Junior leadership is the program fifty junior girls go through so that when they are seniors they can be senior leaders. These girls learned the histories, rules, officiating, and methods of play of all the sports the physical education department offers.

As juniors the girls learned the workings of the physical education office, how to take attendance, fill out white cards and first aid. During their junior year the girls helped with many activities of the physical education department. In class the girls practiced officiating sports and leading exercises.

Pepettes build spirit At CCHS this year

As CCHS's most active Pepette squad in years, the Pepettes have not only supported their teams but performed as well. Led by Pepette leaders Ellen Cleavenger, Carolyn Jackson, Janet Stevens, Debbie Smith, Karen Neely, and Cindy Wells the Pepettes performed at football and basketball halftimes. The forty-two girl squad combined march steps and dance steps to popular songs. They were asked to perform at PTA and band concerts. Early mornings and wet feet were all part of the procedure. Curlers, boots, and other odd things made the squad a sight on the football field every morning before a performance. Bake sales and a number of money making projects were tried in order to supplement a non-existing treasury.

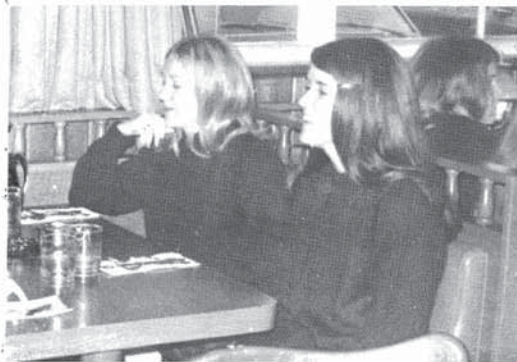

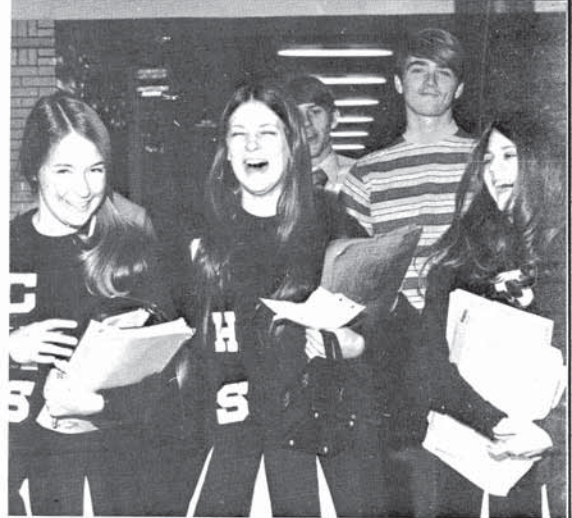

Breakfast at Uncle John's before the Homecoming game and meeting for suppers added to the spirit of the club. This year the group cheered themselves hoarse at the games and went all out to try to raise the lagging spirit at CCHS. They sat in cheering sections together and their spirit influenced the whole school.

Peparoons promote Spirit with contest

Seventy-five girls formed the core of the Central pep club, the Peparoons. Sponsored by Mrs. Pray the group has worked at promoting the lagging spirit at CCHS. For Homecoming and many other games they painted dozens of signs and posted them throughout the school. During the Homecoming week they declared Farmer's Day and encouraged everyone to come dressed as farmers, depicting the Mattoon Green Wave. The members dressed as farmers, decorated a car for class competition and were seen dining at Uncle John's afterwards. They have cheered loudly at assemblies and games in support of their teams.

The officers Diane Talbott, Traci Nally, Sue Haley, and Mary Leonberger worked to keep the club going. They were responsible for selecting and paying for the uniform of next year's Max Maroon. The Peparoons supported not only their teams but International Supper by being responsible for the Italian foods table. They gave the school the Big 12 Flags that are used during Homecoming. They supported their school by sponsoring the buses to away games. Their biggest effort came during Beat Urbana week. They initiated the first annual cheer contest. The Peparoons have done an outstanding job of promoting spirit.

