school.

One thing was evident. As the school building was renovated as walls were knocked down, new ones put up — as classrooms were built where there had once been nothing at all — as beautiful windows were put into place as the UHS building took shape, the people inside that building took shape with it.

The reconstruction posed many obstacles, and the students and staff hurdled these with difficulty at times and ease at others. But during the 88-89 year as the building started to look like a school again, the faculty and students also began taking a shape and form of its own.

The start of the year at Urbana was difficult. Students sat in sweltering heat; the Drought of '88 wasn't over yet. Much of the school wasn't finished yet, and the sounds of construction disturbed many classes. However, as different areas of the school were finished, the daily life of school started taking its normal pace.

Sophomores would hurriedly rush to classes and cower in fear of all the big people in the halls. Juniors were a little lost too, because during their first year at Urbana, the old part of the school was being worked on, and they never had a chance to see it. In effect, they were sophomores again in a new school. Seniors, however, took everything in stride. They roamed casually from class to class and became accustomed to the racket of the renovation. So although the students of UHS had a few hurdles to leap, they still took a shape of their own and got used to the school.

Homecoming week at Urbana is usually termed "a week of insanity." Clubs and sponsors work feverishly to have their projects done on time. Perhaps the hardest workers were those in the Senior class planning committee, which plans nearly all of the Homecoming activities. They chose "Bring On the Fall" as this year's theme. Student Senate also worked to the last minute preparing for the 3rd annual Tiger Tailgreat. In addition, dozens of students helped make their class's Homecoming float.

The Spirit at Floatbuilding was very high. The seniors, who had never won the floatbuilding contest, worked hard.

And on Friday, the school gathered in the gym for the Pep Assembly. A big question on everyone's mind was who was going to win floatbuilding. And the seniors went crazy as Dr. Zeck announced them as the winner. Then, the Court (including Eric Fincham, Keith Douglas, Jennifer Cross, Ed Schaller, April Walker, Matt Beiser, Lori Hummel and Dawn McKinley) was called up on stage. Keith Douglas and April Walker were announced as King and Queen, and the assembly adjourned for the Parade.

From the Pep Assembly, the student body went out to line the streets of downtown Urbana to see the Homecoming Parade. There were several entries, including ones from Echo, yearbook, various athletic teams, and the sophomore, junior, and senior floats.

Tailgreat was a very big event, with many activities. There was food and more food — among them; the Art Club ran their Art Rock Cafe, Minorities In Action sold fried chicken and Garcia's Pizza was there. Titanic Love Affair and the Lonely Guys played. There was a raffle for a compact disc player, as well as other contests and games. Student Senate sponsored a "Hollywood Squares", modeled after the TV game show. Drama Club, National Honor Society, the sophomore class, and many other clubs also had booths. And for the first time, people were allowed onto the practice field to tailgate. From the festivities at Tailgreat, students went to see the Tigers play against Danville.

The football game against the Danville Vikings provided the only negative aspect of the 1988 Homecoming. With a lot of crowd support, the Tigers went into the game with a lot of enthusiasm. They played hard, but the Danville team proved too strong. In play after play the Tigers came up short, losing to Danville 34-6.

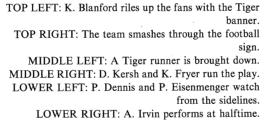

However, Homecoming was by no means spoiled. On Saturday night, the Homecoming dance was held in the Commons area at the high school. The senior class planning committee spent a lot of time decorating the Commons, so the cafeteria looked quite elegant. The disc jockey was very impressive also. There was a colossal lighting and sound system, complete with a large video screen. Students were really pleased and had a great night.

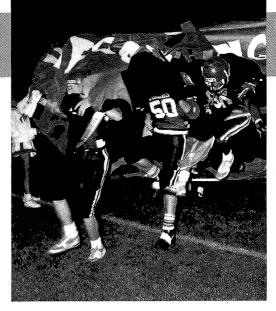

So after days and days of hard work, Homecoming paid off and proved to be a great week of activities. In fact, Dr. Zeck commented that the 1988 Homecoming "was definitely the best one ever."

One of the worst of the many small problems was the cafeteria couldn't serve any hot meals because of a malfunction in the gas pipes — or maybe it wasn't a problem. Continually, there were many problems with the new public address system. And during the first few weeks it seemed that there were absolutely no pencil sharpeners in the entire school.

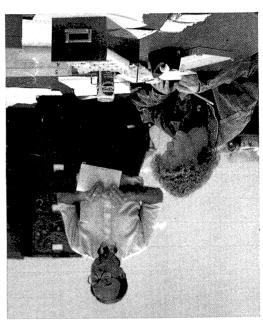

The suditorium, as well as the science rooms and library were supposed to have been done before school started in early September. In fact, these areas weren't finished until well into October, causing great inconveniences for the people who work in these areas.

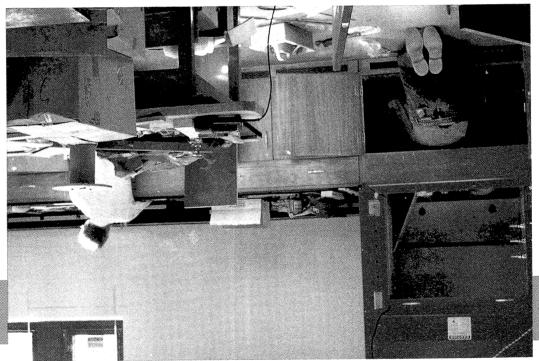

The many problems and disadvantages of the UHS renovation made it very difficult to be optimistic about school. Nearly every day, especially towards the beginning of the 88-89 year Urbana students were faced with a lot of construction noise, various fumes, and plenty of dust.

All schools change appearance: new students come in, old ones leave, maybe a few new desks arrive or a new paint job. Not many, however, have undergone the changes of UHS. This school has had over 14 million dollars worth of change.

Each classroom was redone with new paint, new windows, and some were even carpeted.

A darkroom for art, new sinks and fume hoods for science, and a new green house for biology were all installed.

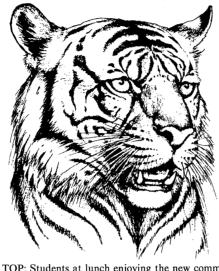

A new cafeteria, the commons, looked nothing like the old one. It was much more open, and the bright orange and white walls made the room much lighter, as did the skylight. The new faculty lounges were very well decorated.

A multi-purpose building was built to add to the P.E. and athletic programs. The school had not had a decent gym or place inside for all school meetings in years. So the honorary Oscar Adams gymnasium was built.

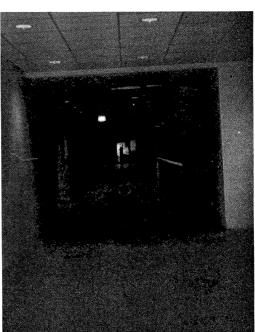

Many things had been improved: the new library became three times the size it was, and a theft detection system was installed.

Despite the problems, the promise of a nearly new school, kept the students going.

"It's only Tuesday?!" wimpers senior Maryam Ar-Raheem as she walks into her first hour speech class. "The weekend is too far away." she continues. Maryam isn't the only one living for the weekend. The students at Urbana High all look forward to the 3:15 bell that sets them free.

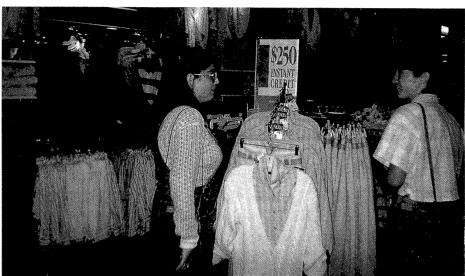

However, students use their free time in may different ways. Some go to campus, they go to the Union, the various restaurants, to campus parties, or to movies. Another very popular pastime is shopping. Students spend a lot of time and money on clothes and music, many at Lincoln Square or at Market Place.

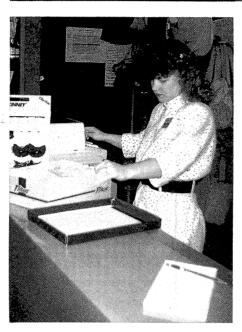

Although some students use their time away from school for fun, many others use this time for more work. UHS students work in a variety of places — in restaurants, retail shops, supermarkets, university laboratories, hospitals, libraries, nursing homes, and vet clinics.

