Underclassmen

Look to the stars and to your future.

Class Officers: Sally Frye, Bob Hatch, Deena Bender, Terry Shull, Charlotte Nesmith

Stars of the Second Magnitude

The dreams of the class of '59 to be unperclassmen were finally fulfilled in a year that will long be remembered.

Feeling sophisticated as upperclassmen, the juniors could be seen proudly displaying their shiny gold class rings.

Faced with a great deal of hard work ahead, the juniors had two parties that vied for the election of class officers. After successful campaigning, capable officers elected on a split ticket were Bob Hatch, President; Terry Shull, Vice-President; Sally Frye, Secretary; Charlotte Nesmith, Treasurer; and Deena Bender, Publicity Chairman.

Being able to choose a wider variety of elective courses, some juniors specialized in commercial studies, while others earned money by working part time in D.O. Class discussions turned from the three-dimension polygons in solid geometry to the amendments of the Constitution in civics. Every junior who studied English literature will never forget Macbeth and the weird sisters of Shakespeare, nor the ethereal poetry of Wordsworth and Shelley.

The junior class exhibited musical and dramatic abilities as members won high ratings in both district and state contests. Many juniors held offices in clubs, and the junior boys participating in sports fought hard, showing great promises for their senior year at U.H.S.

Working hard to earn money for the Prom, the juniors had no trouble in selling their delicious home-made candy during the noon hours. The junior class sponsor, Mr. Stanley Hynes, who was a big help with the Prom, was also responsible for a large sum of money, $150 to be exact, the price for which his angel food cake sold in the all-school auction. Proceeds from the auction went toward another very special and new project, the foreign exchange student.

Class Officers: Larry Edwards, Chris Hastings, Vicki Barth, Sally Hopson, Jan St. Clair

Stars of the Third Magnitude

As the class of '60 completed their second year at U.H.S., the members could be proud of many achievements.

Showing a desire for efficient class officers, three sophomore parties ran candidates in the election—the "Five Pennies", the "Mountaineers", and the "Line-Ups." After the ballots were counted, President, Chris Hastings; Vice-President, Vicki Barth; Secretary, Sally Hopson; Treasurer, Larry Edwards; and Publicity Chairman, Jan St. Clair, composed the winning party.

The theme, "Oct a push-em-over," captured first prize in the float contest of the homecoming parade. When the cast for the winter play had been selected, the sophomores boasted parts portrayed by three members of their class.

One highlight of the year for many sophomores was learning to drive under the capable instruction of Mr. Oscar Adams. Some worked diligently on the staff of the school newspaper, the ECHO, while others earned membership in the girls honorary swimming club, Terrapin. In addition, many sophomore students became members of Lambda, scholastic honorary.

With memories of a very successful sophomore year, the class of '60 looks forward to an even more challenging one as they become upperclassmen.

Class Officers: Dwight Powell, Joanne Myers, Andy Smith, Betsy Lyman. Absent: Doris Lynam

Stars of the Fourth Magnitude

Losing books, forgetting locker combinations, and wandering through the halls in bewilderment were all signs of the freshmen as they became acquainted with U.H.S.

Although green in many ways, the freshmen displayed clever campaign slogans and buttons as the elections of class officers rolled around. Results of vigorous campaigning by the two parties, the "Pollylops" and the "Zestettes," were: Dwight Powell, President; Doris Lynam, Vice-President; Betsy Lyman, Secretary; Joanne Myers, Treasurer; and Andy Smith, Publicity Chairman.

Those who passed through the U.H.S. corridors during the school year could well have heard shrieks coming from the biology room as freshmen studied the innermost parts of an earthworm. If anyone had poked his head into the English rooms, he would have seen baffled faces as the freshmen were introduced to Odysseus, the Cyclops, and Polyphemus. Finding the unknown, "x," and translating "Puellae est bonae" or "Como esta usted?" were other new challenges for the freshmen.

The largest class of Urbana High School, the freshmen were well-represented in clubs and sports, and many were initiated into Alpha, the freshman scholastic honorary.

"There's Rosemary . . .

