Buildings Show One Side of Concrete and Cornfields

“Concrete and Cornfields” was chosen as the theme for the 1974 Maroon because those words typified the Midwest, central Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, and Champaign Central High School in particular.

Champaign County has the richest soil in the entire world. The corn, wheat, soybeans, and livestock raised in this area help feed the world.

This section of the Midwest, however, is not strictly rural. With Chicago, St. Louis, and Indianapolis only two hours away, it's very easy to see a show, go to Six Flags over Mid-America, or just spend the day in a bigger city. Champaign-Urbana, as the Twin Cities are commonly called, is also the home of the University of Illinois campus. With the mushroom-shaped Assembly Hall, the 21 storied rust-colored Century 21, and several modern classroom, dorm and apartment buildings, Champaign and Urbana have their share of mod architecture.

Some of the problems for the students of Central involve finding which niche they fit into, which may entail going against their parents' or friends' beliefs. They have to decide for themselves, however, because they have to live the life that's chosen. Either way they choose, it will further the struggle between concrete and cornfields.

← Century 21 houses apartments, business offices, a restaurant, and the Hilton Hotel, besides being an interesting landmark.

↑↑ The Assembly Hall offers the world of sports, concert music, drama, and dance to Champaign-Urbana.

↑ More and more apartment buildings are being built in Champaign, as shown by this condominium on Park and Elm.

Activities Break Up Day, for Faculty, Students

Fun! No matter where they were, who they were, or what they were doing, Central High Students always managed to have fun. From watching a football game to being in the Homecoming parade as a queen candidate, to just talking on one of the pay phones in the school corridors, the kids could always enjoy themselves.

Sports, clubs, classes, and jobs were high on the list of "Things To Do." Sports offered something to everyone, whether they participated athletically, actually in the sport, or vocally, as a spectator. If contact sport was desired, football and wrestling filled that need. For the non-contact sports type person, golf, tennis, and swimming fit the bill. The faculty even got involved in the sports scene, when some of the female teachers formed their own intramural volleyball team, called the Volleybelles.

Clubs were a big part of life at Central. Everything from chess to contemporary music was held during the sixth hour activity period, and many of those clubs held meetings outside of school time, both for business and for special programs and speakers. Other clubs, such as Junior and Senior Gym Leaders, Maroon, and Chronicle, had regular class periods in which to meet.

Classes ranged from Microbiology to Family Living. Every student had their favorite teacher to talk to and their favorite class to sleep in, and few people could agree concerning which was which. With six holes to fill in their schedule, and five classes a day, the sleeping-type classes and the interesting classes were often repeated in a day.

Jobs took up a big percentage of the students' time. CCE offered a job suited to the students during school, and the after school and weekend jobs were usually set up by the pupils themselves at various places around town.

All these factors contributed to making the school year more than just a daily routine. They helped break up the monotony of the school day, and aided the students in gaining interesting and pleasant experiences.

Students Face Summer with Relief Despite Tasks

← ↑↑ Enjoying the summer in Pam Christman's convertible was the motto of some of her friends who didn't have cars.