So whether student spends his or her extra time at work or play, or both, it can definitely be seen that there is more than school to a students life.

Sports And Activities: What We Did And How We Did It

The 1988-89 school year was an eventful one for Urbana High School. Urbana students took part in a variety of sports and activities, which are described in the pages ahead. Though not every student took part in a sport or activity, the majority of students at UHS chose to, and as a result, took shape during the 88-89 school year.

Sports:

Getting In Shape

One way that the student body of Urbana High School took shape during the 88-89 year is through sports. The majority of students participate in a sport, and many more students go to watch these sports. Every athletic event is different — each involves different skills and talents. But every sport has a few things in common. All of them demand determination, self-discipline, perseverance, and the drive to push oneself to strive for success.

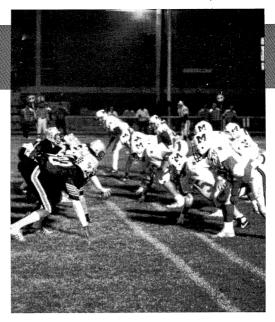

The Foundations Are There

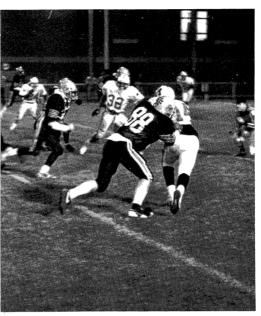

The hopes were high and the Tigers were leading 7-6 going into the fourth quarter against the Eisenhower Panthers. With a minute forty left, the Panthers stole the game by scoring a touchdown. As the seconds bled away the Tigers scrambled for yards, only to lose the ball on the fourteen of the Panthers with eighteen seconds left. The game exemplified the frustration that plagued the Tigers throughout their season.

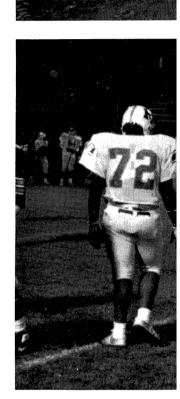

Although the overall season record of 3-6 for the 1988 varsity football squad didn't amount to a winning record, it did amount respectable opinion at the end of the season. The persistence and determination of the players brought the team together for more of a team effort, which resulted in many memorable games. Although the wins they had against Matoon, 29-25 and Lincoln, 28-6, were great games, the most outstanding and memorable game that they played was against Centennial — The Tigers went out and dominated them 18-6 which caused a great stir in everybody, especially the players.

These winning games could not have been accomplished without the participation of some outstanding athletes.

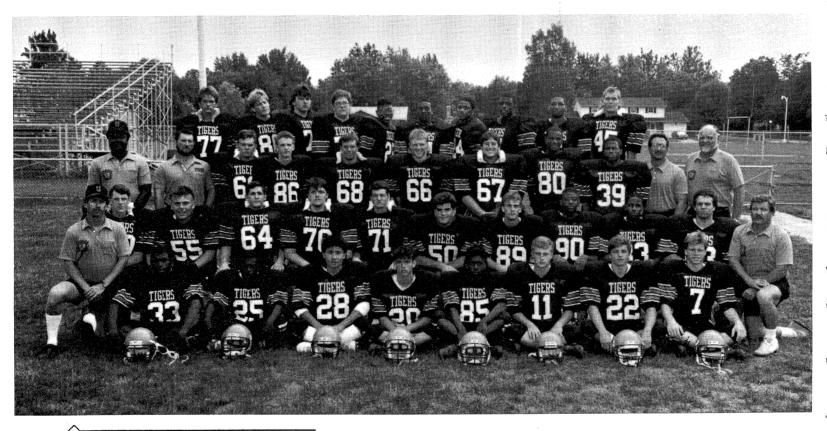

Some of these athletes included David Kersh, who was the all conference running back and who ran for over 700 yards during this season. Bobby Carter and Mike McKee were also on the list for the most tackles in the big 12 conference. Along with the athletes, the coaching staff also did a superb job. They included John Oaks, John Gremier, Wayne Mammen, and coach Hadfurd. Thinking into the future, the top juniors who will be returning next year are: quarterback Scott Anderson, Guard Mike Stephens, Linebacker Bobby Carter, cornerback Chad Patton, and running back Ron Smith. Let's hope these athletes continue the confident spirit of the Tigers and lead us to a bigger and better year.

The Few, the Proud, the Tigers

For only its third year at Urbana High School, soccer is a very popular sport. "We don't get very much fan support, but we really appreciate the people who come out to see us play. I'm pretty surprised at the amount of people we have that come to our games, since we've only been playing soccer for three years at UHS," remarks Grant Waaler, the varsity soccer team cocaptain. This was Grant's last year for playing soccer at Urbana, but he was pleased with the way the team performed.

With an overall record of 10-8-2, the Urbana soccer team felt that they had improved drastically and had played a stimulating season, but they were disappointed at the number of fans that turned out and the fact that they had a lot of talent.

Some memorable moments, according to Grant Waaler and Adam Wilson, were Wilson's overtimes, the stadium cleanup, and THE most memorable moment of the season, Adam Wilson going off on the coach's wife. But for the whole team the greatest feat they accomplished was beating Central 3 times. The soccer team also went on to be placed as Twin City Champs. With a little more support from fellow Tigers and with some newcoming talent, the team is hoping for an even better season next year.

Spikers setting up for a new year

"Volleyball is a time for me to get my frustrations out," remarked senior Sissy Manning. Many thought the team had a very frustrating year.

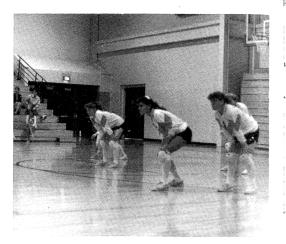

The Varsity Volleyball team had a tough season with a record of 0-15. They were young and inexperienced, but made a remarkable improvement throughout the season. They played their best game against Normal, the number one team.

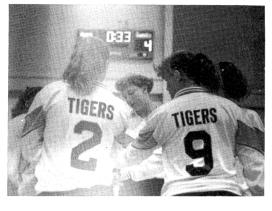

The team was led by seniors Sissy Manning and Beth Walston, junior Lori Thomas, as well as sophomores Christie Gilliam, Jennifer Mabry, Hilary Hewkin and Stephanie Gerrietts. The outstanding players receiving Big 12 honorable mention were Hilary Hewkin and Stephanie Gerrietts. With so many returning sophomores (including the two Big 12ers) next years team should be all set.

A relatively young team bids farewell to seniors

The girls tennis team swung another challenging season. They had a young team, losing many of last years players to graduation. The girls were inexperienced but played well through the tough season. "As time progressed, individual players became more comfortable with their abilities," remarked Julie Hill, the number one player on the team. They took the season in stride.

The varsity line up began with senior Julie Hill playing in the #1 position, junior Shelly Sechrest in the #2 slot, junior Jennifer Waaler playing 3rd, sophomore Tammy Cohen playing 4th, senior Kerrie Maloney playing 5th, and senior Mary Lock in the 6th position.

Although the girls season was not very rewarding, they look forward to bringing up players from the strong J.V. team for next season.

Personal Best

A Young and Inexperienced Cross Country team performs well

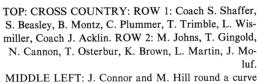

With the loss of four seniors, the girls' team was left with only one experienced cross country runner. This inexperience resulted in a losing record. Despite this record, two runners made it to sectionals: Natasha Erickson and Lauren Douglas. Natasha was a member of the sectional-qualifying team last year. Lauren Douglas has had experience on the track team, but this was her first year on cross-country. She is expected to be the top runner for cross country again next year.

The boys' team had an excellent season with a record of 12-4. Tom Trimble finished first at the Twin Cities meet. This is a great honor because it's been a 7-year dry spell for Urbana at the meet. Tom Trimble and Chris Plummer qualified for sectionals, which was a great finish for senior Chris Plummer's cross country career and strong encouragement for junior Tom Trimble to continue running next year.

One WHole of a Season

A Kenyan All-Star leads Urbana Golf

To ease the burdens on senior Brian Faulkner, Coach Sam Wright was forced to recruit far and wide. Luckily, Wright was able to sign an all-star from Kenya who had been overlooked by the Centennial team. This all-star Kenyan, Waqar Ahmed, with the strong veteran leadership of Brian Faulkner, led the Urbana golf team through a transition year. Waqar's strong dedication to golf helped to improve the team. "School is really getting in the way of golf," he once remarked. With team members Eric Bailey, Brant Muncaster, Jeremy Kaufman and returning member Dan Larson, next year's team will be very competitive due to the experience and improvement gained this year.