Varsity squad leads Maroons to victories

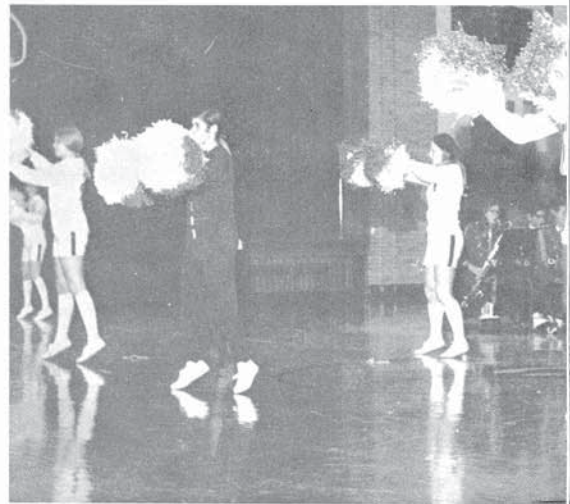

The cheerleaders lead cheers at home and on pep buses to all away games. To make money they sold 1,000 sponges and had bake sales at lunches. They practiced three times a week and continued this after school started. Northern Illinois University proved to be a good place for the girls to learn new cheers and techniques in the summer.

Sophomores cheer boys on to victory

Under the new sponsorship of Miss Rasmussen, the sophomore cheerleaders were a very ambitious group. They were chosen in the fall by a group of teachers and students on the basis of their ability, grades, and enthusiasm. They practiced every Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights after school. Each girl had an opportunity to learn leadership skills as the girls took turns being captain. They were each captain for one week at a time. During this week the captain chose the cheers to be practiced, brought up business to be discussed and assigned the order of the cheers for the next game. The girls also practiced their tumbling for the 'sink it' cheers at their practices.

To make money the girls had bake sales in the cafeteria during lunch hours. They had a dinner for the Urbana sophomore cheerleaders in the Bresnan home before the Champaign-Urbana basketball game in February. Through many hours of practice the girls became an extremely talented and skilled group.