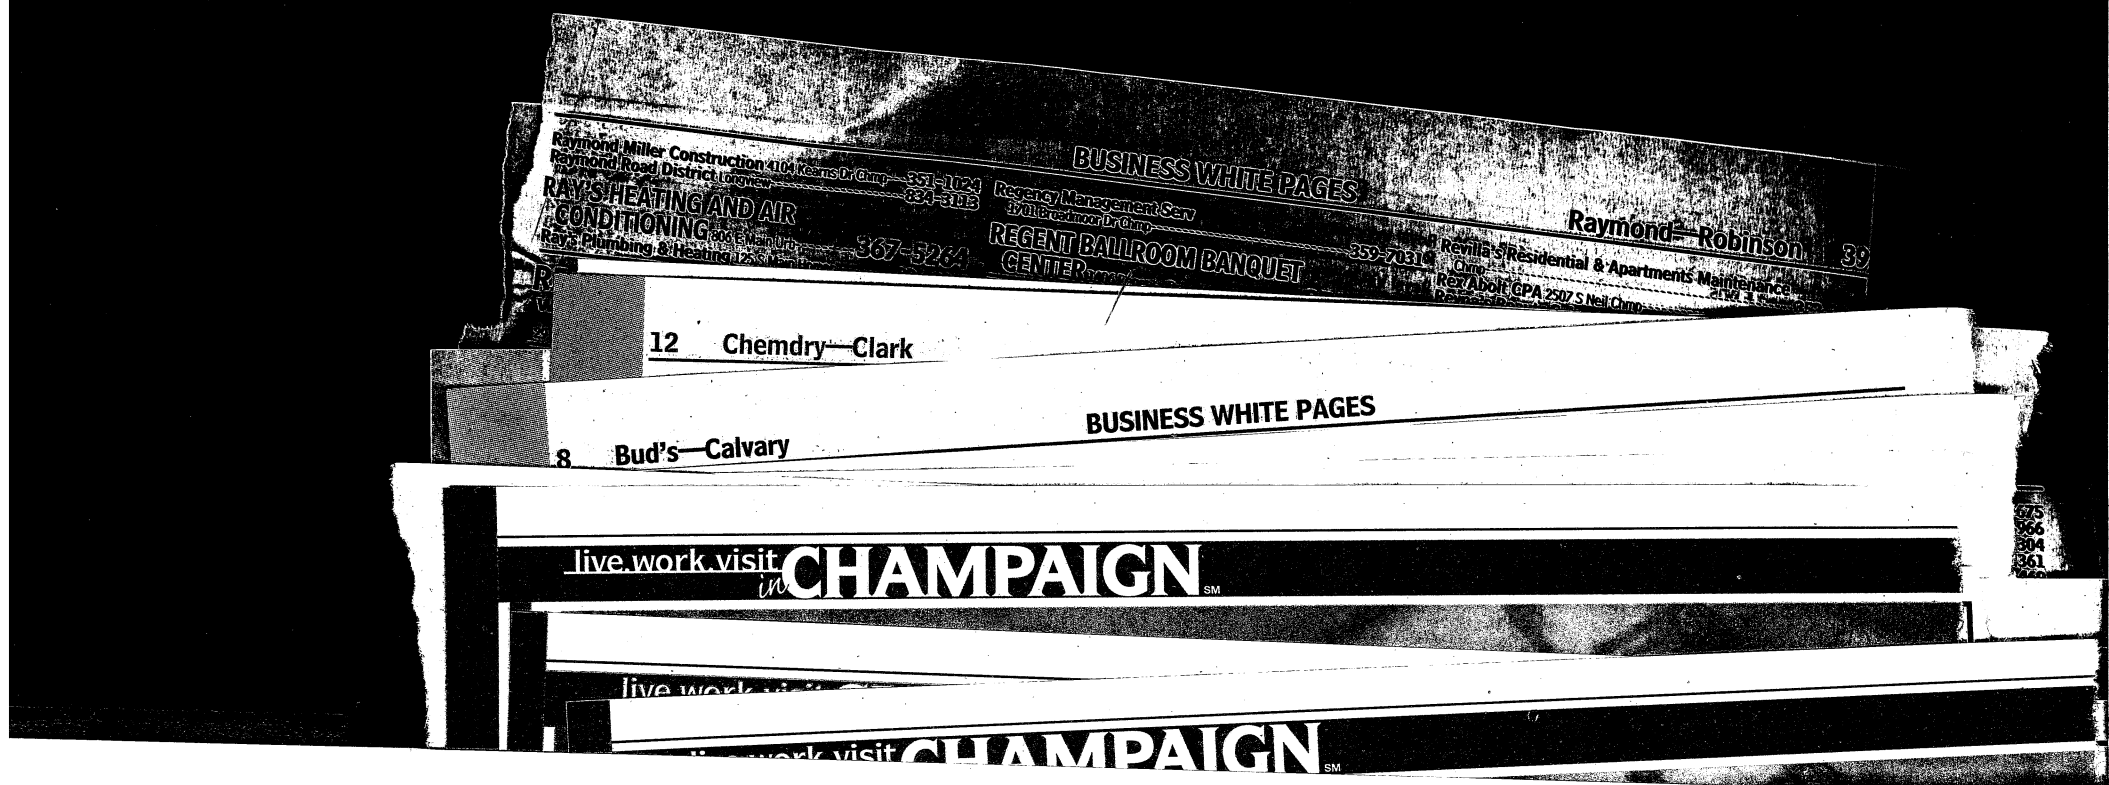

↑ Absorbing all the sun she can, Cindy Peddycourt catches a last chance of sun in her front yard after school.

↑↑ Regina Bell tries to revive her dying rose bush at summer's end.

→ A discount at Baskin-Robbins makes eating ice-cream on the job a temptation for Rhonda Morill and her stomach.

→→ Brad Davis works for the Park District sweating off a few pounds, but earning a lot of money as a general handyman.

pite Tasks

Saying good-bye to friends at the end of the school year was hard, but with summer vacation ahead there was something to look forward to. Who knows, maybe they'd pop up at one of the free movies held at Hessel Park, or they might show up at some unexpected place.

Some students didn't have much of a choice, so they went out and got a money-making job, while others volunteered their services. A few of the lucky ones went away for the summer, and some just stayed home. Still, all they had to do was soak up the sunshine, occasionally doing a few odd jobs for their parents for example: gardening, housework, and taking out the garbage.

Despite the talk of another teachers' strike, school started on time this year. It was good to see all the smiling faces that you remembered from last year plus the additional smiling faces of all the new sophomores.

Registration

↓↓ Glenn Dannenberger fills out one of a thousand state impaction cards to get him through registration for his senior year.

→→ A change of schedule already? Hot, impatient, and hassled, John Cantrell, Mark Tymchyshyn, Rhonda Morill, Kathy Vaught, and Sue Twohey, wait in the counseling office.

→→→↓ After two mornings of work on registration, Tom Moran sneaks a glance at the baseball team in the MAROON Summer Supplement.