Trend of Excellence

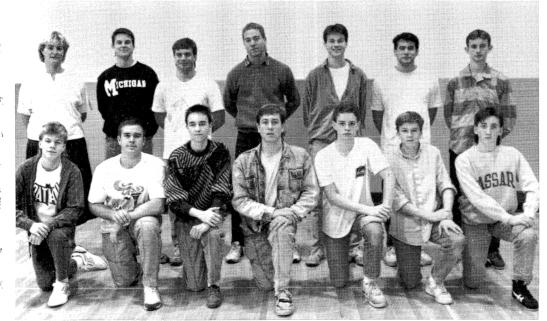

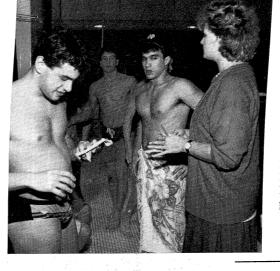

Guys' Finish With Their Heads Above Water

The boys' swim team capped off an excellent season with a fifth place overall finish at sectional competition. This was a sort of rebuilding year for the team, for it was their first season under their new coach Patti DeForrest. However, the combination of strong juniors and seniors pulled them through.

In addition to outstanding swimmers, the team had its first strong diving team, made up principally of Scott McKee, Colin Milton and James Boyer. As cocaptain Derek Liebert commented, "The season went well; everyone had a lot of fun, and everybody achieved their best time." With their good group of sophomores and juniors, this trend of excellence will hopefully continue.

Girls Team Keeps Its Head Above Water

A tough year for the girls' swimming squad results in an improved team

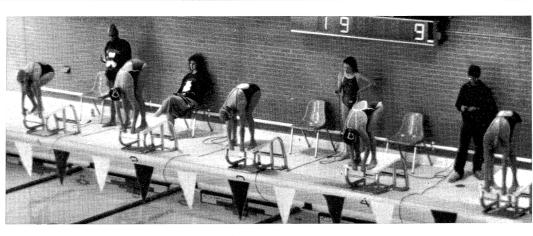

This season for the Urbana Tiger girls' swimming team was not a winning season for the swimmers, but a season of learning and improving. Although the girls lost every meet, it didn't stop them from trying their hardest.

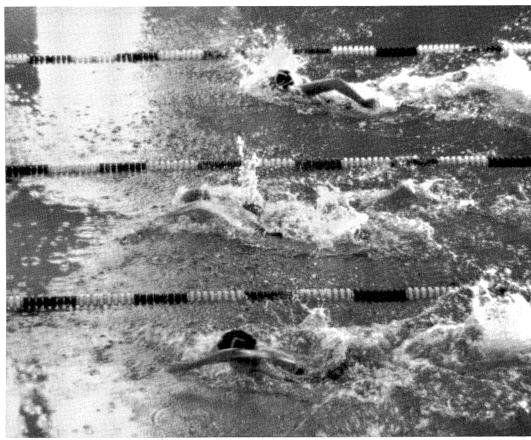

Many of the girls were newcomers, but that didn't stop them from improving tremendously over the season and setting their own personal records. Some of the recognized athletes were Kelly Chromek, the team captain, Kristin Hassinger, who was Most Valuable Athlete, with Christine Smith right behind her. Kristin also qualified for the state tournament. Erica Hoel, who has been the first diver of UHS for at least four years, also came out and improved 300%.

Although their wish for a new pool may not be a reality in the near future, the Lady Tigers are looking forward to better and more rewarding season next year.

Tigers shoot for the stars

Varsity boys hit new heights

The 1988-1989 boy's basketball team ended up this year with a winning season. Because of their great moves, quickness and determination, the boy's had many memorable games. Other important events included; the Thanksgiving Holiday Tournament, in which they were runners up, and the Pekin Tournament, in which they were finalists.

The team had four outstanding seniors in Robert Atkinson, Russell Thompson, Keon Parsons and Keith Douglas.

Keith was named All Conference last year, and placed in the McDonald's top 1000 H.S. players. Junior Todd Fryer joined the group as a starter. Besides a great starting five the Tigers also had depth. Five more players were frequently rotated in, and several others saw a good amount of playing time. With the possibility of eight seasoned players returning, the Tigers can enjoy this year's success and look forward to even more victories.

The tough season was a good experience

"It's been a tough rebuilding year, but an unforgettable learning experience. We're all just one big, happy family here," says Ann Yarber, Head Coach of the Girl's Basketball Team. Although this season hasn't been a winning one, the team, including the coach, has learned many lessons from their hard work and mistakes. As of this year, the team lost nine seniors, making this season one of the toughest seasons yet.

Because of other problems, such as a large number of injuries and a lack of wins, the girls had to push harder and be quicker. Movement has been the top goal for the coach, and she has coached hard to see more of it. Assisted by coach Stan Summers and Freshman coach Sondra Davis, the team is predicting good games and for the girls to reach their peak at the Regionals. With more determination than ever, the girls are bound to have more outstanding seasons in the years to come.

Urbana Matmen Enjoy a Rewarding Season

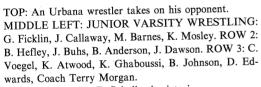

"I was happy with the individual performances on the team, as well as the team's overall performance." This is how senior Ed Schaller sums up the wrestling season for 1988-89. The team really did do well, finishing with 14 wins and 7 losses. The team also advanced to team sectionals, but was unfortunately defeated at the competition in Kankakee early in play. However, the big news for the season was Shig Yasunaga. Yasunaga was the team leader in take-downs, and reached fourth overall in state competition.

Part of Urbana's success is owed to the team's coaches, Randy Blackman and Wayne Mammen. This was the first year that Blackman and Mammen acted as co-coaches, and the collective effort could really be seen in the team. Among the strong individual competitors were Ed Schaller (who broke the team records for career pins and consecutive pins), Mark Huls, Terry Johnson, and Josh Kelso. The team had only four seniors this season, and with the help of coaches Blackman and Mammen, the success will continue.

They've Got Spirit . . .

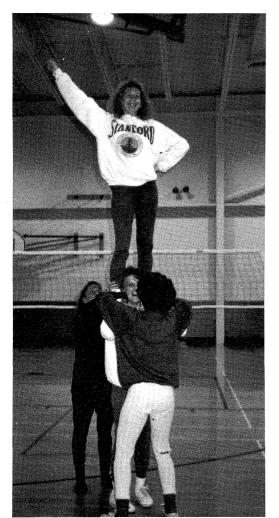

The varsity cheerleaders pulled various people out of the audience at the Homecoming Pep Assembly and led them to a table, where they were blind-folded for a pie-eating contest. Many of the participants refused to participate, but only head football coach John Oaks decided to dig in (see page 7). The cheerleading squad not only helped to keep Tiger Spirit high at the Pep Assembly, but also through the whole year.

The cheerleaders performed well at the Homecoming Pep Assembly, rousing everyone's spirit for the game against the Vikings. They kept the audience alive with their spirit dance. As senior Jennifer Cross remarked, "The dance kept an upbeat mood." They humored the students with their "Tiger Dining" skit, in which Mr. Oaks was obviously the guest of honor.

The squad improved incredibly over the 88-89 year. They changed the style and welcomed many newcomers to the squad. This, however, did not affect the girls' performance. The squad received the "spirit stick" after attending an the National Cheerleading Camp over the summer of 88. This squad is very prestigious and shows the enthusiasm, dedication, and spirit that the cheerleaders possess.

Tigerettes-Pom-Pons have got the beat

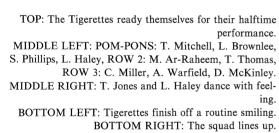

The Tigerette Pom-Pon squad, which is sponsored by Polly Washington, performs at all the halftime shows during the football and basketball seasons. They work very hard, practicing every week and going to camp during the summer. Their work and dedication, as well as talent, show through as they come together and perform to all types of music. They really are great to watch.

