Area's only black-owned station celebrates 2 decades

250 well-wishers, bands mark event

URBANA — Champaign-Urbana took some time out Friday night to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the only black-owned radio station between Chicago and St. Louis.

On April 9, 1989, Vernon L. Barkstall, Lonnie Clark and J.W. Pirtle started a station that took its name from their initials — WBCP — 1580 AM on the dial.

"We're going to be around another 20 years," sales manager Dwayne Hubbard said Friday.

It was clear that the station has a lot of fans, from the 250 or so people at the party, to the proclamations from the mayors of Champaign and Urbana, to one after another great jazz, gospel and urban contemporary bands.

The station honored current and past staffers and heard kind words from area ministers and William Kyles, representing U.S. Rep. Tim Johnson of Urbana, at the Holiday Inn Hotel & Conference Center, 1001 Killarney St., U.

Clark, a former Urbana alderman, said he hopes the station goes on forever — even if he's not at the helm.

"The station is doing well, though advertising isn't as good as it has been. We've had some interest in (buying the station) from some young professionals in the community," Clark said, declining to be specific.

He noted that cities like Springfield and Decatur still don't have what Champaign-Urbana has had for two decades.

When the three men decided the start the station, there were already radio stations aiming at an urban contemporary audience, but not so many here, and none owned by black people, Clark said.

Clark, Pirtle, a Champaign city council member, and Mr. Barkstall, the president and chief executive officer of Urban League of Champaign, who died in 1995, had three goals, Clark said — to organize, to educate and to inform.

It didn't hurt if the music was entertaining as well.

"We wanted to be a voice for the community, and showcase the talents here," Clark said.

The station, now in offices on North Fourth Street in Champaign, started with the live talk show, "Straight Talk," which continues today.

"We still alternate turns hosting that program," Clark said of his long friendship with Pirtle, the first black person to become deputy mayor of Champaign.