→→↓ Jim Lindsay and John Brown help keep Mrs. Holliday honest by inspecting the receipt given to them at registration.

↓ A lonely hamburger awaits its owner during registration.

Registration Cheers Bookkeeper, Disgusts Students

"Registration was fun, interesting, challenging, and nerveracking," groaned the bookkeeper, Mrs. Holliday, a smiling face under white hair on a tiny frame. She had a hard job and was under a lot of pressure, but put up with the noise and heat and was really on her toes. She enjoyed the experience because none of the students were rude.

Mrs. Holliday handled $28,000, mostly in checks. "It's really interesting. Only one check bounced."

Students had other viewpoints on registration. Some said it was frustrating, while others enjoyed it. The minimum cost of $18.00 seemed to have burned in everyone's mind. The $18.00 did not, however, include the cost for the yearbook, $6.00; activity ticket, $8.50; and the student insurance $4.50, with the total cost of $37.00.

Waiting was yet another story. If they came early, they didn't have to wait, but if they came after 1:00, it was a 15-minute wait amidst alot of sweaty bodies.

The activity tickets caused some confusion because some students thought the activity tickets covered all games, here or away. But this was a misunderstanding.

Out of 1308 students, 1140 of them went through the hassel of registration, while 168 registered late.

Smoking and Lunch Are Two Everyday Activities

Classes, jobs, sports and resting made up an average day of a normal student at Central High. More than fifty classes were offered to the students at Central ranging from P.E. to psychology and photography to analytical geometry. The classes lasted from fifty-five minutes to seventy-five minutes. Some of the classes went fast; others dragged along, depending on how well the class was liked.