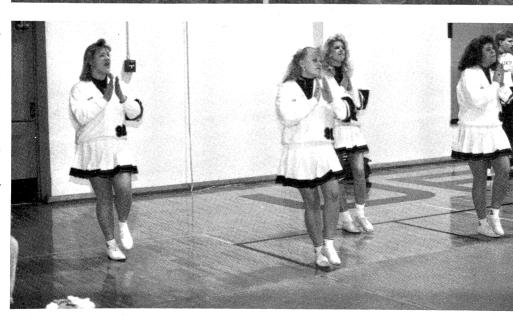

Cheering For Urbana Grapplers

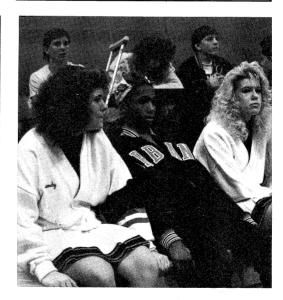

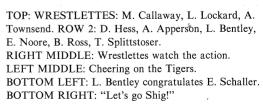

"Matters of Cheering"

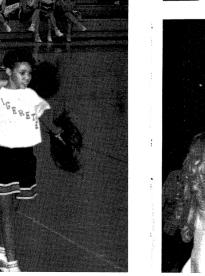

The Wrestlettes squad cheers for the wrestlers at all of their home meets. They are there to encourage the players, as well as spectators, and cheer each of the competitors on to a victory. The girls work a lot on their cheers and are even training some ninth graders so that they too will be outstanding. They practice quite often after school in order to be fit for a meet.

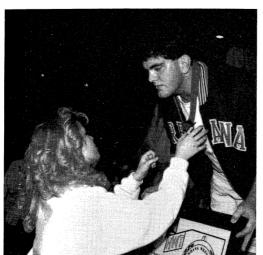

With a sport like wrestling, which is somewhat more individualized, having cheerleaders and fan support is that much more important. The Wrestlettes' support is very much appreciated by both those who watch the meets and those who wrestle.

The Dashing Track Team

Improved by 200%

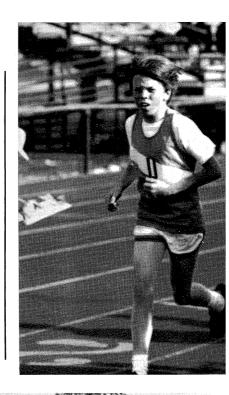

Other than just being painfully hard, but a lot of fun, the 1987 girls' Track team learned that participating in a tough sport can be a very rewarding, learning experience. As the girls doubled their ability by the end of the year, they also learned to face up to the competition amongst themselves and other teams.

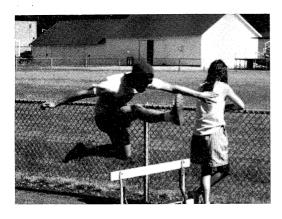

One of the most outstanding athletes of the team was Katie Maggs, who went to state in the two-mile with the best time of her high school track career; but overall, the team didn't do as well not due to because of a lack of good athletes, but because of a lack of numbers. Since the seniors composed the greater part of the 87-88 team the athletes for the upcoming season are hoping that more underclassmen will join in to avoid having a small team again. If all goes well, the team plans to perform at their best next season.

The boys' team also had many good individual performances but had trouble pulling it all together. They too didn't have the depth needed as a support for their high scorers. Terry Johnson won all but two of every long jump competition he entered. He set a new school record of 23' 21½"; he also placed fourth in the state meet.

Many of the Varsity point earners will be returning next year. The Tigers should fare well in the 1989 season.

Guys Overcome Odds

Junior Varsity Baseball, as well as Varsity Baseball did very well in the spring season of 1988. The varsity team had many experienced players, such as Bob Testory and Troy Flessner. Stars among the strong JV team included Scott Anderson and Chad Patton. As Scott commented, "The team made major improvements from the beginning of the year as we almost turned a bad start into a swimming season."

Girls' Tear

The junior varsity baseball team acquired a favorable record this year of 4-5. Because of the strong bonding that formed between the players, they turned a rough beginning into success. Aside from simply having a great time, the players also experienced the two most memorable wins of the season, both against their cross-town rival, Central. They Tigers dominated Central in these games by wins of 14-4 and 11-0.

There were several key players who helped lead the team to success. These players included Josh Shelmadine, who contributed his exceptional pitching to the season, and Todd Short along with Chad Patton, who both contributed great hitting. We can't forget though, that the Coach, Mr. Johnson, was also a factor in their success. The team wishes him the best of luck in the future.

Girls' Team Strengthens

The softball team had an extremely rough season, but the team members were in no way disappointed with their performances. Although they had an overall record of 6-19, the season did have some high points, such as they victory over first-seated Mattoon. Kelly Chromek remarked that the 4-1 win "was the biggest emotional win of the year." Kelly also remarked that "I think our team has improved a great deal. Everyone had their goals which they met."

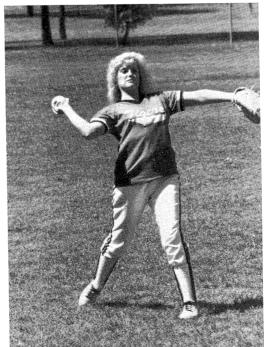

Some memorable games, such as the Regional game in which Urbana defeated first-seated Mattoon 4-1, brought out the best in the players. In this particular game, Kelly Chromek pitched a no-hitter. This was her first season of pitching, and she was named the team's ace pitcher, along with honorable mention for outfield. Along with Kelly shined the team's own captain, Danielle Medrow, who was all-conference for second base and received the MVP award. Stephanie Deloney was also honorable mention for third base.

Although the 1988 season came out pretty strong, the 1989 season looks even better with the return of many of their starters.

The Marching Tigers party through another fall

Under the cold glare of the McKinley field lights, every Thursday night the Marching Tigers shivered their way through long practices to finally culminate at McKinley on the last home football game. The loud speakers blared their introduction, and drum major Rachel Smith called the Marching Tigers to attention.

Quickly executing the final drill of the season, the drum majors acted out the Long Ranger's ride to "The William Tell Overture." The band finally released balloons carrying the names of all the seniors marching for the Tigers.

Kent Stewart, leading the drum core, kept the Marching Tigers on the beat while Ken Peters designed the drills.

UHS Orchestra Maintains Its Rhythm

Every day, participants in Urbana High School's Orchestra travel over to the Junior high, in order to hold their practices. The renovation has caused the orchestra quite an inconvenience, for they were accustomed to simply practicing at the high school, before the renovation. However, the orchestra has remained strong. Led by James Calhoun, the group holds its seasonal recitals at the high school, and in October, some of the musicians compete in All-District auditions, as well as the All-State auditions later in the school year. During the 1988-89 school year, the orchestra actually grew in size, because for the first time in many years, freshmen were included in the ensemble.

Concert Band Jams

The UHS Concert Band kicked off another successful, musically enchanting season full of accomplishments. Consisting of approximately 75 students, the band participated in many activities; such as the U of I Band Day, held at Memorial Stadium. At halftime of a regular season football game Urbana and many other accomplished bands perform one huge show. Concert Band was also in The Band Contest and Jerry's 16th Band Day.

Their great year would not have been possible without the talented members. Many of these students were recognized as qualifiers for All-District. Another participant was in the all-State Band and another in the Allerton Wind Ensemble. Alexis Jones, a senior, won state competition for flute. This talent helped the band earn an "I" or first place rating, at the Band Contest.

This year's Concert Band had a tremendous season and can look forward to even better things in the future.

Choir and Madrigals Perform With Style

As usual, the choir and madrigals put in many rehearsal hours and as a result, performed with real style and near-perfection. Both groups, under the leadership of the new director Jim Lyons, practiced for many hours after school. The choir performed at various seasonal concerts, and in addition, the madrigals gave their very special annual winter holiday concert at Jumer's.

Dance Club struggled through a difficult year

Dance Club had some trouble getting on the beat this year. There were problems finding a place to meet. It was difficult finding a time when everyone could meet as well as a place. Aiko Kinoshita, the leader of the group, graduated at the semester and went out of the country, which made complete meetings almost impossible. They often had to practice out in the hall, their only place. With all that, they still were able to high-step over their problems; learn a little and have some fun too.

UHS Drama Completes a Busy and Successful Year

During the 1988-89 year, UHS Drama went through many changes. Stephen J. Cobb Memorial Auditorium was to be completed before the school year started, but wasn't finished until October. The wait, however, was definitely worth it. A new lighting system, as well as an excellent sound system were installed in the beautiful auditorium.