Sportsmen participate To acquire equipment

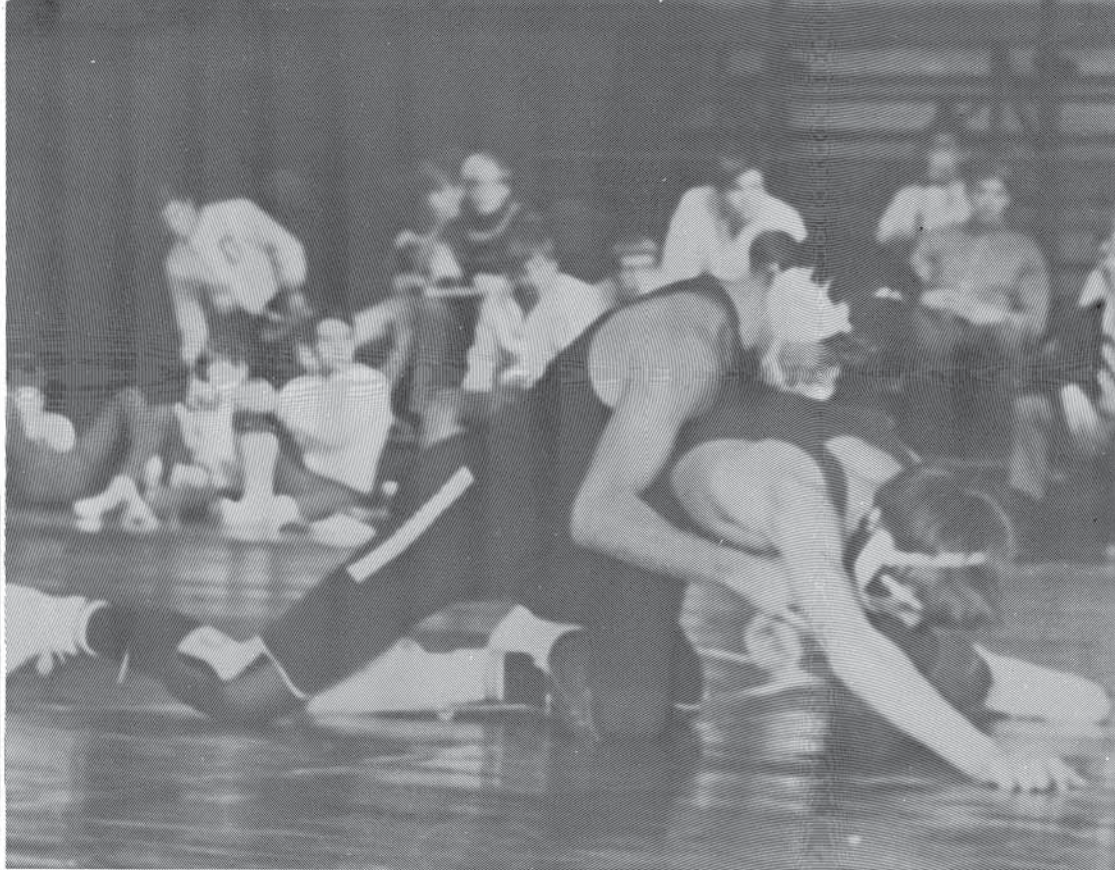

The C-Club is composed of letter winners in wrestling, football, swimming, tennis, basketball, baseball, cross country, track, and golf. The club is an honorary club for any athlete that has earned a letter in one of the Champaign Central's sports teams. The club worked concession stands to earn money that was used toward new athletic equipment and a tape system for the club. The officers of the club were Tom Murray, Richard Lore, Doug Wilson, and Howie Walker. They were all active in a variety of sports. Many of the members held letters in more than one sport. All the members have worked hard and spent long hours practicing in order to excel in their respective sports. Joining this honorary allows members to enjoy various activities.

Sportsmen exhibit Stamina, mastery

The 1970 CHS gridders were an outstanding representation of fighting spirit. The Maroons gained a 7-2 season, even though they had been daunted to have a season of losses.

Champaign got off to a strong start early in the year with an upset of the Streator Bulldogs. There was excitement in the Joliet game, a game that Champaign seized its revenge for their last season loss to the west Joliet school. Central then suffered a loss to the Greenwave of Mattoon, a loss that dampened the Homecoming spirit. Out of the next two games Central suffered a loss to Danville and overcame the Lincoln Railsplitters with a win. The season ended with a satisfying win over the Urbana Tigers. Again Wright Street belongs to us, although there were moments in the game that put doubts to who the owner would be for the next year.

For the entire season the Maroons deserve the greatest respect and praise for all of their endeavors.

Cross-Country team rebuilds under new coach

Central's cross-country team, hampered by a late start and meager turnout, found themselves with a winless season.

With no returning lettermen, first year Coach Dike Stirret was faced with a rebuilding task. Coach Stirret, himself a well known distance runner, took part in most practices demonstrating new training techniques.

This year's team was composed of senior lettermen Dave Becker, John Malloy, Dave Keeling, Steve Ayers, George Kelley, and Jim Cobb. Returning next year will be lettermen Corey Davis and Mark Heimburger, along with John Barge, Steve Skaperdas and injury plagued Karl Broadrick.

