

Girls' PE Class Tackles Touch Football

The Girls' PE department may not produce All-American football players, but "they try harder." For the first time, touch football and fencing were added to the girls' program. In addition, student gym leaders assisted teachers in checking roll, instructing classes, and administering grades. Through the department, the semester was divided into three six-week periods, thus permitting specialization in course offerings and a wider variety of athletic activities.

Girls in PE classes at the Annex take advantage of the outdoor track to improve techniques in field and track events.

WEST Side Park provides a spacious setting for PE classes. These boys head toward the park for a game of football.

DRE AGNEW begins work on a toy fire engine, which will be given to an underprivileged child for Christmas.

JACK HIGGS, pre-vocational counselor, and Judy Chapman discuss job possibilities in Champaign-Urbana.

FRED PETERSON spends part of each school day working in the stockroom and produce department of a local grocery store.

WITH precision that would do credit to a military drill, custodians keep the floor polished and clean during all local basketball games. Left, Nora Long prepares the counter for the swarm of seven hundred students who will eat lunch in the cafeteria.

Occupational Explorations: Pilot Project for Career Selection

With a staff of six teachers, a vocational counselor, and a social counselor, the newly-created Occupational Explorations program is one of several school-work opportunities at Champaign High School. The locale of the work experience varies from the school building itself to community business establishments and private homes. The eighty participating students receive pre-vocational guidance from the program's counselor so that they will have a better knowledge of job opportunities.

Non-Academic Staff Serve with a Smile

As members of the Unit IV food service staff, the sixteen cafeteria workers prepare and serve lunches for approximately seven hundred students and faculty members each day. Before most students are even on their way to school the women are busily mixing and kneading 100 pounds of flour, 800 pints of milk, and 32 pounds of butter in order to provide the 4000 rolls which are eagerly snatched up.

In order to maintain a comfortable, clean building and a neat yard, a staff of eight night workers and three day janitors is employed during the school year.

LOUETTA JARVIS completes the last step in roll production.

First West Campus Graduates?

They came in great numbers—734 to be exact—and expected much from high school life. From the first there were problems...of space, schedules, and identities. But many were able to laugh and take things as they came.

They tried to study—often against a confused background of dust and steel rafters—but for sophomores other things were important too. Club meetings in the Little Theater, sophomore football practice and a few Saturday night dates filled most of their extra hours. Drivers' licenses began to appear on the scene and the Honda population grew with each 16th birthday. Sock hops (where boys actually danced) were a new experience—so was the first midnight session of cramming. Under the guiding hand of Mr. David Casteel and Mrs. Rene Kirkpatrick, the sophomore class officers, Art Ackerman, president; Barb Larocque, vice president; Pam McEvoy, treasurer; Nancy Wright, secretary tried to make sophomores more at home in a new environment. The Annex was strange at first, but as the year progressed few wanted to leave those sacred yellow walls.

Seniors Mix Prom, PSAT's

Approximately 732 students sprinkled lightly with sixty pounds of brilliance were blended with four selected class officers: Paul Idleman, president; Cathy Douglas, vice-president; Dee Dee Harrison, secretary; Candy Witt, treasurer and two sponsors, Mrs. Leslie Billet and Mr. Carl Wolfenbarger. Twenty thousand pop bottles were added as yeast to raise money for a Prom. Kneaded with the pressure of PSAT's and stated by twelve red, hot Hondas, the mixture was molded into a pan greased with midnight oil, then baked nine months in the halls of CHS to yield Champaign's last unbroken graduating class.

BRAVING THE COLD with bare knees and Homecoming spirit on Bermuda Tag Day, these Junior girls overcome such hazards as bumps, cracks, and traffic-clogged streets to complete the long ride to school.