The Drama Club was also busier than usual during the 88-89 year. Usually in a year, the Drama Club puts on two productions. During the 88-89 year, however, the Drama Club presented AMERICAN DREAMS in November, the children's play CHARLOTTE'S WEB in January, as well as SINGIN' IN THE RAIN in May (the play was UHS's first full-scale musical in over 10 years). Hopefully with their new equipment, as well as their new talent, UHS Drama will continue to prosper as it did during 1988-89.

"Act Well Your Part — There All the Honor Lies"

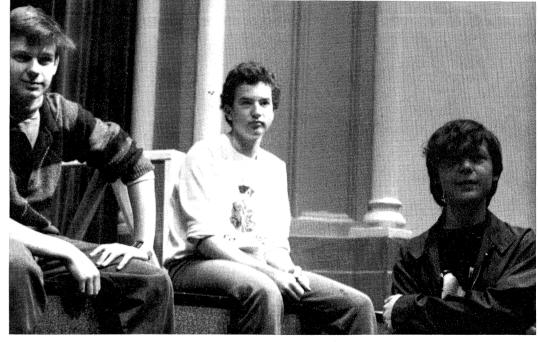

The above motto of the thespians reflects the attitude of many thespians, but in reality, it shows only one aspect of being a thespian. Thespians is an international honorary society for drama participants who have logged 100 hours or more by working on at least two drama fields, such as lighting, set construction, makeup, or a variety of other areas. The thespian troupe, acting somewhat as officers, work with the Drama Club in productions.

During the 88-89 year, the thespians, along with the Drama Club, were quite busy with plays. In November they put on AMERICAN DREAMS, in January they produced the children's play CHARLOTTE'S WEB, and in May they finished the year off with a bang, putting on the full-scale musical SINGIN' IN THE RAIN. With the newly renovated auditorium, as well as other refurbished drama facilities, the thespians troupe hopes to induct plenty of new members for future shows.

Drama Presents a Profile Of America

In November, Drama Club produced Studs Terkel's modern drama AMERI-CAN DREAMS. The production was a rather small one, because the group was just beginning to become acquainted with the renovated auditorium's new facilities. Technically, the show was kept rather simple. However, this didn't mean the acting end of the play suffered.

AMERICAN DREAMS is a series of eighteen monologues; each character presented his or her own view of America, so by the end of the play, the viewer has a rather unique image of America, its people and their hopes. While some positive aspects of the United States were offered, it seems Terkel overall is showing that the American dream is an empty one. The play was a rather unique production for the Drama Club, and the participants generally gained much expertise and enjoyment during its making.

Drama Puts On Delightful Children's Play

CHARLOTTE'S WEB is the story of a small, lonely pig named Wilbur, who is saved early in life from being slaughtered and eventually grows to gain the friendship and love of the people and animals around him. Perhaps his most special friend is the spider Charlotte, who weaves messages about Wilbur into her webs.

UHS Drama produced CHAR-LOTTE'S WEB in January and had two matinee performances for grade school children. The play was a real success — many of the children wrote back to compliment the Drama Club. Although the production was a somewhat small one, the Drama Club utilized their new lighting and sound equipment, which greatly improved the technical quality of the show. However, the play itself was, according to participant Matt Tepper, "Fun to put together and fun to watch."

HS Speech Activities Enjoys Success

Urbana High School Speech Activis grew by leaps and bounds over the 88-89 season. There are many differt divisions of speech activities, among em WUHS (see page 64), Video Caldar, the Competitive Speech Team, inouncements, and the Press Box and Video Calendar had a series of technil difficulties in the beginning of the ar. However, the staff, operating unreproducer Jenny Anderson, managed put out a few high-quality shows, ne of which were broadcast over Cabision's Channel 22.

The Competitive Speech Team also d a late start. However, by the time gional competition in February arrived, the team had grown very strong. Among the main competitors were Brian Townsend, John Lund, Dan Larson, Zach Gimm, Betsy Belber, Mehrdad Azemun and Captain Rob McColley.

The Announcements and Press Box Squad were also quite successful. The announcement' readers broadcast nearly every day with near perfection. The Press Box Squad, which announces the home football and basketball games, also expanded. The group itself became larger, and the quality of the public announcements, as well as the television broadcasts, was improved. With new rooms and facilities next year, speech activities will hopefully continue to grow.

Throughout the broadcast, orders are barked, guests become flustered while on the air, and the show almost runs overtime.

This is an example of a typical broadcast of WUHS, a weekly radio show put out over the UHS air waves every Friday. One would be amazed at what goes on behind the scenes. Artists get active in all areas through the year

The Art Club, under the supervision of Mrs. Wolter, kept itself very busy this year. Other than just practicing and experimenting with unique methods of art, such as using an airbrush and scrimshaw, they also invited guest speakers to demonstrate these techniques to the club members.

The Art Club was very active in others activities, such as the successful Tailgreat '88. The club also sets up field trips to the Art Institute, sponsors the Art Contest for youth during Art Month, and frames the winning entry in UHS. They also visited art studios to see what a professional artist does. Some members want to be artists and some just enjoy the activity, either way as the year "drew" to a close everyone thought it had been a very successful year.

SADD Grows As It Enters Its Second Year

During the '88-'89 year, SADD/Saferides, a chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving, entered its second year. Unfortunately, they had some problems getting enough participants.

On Saturday nights from 10 p.m.-1 a.m., these students received calls and provided free rides home for any teenager who was unfit to drive. This lifesaving program was in cooperation with Burnham Hospital. Under adviser Marilee Martin, the organization hopes to grow in its next years.

The Politically Conscious SWI Continues On Its Goals

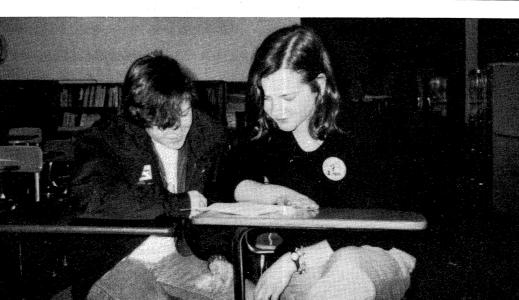

Unlike many high schools, Urbana has a very special organization with a noble cause. The group is Students for World Improvement (SWI), and their purpose is to help educate students about international issues. They do this by keeping informed of the news and holding forums on different topics. One such forum concentrated on the Palestinian uprising; others were on Nicaragua, AIDS, and South Africa.

Senior Wendy Johnson comments: "Hopefully what I've learned at SWI will carry over into the rest of my life. In college I hope to continue to be involved in political and social movements.

UHS Chess Dominates Its Opponents Once Again

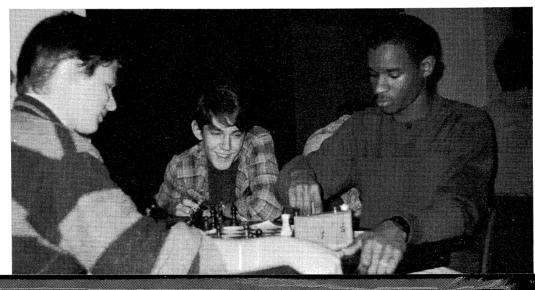

Contrary to popular belief, the game of chess involves a lot more than moving little pieces of plastic around on a board. There are many different strategies involved in a given game, and a lot of study and practice is required in order to become a formidable chess player.

The Urbana chess team has enjoyed much success in the past few years. A lot of success is due to the efforts of Terry Hutson, head coach for the team, who is leaving the team after the 88-89 season. "For the last four years, Mr. Hutson has put together a good name for itself in state competition. It's been a good four years," comments Malcolm Carroll, who plays first board. The team won the state competition in 1987, and placed third in 1988. However, the team's success won't necessarily go on. "If the team's success is to continue, there will have to be a lot more support for chess and chess-playing," Malcolm warns. Hopefully, with the sophomores and juniors who contributed to the team in the 88-89 season, Urbana chess will continue to dominate.

Office and Senate Aides Help Out

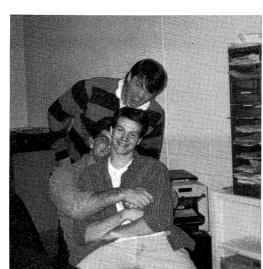

Every day, notes are delivered, errands run, telephones answered, bank books kept, and "most importantly," vending machines filled. All of this behind-the-scenes work is done by the Office and Senate aides.