Early in the summer of 1957, the staff began to plan the '58 Rosemary. Since the International Geophysical Year would be from June, 1957, to December, 1958, the editors decided to base the theme of the yearbook on this timely subject. Soon Igy, a very special, petite angel, was created to guide the staff in their plans for the Rosemary, and to help students recall memories of '57-'58.

As the year sped along, division editors, headed by Susie Mitchell, Editor-in-Chief, became acquainted with such terms as "bleeding" and "mortising," while staff artist, Camille Flores, created clever poses and expressions for Igy. Wilmer, the patient photographer, took many pictures of home-rooms, classes, and activities.

Meanwhile, ad staff members and tryouts busily sought ads from business and professional men to provide a major source of income for the Rosemary. For the first time, ad staff members also wrote articles for the Activities Section. These articles passed through many hands as they were first proofread by the division editors, and then by Literary Editor, Dorothy Hubbard.

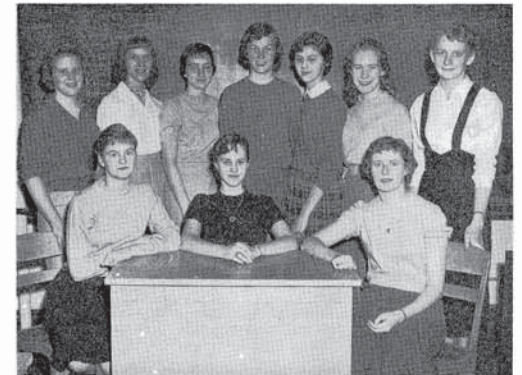

As deadlines neared, the typists could be found in the Rosemary room almost every night, typing and retyping articles and identifications. At last, the work was finished. On Class Night, May 28, the first 1958 Rosemarys were presented to school principal, Mr. Braun, and to Mr. Hynes. Staff members received their annuals at an informal party on May 27, and the rest of the students received theirs after school on May 29.

All was not work for the Rosemary staff. As in past years, they sponsored a cloakroom at all home basketball games. In the spring the new staff treated this year's staff to a picnic. Highlight of the year was planning the crowning of Miss Rosemary of 1958, Laurel Hovde, and the presenting of her court at the Christmas Dance, "Mistletoe Magic."

Echo

This year Echo editors and reporters combined efforts to publish a newspaper that was pleasing to the student body and also merited a high rating from Quill and Scroll. A bi-weekly publication, the Echo was delivered to subscribers' lockers on Wednesdays. Copies were also sold for ten cents during both lunch hours on "Echo days."

Students noticed many changes in their newspaper this year. More pictures were printed, especially in the advertisements, to add interest to the layouts. Senior pictures, instead of snapshots, were used in "Senior Celebrities" articles. Also appearing on the feature page were clever literary items, such as original poems and short stories. Another change was the introduction of "Club Corner" for brief accounts on school club activities. In addition to school athletic events, extramural sports, such as hot-rodging and speed skating, were covered on the sports page.

Quill and Scroll

This year twelve new members were chosen to join four past members of Quill and Scroll, national journalism honorary for high school students. Composed of juniors and seniors, the society requires that the members do outstanding work on either the "Rosemary" or on the "Echo," rank in the upper half of their class, and be approved by the local and national Quill and Scroll board. At the spring awards assembly, initiates were presented with membership cards and pins.

Student Council

The student lounge was opened by the council, serving as a place where students could relax, talk, and dance to the music of the jukebox. New lounge furniture, for which donations were made by the past graduating classes, was also purchased by the council.

Development of a Code of Ethics aroused much discussion among the student council representatives and the student body. Interested students worked hard to write a code that would express the ideals of Urbana High School and that would serve as a guide to good conduct.

The highlight of the student council year was the adoption of the foreign exchange student program by the student body. Under student council leadership, students responded enthusiastically, 95% voting to sponsor the program. This resulted in a vigorous campaign to raise the needed money. At an all-school auction, students made bids for such items as fried chicken, a certificate for a driving lesson and two cakes baked by two men on the faculty. A volleyball game between nine faculty men and nine senior boys netted more profits for the project. Two bake sales, a dance, and a car wash carried the fund raising campaign to a successful finish.
