

You are cordially invited to attend a presentation on

Racial Micro-Aggressions: Implications for Community Relations

Monday, February 7, 2011
5:30 p.m.
Champaign Council Chambers
102 N. Neil Street

Presented by:

Stacy Harwood
Ruby Mendenhall
Margaret Browne Huntt

Center for Democracy in a Multiracial Society,
University of Illinois

Co-sponsored by:

City of Champaign
Human Relations
Commission

and

Champaign Community
and Police Partnership
(CCAPP)

America elected its first person of color to the office of Presidency on Nov. 4, 2008. This election rightly signifies a breakdown of some racial barriers; however, many Americans inaccurately believe that racism no longer exists in the Country. Forms of discrimination, more subtle than in the past, continue. These inconspicuous forms of discrimination are often termed micro-aggressions. Presenters will discuss how micro-aggressions demean, exclude and invalidate people of color, and the implications for the Champaign Community.