Next season has a bright outlook for Central

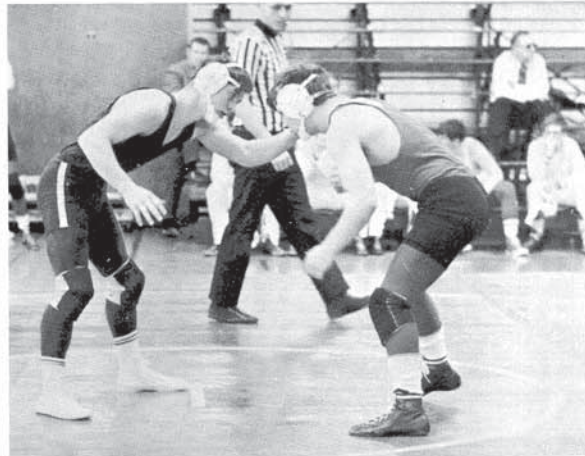

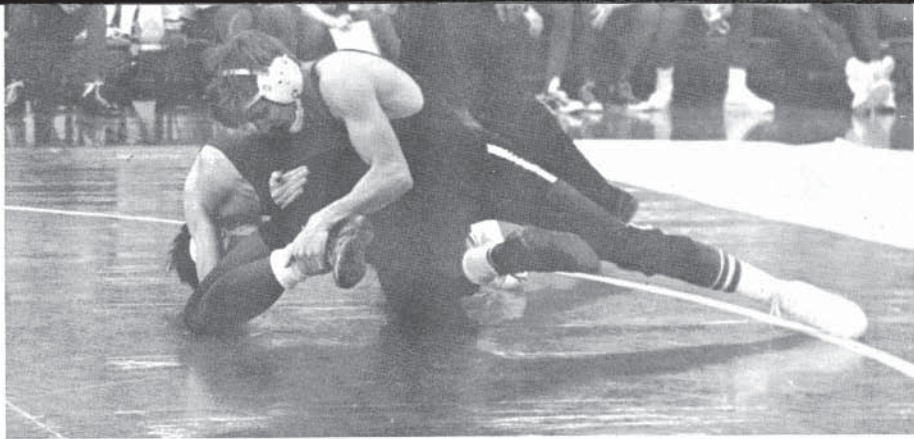

Central grapplers had a season of fair weather with a season slate. Coach Don Pittman coached the squad with the assistance of Mr. Dave Lindsey. This season could be classified as one of building. The matmen will only lose five members to graduation this year. Andy Warner, John Calcagno, Dan Graham, Rich Foley, and Tom Murray were the senior nucleus. Next season has a brighter outlook with the return of Randy Burwell, Jim Baldwin, John Walsh, Jim Petry, Ben Brown, Jim Gibson, Jack Moore, and Pat Murray.

Maintenance of high standards is foremost goal

The School Board members worked diligently to maintain the high standards of the Unit 4 school system. They determined the policies which affected thousands of students in the Unit 4 area. In the reaching of these decisions, the Board considered the growth rate of students per year, the need for an updated curriculum, and future expansion. The main problem right now is the changing of boundaries for students.

Dr. Marshall K. Berner, superintendent of Unit 4 Schools, was responsible for the execution of these policies. He saw that the jobs created by the school system were filled, prepared a budget, and kept the Board informed on school activities.

Cheerfulness counts

Coping with unpredictable situations was a job well met by Principal Bernard P. Fleener. His cheerful attitude and ability to get along with students bridged the gap between students and faculty which is vitally important to bring the school together to function as one unit. Mr. Fleener has contributed immensely to make Central an exceptional high school with a high standard of quality and stature.