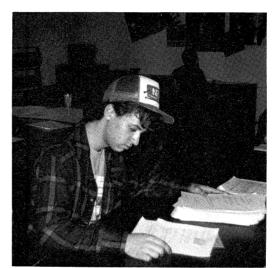

Office aides deliver messages from counselors and daily announcements, and collect the attendance, just to name a few of their chores. Think how little time counselors and secretaries would have to help the students if they were always out delivering letters.

Meanwhile, Senate aides play a major role in most of Student Senate's activities. During Tailgreat, the Thanksgiving Dinner, and the Auction, their normal duties are complicated by telephone calls and letters that must be made. Generally, they are responsible for keeping up to date on candy and pop supplies, organizing meeting agendas, and setting up for meetings and special events.

There is no question that these two groups are needed to keep the school in smooth working order.

During the 88-89 school year, Student nate expanded in many ways. As usuthey successfully held their 15th anksgiving Dinner, the 3rd annual ilgreat, and the 8th annual Senate ction. However, they added two new ivities. In October, they held their st-ever mock-presidential debate. irnalists from around Central Illinois med the panel that asked questions of dent representatives from the Demoitic and Republican parties. The ole school, as well as politicians from ound the area, attended the event, "It s an enormous success," remarked viser David Lemons. Also, they helped n the "On the Spot" programs in cooation with Video Club. Each proim got a lot of support and student ticipation.

However, Senate isn't only for holding activities. As the name implies, the organization is there to help students. Senators took suggestions from students, and helped to solve many of the problems around the school. For example, Student Senate helped students get their own parking spaces, they organized class halls and student evaluations of teachers, and purchased tampon machines. In addition to these larger projects, the organization made headway in ridding the student body of numerous other problems.

"I believe that we, as a group, do a lot more work than the average student council. All the mediocre student council will do in an average year is buy pop and candy for the students," comments Mr. Lemons. And in the 88-89 year, Student Senate proved once again that it really does give a hand to students.

"Quiz Bowl is really just like Trivial Pursuit," commented member Rob McColley. Quiz Bowl is a competition between two teams. There are five players on each team plus substitutes. A "toss up" question is asked by the monitor and either team may answer. The first person to hit their buzzer gets to answer. If the team gets it right then they get a chance to answer the bonus question. Each correct answer adds points to the score. The team with the most points wins the match. Hopefully the team will have many more great years to come.

1988-89 was a year full of success and fun memories for the Computer Club. The purpose of this group, to explore computer software, seems to have interested many more people this year, especially those who have an avid interest in computers or those who simply want to have fun in front of the "popular" computer.

Computer Club members this year weren't just pecking away at the keyboard they also get involved in field trips, candy sales, and numerous other activities.

This year the JETS, (Junior Engineering Technical Society) group did very well. The students competed in six different divisions: math, physics, chemistry, biology, English, and graphics. Students take two tests out of the six. Their scores are compared with other students across the area. The first series of tests were held at Parkland. From there students went to Charleston for Regionals where Urbana placed Second over all. Yu Lui got first place in physics at sectionals. Brady Montz got second place in physics at sectionals. The team then went on to the state level held at the University of Illinois. The JETS team at Urbana is always a strong one and we wish them success.

Careers In Medicine

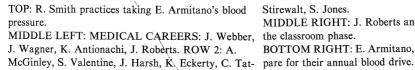

Medical Careers Sets Its

Sights On the Future

The Medical Careers program, like other vocational programs at UHS, is a way that students can earn knowledge and experience in a certain area. These students can earn up to three credits by taking part in clinicals at different area hospitals, as well as going through the classroom phase of the program. Many areas of medicine are covered, such as veterinary medicine, physical therapy, dentistry, and pediatrics. In addition this year, the students held their annual blood drive in February and collected about 65 pints of blood.

Peer Counselors and EHI Participants Get a Taste of Work

The nationally organized UHS Peer Counseling group became a huge success in a short period of time. These trained peers were there simply to help the students cope with everyday life, which isn't always that simple. Approximately 21 students are involved, and after a 6-week training program by Grace Wingfield, these students were available to help during all lunch hours. Peer Counseling has also sold pizza at the Finals Dance and were hosts to other schools coming to observe this program. These students definitely deserve a hearty thank-you, and hopefully next year will be just as successful.

Another group acquainted with vocational training is the Executive High School Internship program, or EHI. Led by Adviser Karen Robertson, the group actually goes out to the workplace in different fields. This program is quite rigorous, and takes a lot of time during the week. If the students wish, they can also take a class only during first period. Many different businesses from around Champaign-Urbana cater to the program. In the past, students have taken part in internships at radio stations, hospitals, area schools, newspaper, and a wealth of other areas.

Some students at Urbana High School choose to take an academic approach towards school. This, however, is not the only way to go through high school. Many students are participants in the Co-op education or CWT programs. These students have the option to meet graduation requirements through enrollment in these programs. These students, then are free to gain practical experience in careers and jobs outside of high school.

Key Club Works Hard And Plays Hard During 88-89

This year, the Urbana Key Club raised money for several charities through a variety of activities. They participated in a Bowl-a-Thon against Central Key Club as well as a Rake-a-Thon of laws across C-U. The number one money-maker this year, as in years past, was the grapefruit and orange sales. The money earned from the sales (about $500) was given to the local Women's Shelter.

However, Key Club is not "all work and no play." The members really enjoyed taking part in the Bowl-a-Thon and the Rake-a-Thon, and the group also had a picnic, an end of the year trip, and their annual Lock-In. For the students involved, Key Club is a great way to help others and have fun at the same time.

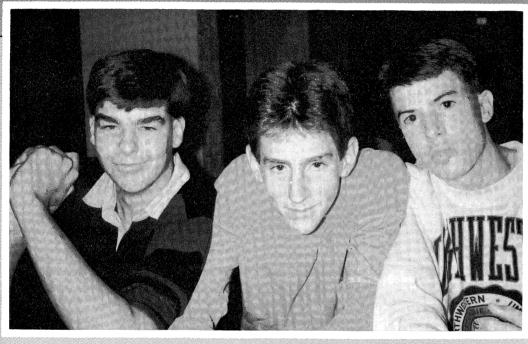

Classes:

Different Shapes

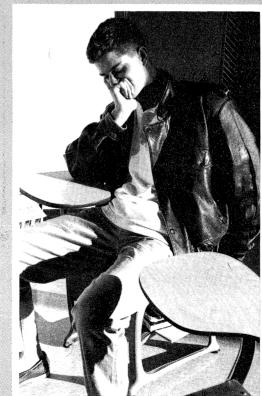

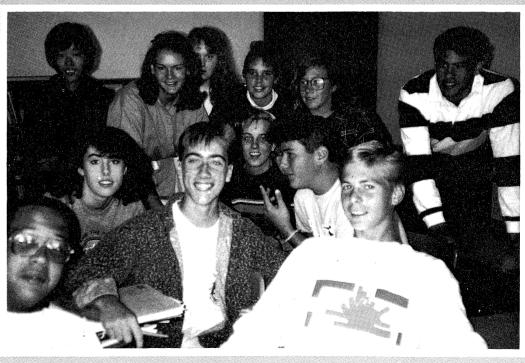

With the new shape of the school and all the work that was done, it was easy to overlook the really important things — among them students. Let's face it — without students, what would a school be? No matter how nice it looks, a school without students would be a building with a bunch of teachers talking to themselves.

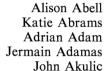

We're Not Square

The Sophomores were busy during the 1988-89 year. They worked hard on selling Christmas items, as well as candy. They held these fundraisers in anticipation of paying for Prom next year.

The 88-89 sophomore class is unique in that they are the last group to enter the high school as sophomores. The following year the new "juniors" will have two new classes to pick on. And despite what this year's seniors said, sophomores proved that they weren't square.

the school was under construction. However, maybe because of the renovation, they tried harder. The class that left the building in June of 1989 was certainly better adapted than they were as sophomores. Unfortunately, they graduated without seeing the project completed. Hopefully, though, they'll look back on these years knowing that in 1988-89 they were in Tiptop shape.

The school year of 1988-89, like almost any other year, was filled with news and sports events, as well as fads. Below are a few of those items.

