Thanks to hard work and team unity, the chess team won the state championship last year, finishing with a 29-2-1 record. Kevin Leuthold, Malcolm Carroll, and Dave Karasick all finished in the top ten in the league individually as the team won league for the third straight year. Coaches Terry Hutson, Paul Lock and Tyrone Jones have seen the team start this year's season undefeated in twenty matches, already defeating two of the top — rated teams in the state. After losing only two players from last year, this year's team looks even better and hopes are high to win the state title again.

Intense Academic Competition

The tradition continued this year as the Uplana High School JETS team finished second in regional competition to qualify for the sectional meet. The students competed in six different areas: math, physics, chemistry, biology, English, and graphics. At regionals, John Balbach took first along with John Lee finishing second in graphics. Nicolas Dade placed second and Brady Montz received third. Kevin Leuthold ranked second in math. The team did extremely well, sending fourteen of its top competitors to Sectionals on the fourth of March.

14th Dinner Another Success

This year the Student Senate held its 15th Thanksgiving Dinner. Over 500 people came to the Dinner to sing the famous Turkey carols with Mr. Lemons. Under the chairperson Jason Combs, 150 students and parents donated their time to provide a nice Thanksgiving for others.

The Thanksgiving dinner is the most widely known function of Student Senate, but certainly not the only one. With the renovation, the focus of Senate has been the students. They have had many student complaints and suggestions. Senate has tried to improve the school conditions for the students. Senate also held its 2nd Annual Tiger Tailgrent, the annual Auction, worked with the Special Olympics, and manned the Pepsi machines. In addition to the well-publicized events, Student Senate is always working to serve the students and help keep the school running smoothly.

Helping Hands

Office aides are students who help the counseling, attendance office and administrators. They collect the attendance sheets and run passes to the rooms from counselors and students. Students serving as office aides receive one credit toward graduation for their duty.

Although the Speech team organized late this year, it still enjoyed a successful season. The team included Tom Grassman with Humorous Interpretation, Matt Pearson with Extemporaneous Speaking, Todd Lowery on Original Comedy, Laura Steigmann delivering both Prose and Verse, Jenry Anderson with Oratorical Declamation, Mehrdad Azemun on Radio Speaking, and Rob McColley and Mehrdad Azemun presenting their Humorous Duet Acting skit. The group placed fourth overall in Regionals, and over half the team advanced to Sectionals. As well as sponsoring WUHS and the Video Calendar, Speech also presented Group Interpretation and its Group Play.

Shan Lusk receives a phone call at Burnham

Over 8,000 students die every year in alcohol-related accidents. The SADD and Saferides programs are an attempt to decrease this number. Students involved give speeches, volunteer time, and help make the public aware of one of the country's largest problems: drinking and driving.

SWI is an organization devoted to social awareness. Through sales of baked goods and tie-dye T-shirts we raised money to be distributed to worthy organizations such as the Sanctuary movement for Central American. Many forums were held on Sanctuary, the effect of the Soviet invasion on Afghanistan, and other current topics. We held a concert to promote World Peace. The Lonely Guys, Lonely Trailer, and Titanic Love Affair were among the bands participating. Various campus organizations were at the concert spreading the word about the importance of World Peace.

Future Secretaries Association is an organization for students interested in office careers. It is open to juniors and seniors who are enrolled in any business course.

The purpose of the club is to become familiar with all kinds of office careers by listening to speakers who are actually working as a legal secretary, medical transcriptionist, accountant, etc. Other meetings may be devoted to fashions for the office, grooming and makeup, interviewing, and other topics of interest.

PUPS Teaches Skills

PUPS is held at the church by Lincoln Square every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The students are split up into three groups; those who interact with parents, those who take care of infants and toddlers, and the students who take care of three to five year-olds. They work on improving many skills, such as motor skills and social skills, to name a few.

They talk with the parents and try to give them better ways to approach their children in a more effective way. The PUPS students also learn from the parents what to expect from marriage and children. The children in the group learn how to be away from their parents and to make other friends. PUPS is truly a great advantage to the students, children and parents involved in this special class.

Support, advice, and concern. These are what Peer Counseling offers students at UHS. Students in this class were trained by Grace Winfield to be counselors for those who need to discuss a problem with someone other than an adult. The class also sang Christmas carols at Clark Lindsay, and planned field trips. With Peer Counselors, help is on the way.

Peer Counselors

Students looking towards their future are able to explore careers and jobs outside of school. Those in the Executive High School Internship program have started their work with sponsors in the community. The Internship program allows students to earn high school credit while working in a field they are considering as a future career. Through CWT and WECEP, students may also meet graduation requirements while these programs give them general and practical experience that may help in planning their future.

Medical Careers and Health Assistants classes meet once a day. They practice health skills and learn about the human anatomy in preparation for their careers. This year the group held a very successful blood drive, with 69 students and staff members donating 53 pints of blood. The students worked in all areas of the blood drive: registration and screening of donors, computer search, testing of blood, and processing of blood.