Administrative problems are evenly distributed

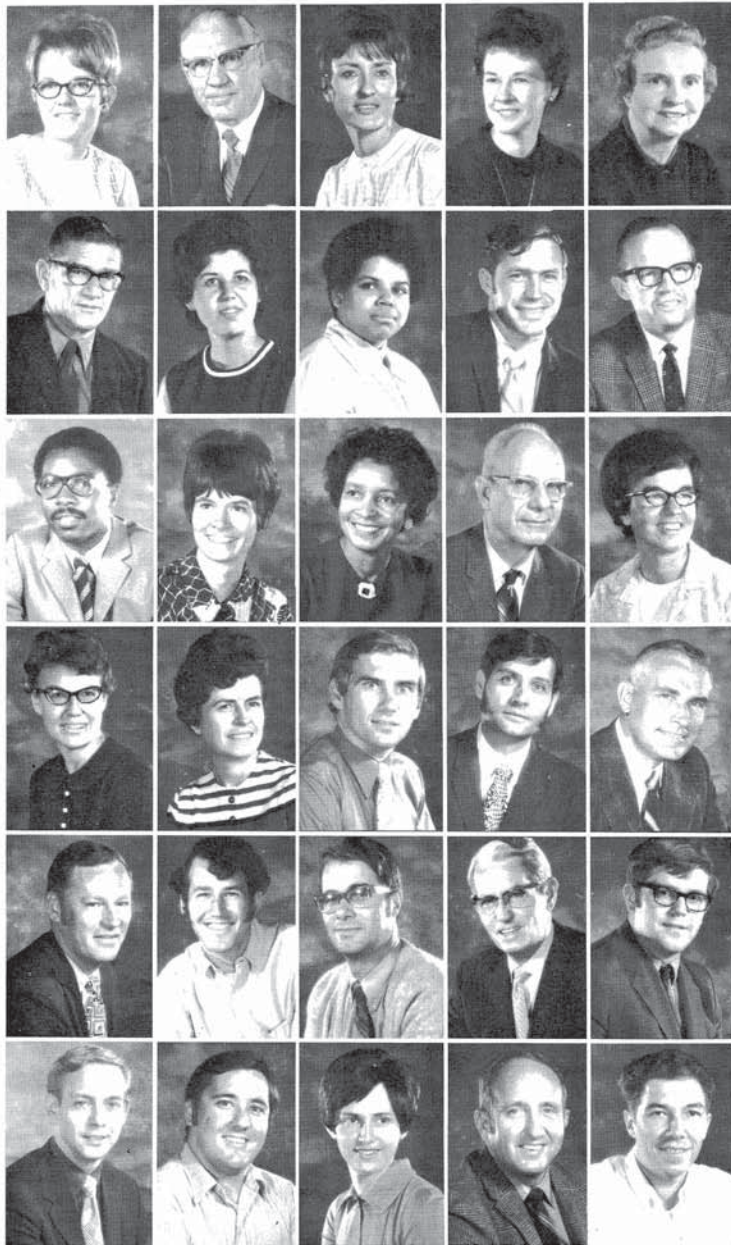

As each new year arrives, so does an avalanche of administrative problems. To aid our principal is Assistant Principal Carl Nelson. His main duties included the scheduling of classes and the arrangement of the school calendar. Mrs. Bertha Darsham, also an assistant principal, endeavored to help the girls of our school with their problems. Tom Gher completes the roster of administrators. Both Mrs. Darsham and Mr. Gher were often in contact with students while giving advice on school matters and personal help.

Behind the scenes: stress on efficiency

The cafeteria staff was made up of ten regular employees who skillfully prepared the lunches at Central. Nearly 550 meals were sold in an average school day, thanks to our hard working staff under the supervision of Margaret Dean.

The custodian crew consisted of ten men who cooperated completely with students and faculty. Some of their jobs meant emptying countless garbage cans and sweeping miles of hallway each day. Our custodians, under the direction of George McCulley, performed the endless chores with cheerfulness and efficiency.

Sophomores climb to Greater achievements

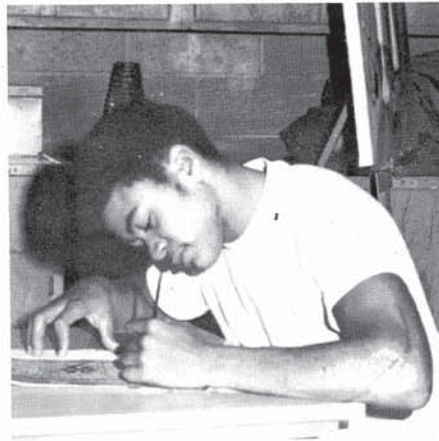

Being a sophomore finally meant realizing you're in high school. High school also brought with it many new and different changes. Sophomores welcomed five minute breaks joyously as they became accustomed to seventy minute classes. New courses and facilities meant double work as well as double homework.

Competition was very intense. Sophomore athletics had a lot to offer. Cheerleaders cheered their team on and created a lot of enthusiasm for cheering fans. Sophomores tried hard in class competition, but never quite made it. They tried to out yell the upper classmen in pep assemblies, decorated halls, and made up cheers.

Sophomores can look back on exam cramming, nerve racking rides with the driver education instructor, a worn-out math book, and differences with teachers while they look forward to the future.