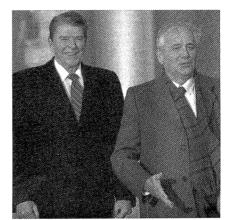

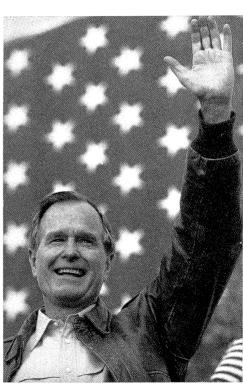

after nearly ten years of occupation. In national news, the presidential election dominated the news for months. ending in George Herbert Walker Bush and Dan Quayle defeating Governor Michael Dukakis and Senator Lloyd Bentsen. And in January of '89, legislators bid farewell to Ronald Reagan after his 8-year term as president. In November, the country mourned the 25th anniversary of John F. Kennedy's assassination, and for months the country was stuck in the lingering drought that proved disastrous for many parts of the country.

In news closer to home, the government recommended the closing of the Chanute Air Force Base in Rantoul, making many area citizens begin the fight to keep it open, and Mercy and Burnham hospitals merged. And at UHS, there was controversy over the administration's policy on wearing caps backwards, as well as the district's teacher cutbacks. Attendance at sports events generally increased, and students finally gained their parking privileges.

Odds and Ends

Popular movies included Big. Cocktail, Who Framed Roger Rabbit, Rain Man, Working Girl, and Mississippi

Big music makers included U2. R.E.M., Tracy Chapman, the mallduo of Debby Gibson and Tiffany, Gun 'n Roses, Edie Brickell and the New bohemians, Bobby McFerrin's "Don't Worry, Be Happy," the Bangles, the Replacements, and rap music gained much popularity (such as Tone Loc's "Wild Thing")

In television, shows such as "Thirtysomething," "The Wonder Years," "The Cosby Show," "Roseanne," "Family Ties," and "Wiseguy" were popular. Another big news-maker were the variety of talk shows, some of which were called "trash TV." These shows gained a surge of controversy, and in turn, popularity. In addition, pro-wrestling remained popular.

Sports

In sports news, the Illini football team got a new head coach in John Mackovic, the San Francisco 49ers won the Superbowl, the Los Angeles Dodgers emerged victorious in the World Series, and there was much public furor over the lights installed in Chicago's Wrigley Field. And in March, the Illini basketball team advanced to the Final Four. Hopes were high, but the Illini fell to Michigan in the

These included; Tiger Tailgreat, sponsoring two volleyball games a year, and a fundraiser through proctoring psychology exams at the U of I. The money raised is used to help all types of student organizations. Thanks to NHS, many of our biggest events become successes.

Students Receive Various Awards

Every year at Urbana High School, different students are honored with different rewards. Among these awards are the National Merit Scholarship Award, the DAR/SAR awards and membership in the PSP.

National Merit Semi-finalists include students who scored in the top one percent of the PSAT. The semi-finalists for 1988-89 were Sara Brierton, Kerrie Maloney and Brady Montz. Once every year, one male and one female student are chosen by the Societies of the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution to receive an honorary award. The recipients for the 1988-89 year were Mehrdad Azemun and Sara Brierton. Members of the Principal Scholars Program are students who have been honored by eligibility for scholarships. All of these students are truly noteworthy.

Hola, Bonjour, Guten Tag

Do games, food and good times sound like something fun? They are, and the language honor societies and clubs are enjoying them all. There are three languages offered at UHS; Spanish, French and German. Each has an honor society for students who have earned more A's than B's in their respective language.

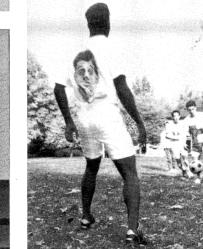

There are also language clubs for those who want to play an active role in language activities. The clubs are open to everyone and plan most of the events. The societies are mostly just honorary. Each has an induction ceremony each year for new members.

The clubs host many activities. Probably the most famous is the annual soccer game series. The clubs play each other in an informal yet very competitive game. The victor earns bragging rights for the year. Other activities include; potlucks, bake sales and field trips. This year the Spanish club had a culture exchange with a school in Nicaragua.

All three groups share fun and their language's culture with each other.

Leisure Rules

Students Take Part in a Variety of School-Oriented Events

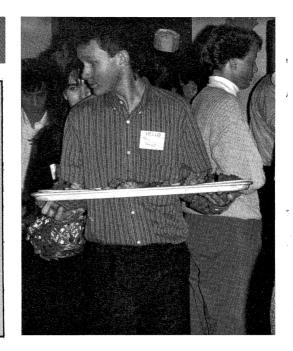

In addition to the academics, the sports and the organizations many students are also active in other school sponsored activities.

Several of these events are coordinated by special clubs and groups, but are open to anyone in the school. National Honor Society, Student Senate and the Athletic Boosters are among the most active.

The most popular include; the Thanksgiving Dinner, the Auction, the Basketball Bonanza, Pep Busses to away varsity games, All School Dances, both formal and informal, and the Volleyball Bonanzas.

These events have become annual occurrences and students look forward to them from year to year. As soon as the fall Volleyball Bonanza is over teams are already being set up for the Spring. Just a few days after the Dinner suggestions and ideas for next year's are being worked out.

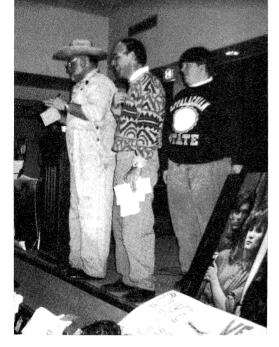

For both students and faculty at UHS these happenings are the result of a lot of time and hard work usually resulting in a good time for all who join in.

Ancient Relics?

Once again, this year the ROSE-ARY has asked various members of UHS faculty to recollect their ughts of when they were in high tool. As you read over the essays be, you will hopefully see that, contrary opular belief, they were once just like of us.

968 seemed to be the last grasp of l innocence at Urbana High. Our ss had already begun the peace rches and candlelight vigils, yet we estill having sock hops in the old n and slumber parties. We were ght in a changing world and strugd to keep up.

n the classroom, subject relevance I the search for individuality became dominant themes. Women's liberon, civil rights and peace were comn subjects for debate. We were intolnt of the easy answer, but we wanted solve our problems in the present, not some ambiguous future.

Still, we were firmly rooted in the

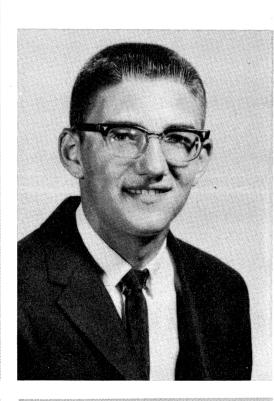

On the eve of my twenty-fifth high school reunion my memories as a student have been reduced to those that had the most impact on me at the time. The two that stand out the most are the assassination of President Kennedy and the fire that destroyed half the high school. In both cases we got two days out of school buy my reactions were quite different. In November of my sophomore year every student's dream came true when I received a call from my best friend and was told that the High School was burning. I rushed to the school to watch the old 1920 addition burn to the ground. The 1956 addition was saved and after two days of clean-up we returned to what was left. I can sympathize with the class of '89 for having to put up with all of the inconveniences of the last two years. I went through similar circumstances. We used classrooms in churches and the VFW Hall for the rest of my high school career. We were bussed every hour to a different part of the city to attend classes. We had 10 minutes between each class. Our gym had been saved so we didn't get out of P.E. The shop area became classrooms with plywood partitions that were open on the top and the bottom. We amused ourselves by crawling under and into the next classroom or organizing a mass air bombardment of paperwads on the class next door. The new section of the school wasn't completed until after we graduated, so I never received any of the benefits from the Steak-n-Shake on Green to see our friends and to be seen. We ate lots of 25¢ burgers at McDonald's and greasy fries at Race Inn. Most Friday nights, after the mandatory basketball or football game, we cruised to the Tigers' Den. We arrived fashionably late and watched the lowerclassmen dance silly.

Chicago, Iron Butterfly, the Beatles, Jimmi Hendrix, Led Zeppelin, and the Doors kept us moving. James Taylor, Joni Mitchell, Judy Collins, and Bob Dylan kept us singing. Everybody seemed to play the guitar — or wanted to, and everybody wrote songs or poetry.

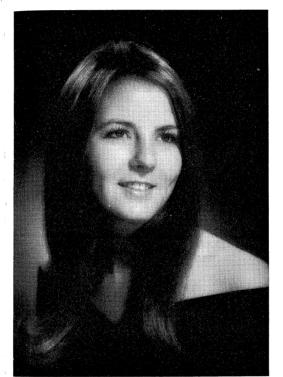

The other experience brought a more somber reaction when the school librarian announced in study hall that President Kennedy had been shot. My generation will always remember where they were and what they were doing when they heard the news.

 HAROLD DEAN Class of 1965

Smoking, drinking and drugs were "un-cool;" activities were our major source of recreation. But the class of 1968 was on the edge of tumult. We had to confront the problems that lay before us, but we could not without the loss of our innocence.

— GAYLE DUNN Class of 1968 Urbana High School My high school years were a strange mixture of youthful innocence and harsh reality. I was in high school from 1964 through 1968. On a daily basis, we were normal adolescent high school kids. School was very structured, and the administration was still able to exert a phenomenal amount of control. Boys had to have shirts tucked in, and girls whose skirts were above the knee were sent

he was going to pass out in horror.

After school and on weekends we "buzzed" Steak and Shake. Fast food was unheard of until my sophomore year when a MacDonald's was built in my city. Hamburgers were 25 cents! There were no pizza parlors, and the only diet drinks available were Tab and Fresca. On dates we went to the drive-in movies or to dances. Our music was the Beatles. Drugs were not prevalent. Very few students had after-school jobs; therefore, no one ever fell asleep during class.

home to change. I remember a boy who shaved his head on a dare, and he was EXPELLED from school. It was still a time of separate male/female PE and health classes, only skirts and dresses for girls, and closed-campus lunch. The school had 2,000 students, and we had five lunch periods. I hated the year I had the fifth lunch period — we ate about

1:00, and there was never any food left!

Before school we all hung out in the Commons to talk with our friends. We respected most of our teachers but kept a formal distance, rarely discussing "real life" with any of them. I do remember doing stupid things though. One time I teacher's starched white shirt. I thought

However, in looking back, I see those particular four years as being a period of dramatic change. We as youth saw our Camelot world altered forever. Between my eighth grade and senior year, John and Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King were assassinated. Push turned to shove to gain equal rights for both Blacks and women. The television reporting of the Watts riots of the early sixties and of the violence of the Vietnam War etched vivid images in my mind. "Causes" became very important. Teens began to think, to discuss, and to form opinions. We watched the news and reacted. All of us who were in high school during the turbulent sixties were very much affected by current events. It seems we saw the world change practically overnight. Comparing the students then to those I see now, there appears to be a resurgence of interest in what's going on in the world. Many students today seem to genuinely care about making a positive impact on the world. This is very reassuring to me.

JANICE PRESLEY

My memories of teenage years generally revolve around school. Except for family and church, most of my time was spent in some type of activity at De-Motte High School. DeMotte is a small Indiana town. There were 57 in my graduating class of 1965. I played three sports, played trumpet in the band (including taps at military funerals!), acted in school plays and was a class and student officer. Jobs were reserved for Saturdays only and certainly took second seat to school activities. If you have seen the movie, "Hoosiers," you have some idea of life in a small Indiana town. From elementary through high school, I attended, served as statistician, or played in basketball games. I still have a letter from Robby Knight when he was an assistant coach at West Point!

In many ways, the relationships among students and uncertainties about those relationships is the same today as it was in 1965. There is more pressure on students today from drugs to college admission. But, there is also much more assistance available to students to help them succeed. Students with special needs or handicaps got virtually no help. It really was sink or swim. Our main worry was Viet Nam.

The big place to take a date for us was the drive-in theater. We would go all year. In the winter you would rent a heater to go along with the speaker that you hung inside your car. The "Drive-In" with real carhops was the local han-basket of fries, and a green river for about one dollar. The Beatles arrived my junior year, but crew cuts remained the hairstyle in DeMotte. "Going Steady" was the way to date with the girl wearing the boy's high school class ring wrapped in yards of angora yarn. Life was probably a mixture of "Happy Days" and the "Wonder Years."

The nutty staff pounds out another masterpiece

"This was a year of reworking the yearbook, and changing the way it looks" remarks activities editor Michelle Halbach on the new image of the Rosemary. This year the staff adopted new methods on doing the book. They used 3-column format on the pages, which is the same style used in many magazines. They also used many new graphic design "tricks" to give the book a consistent look. For example, rule lines, shading, and hip, new folio designs (the artwork around the page numbers) were used on the pages. However, despite the refurbishing, the same problems still arose.

There were good times and bad times but all in all it was very fun and a lot of laughs. There were many differences of opinion and times when one might be caught swearing, but it would soon pass and laughing would be heard again.

The yearbook would never have been done if it weren't for our outstanding editors who got everything done, somehow. They even had more of a challenge than editors of the past because the adviser, Mrs. Cox, took a maternity leave in January for the birth of her son Andrew. The yearbook was completed and everyone breathed a sigh of relief. All were proud of their work.

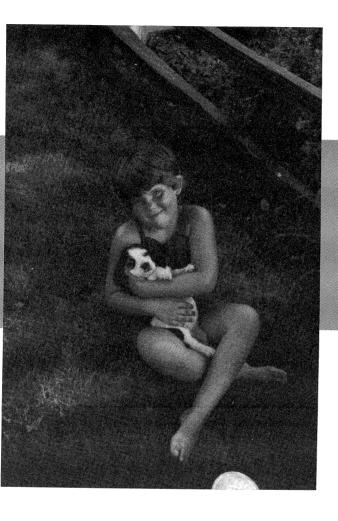

"It's really a good book," remarked Mehrdad Azemun. "The staff has really been outstanding. I think they've put out the best Rosemary in years."

Well, here it is, my chance to say whatever I want. I'm supposed to look back on high school, this year and this book in particular and say something meaningful and profound.

As for the book it was an experience in humility and compromise, but also in enjoyment and accomplishment. As for the year it was one like no other. Not just the Renovation, but more importantly; the students, the faculty, and the times that will never again be exactly the same. As for my high school years in general, right now I find myself not just looking back, but also looking ahead. While so many things fluctuated so much during the past three years; teachers, classes, activities, my feelings, one thing remained constant. My family and my friends were always there for me. So as I look back on all the fun, the fear, the pain, and the success that we survived together, I eagerly look ahead to stronger bonds with family and friends. I thank you one and all. I couldn't have done it without you, and I wouldn't have wanted to.

Our Two Cents' Worth

And so the time has come for the end of the year. Consequently, this means that I have to complete this editor's page. I have not improved in writing essays since last year, so once again I have compiled another list for your entertainment and enlightenment.

Though I wouldn't have believed it three or four years ago, I have definitely grown to enjoy high school. The college years ahead offer uncertainty and difficulty; I will definitely miss high school.

THINGS I WILL MISS ABOUT UHS*

Doing the "Ickey Shuffle" with Brian Faulkner

Annoying people with bathroom announcements at the home football games

Being extremely loud and obnoxious in Advanced Chem

Calling Karl Bauer "Scott"

Beating my chest for the Top Ten's simulated drumroll on WUHS

Playing horrible harmonica in the Commons

Watching Zach Gimm's facial expressions

Listening to Mr. Dean's colorful history stories

Philosophizing with Mr. Smith during Calculus instead of doing math

Hearing Cathy Bloome read "Uncle Remus" stories

Waving at people with Malcolm Carroll in the Commons on Fridays

Being uncontrollably nutty with Rob McColley

Riling up spectators at basketball games with shouts of "Thureceee!"

Laughing

Frolicking during Off-Campus

Skipping out on yearbook to have snow-ball and mud fights

*The reader may notice that I don't have a "Things I Won't Miss About UHS" list. True, there are some negative aspects of high school, but the best one that I could come up with was having to write this page.

Shaping Up ...

.. And Shipping O

At the end of the 1989 school year — at the end of months of noisy and difficult renovation, at the end of a lot of hard work and a lot of fun times — the UHS students and faculty bid farewell to the seniors and cautiously looked forward to the incoming freshmen and sophomore classes. It had been a year of experience — both good and bad. And as the student body compared themselves to what and who they had been at the beginning of the year, they could definitely see that individually, and as a whole, they had taken a shape of their own. As they look through the pages of this Rosemary in future years, they hopefully will remember their life and times at UHS.