Another event which contributed to making the "average day" a success was jobs. Around 180 students participated in the CCE program at Central. These students got out of school between 12:00 and 12:30 to work at their particular jobs. Some of the jobs were office work, mechanics, waitresses to name a few. Those who weren't so anxious to work that early in the day waited until after school or later on in the evening to visit their place of employment and pick up their checks.

Sports were also a big contribution to the busy days at Central. Extramural sports were offered to the students who were interested. Some of the sports included were tennis, wrestling, swimming, football and basketball. For those students who wanted to form their own team intramural sports were offered. Some of the sports included in this program were basketball, volleyball, baseball and softball. These sports were offered to both sexes.

After all this work who doesn't deserve a little rest?

Music Depart. Presents 20's Spoof to Full House

Songs, dances, giggles, corny lines, red cheeks, enormous eyes and bright tiny lips, flappers, Charleston stripes, polka dots and lots of noise, color and excitement were very important ingredients for the atmosphere of The Boyfriend, the fall musical for 1973-74.

The show was cute and lively and it brought back to Central the 20's and their roar.

The two evening performances were well received by two capacity audiences in the Little Theater, and to the amusement and happiness of the cast the public laughed and clapped hard as the curtain fell.

The show was the Chamber Choir's fall project.

Stage decoration, costumes, make up, publicity, programs, tickets and properties were done by members of the choir who at the same time were in the cast.

Orchestra members were provided by Central's Music Department, both band and vocal.

Mr. Decker, the Chamber Choir's conductor, directed both the musical and dramatic sections.

"Canned Raiders" Improve a Soggy '73 Homecoming

Droopy dummies and dripping decorations exhibited the theme "Can the Raiders," and what the weather of the homecoming game was like.

The sixth hour pep assembly brought out the school spirit of the Champaign Central students and faculty alike. Some of last year's graduates attended the assembly, hearing an extremely short talk from the guest speaker, John Levanti, of the U of I football team. Class competition, which consisted of riding on the back of their partners like a horse, was won by the aggressive sophomores.

It was announced that Terry McMahon and company was the 1st place winner of the car competition. A dinner for 2 at Katsinas', a gift certificate from Robesons for $10, $10 in cash, and 2 albums made up the prizes won.

They also announced the Junior attendant, Julie Corley, sophomore attendant, Lidia Breen, and the candidates for King and Queen. During the games half time, Teddy Morgan was crowned queen, and when everybody let their balloons go, the Central Varsity squad ran out on the field and won another game.

The Esquires helped the ending of the entire weekend along by serenading the couples at the dance at which Jeff Corley was crowned King.

↑↑ ← Allen Due set up the boundaries for each class, while the competitors wait nervously for the beginning and the end.

↑↑ Ty Helms brings his date, Susan Little, a glass of punch while the band plays on at Reflections.

↑ While Max Maroon rides on top, dead Raiders hang out the windows of the ambulance during the parade to Centennial Field.

Fall Play Probes Academic Freedom & Masculinity

The Male Animal, a play about academic freedom, poked fun at administrators and football players with equal wit. It told the story of a college professor who wanted to read the letters of Sacco and Vanzetti to his English class, despite discouragement by friends and family.

The play began with Tommy Turner coming home to find that a student, Michael Barnes, had told the newspapers about his desire to read the letters.

Tommy had not wanted anyone to know that he was going to read the letters, because everyone thought they were bad and that college students should not hear them.

That was just the beginning of Tommy's trouble.

Worst came to worst and Tommy ran the risk of losing his wife Ellen to Joe Ferguson, her old boyfriend.

The play climaxed when Tommy and Barnes got drunk and began fighting with Wally Myers and Joe Ferguson.

The theme of the play was that a man should do whatever he feels is right, no matter what.

Tryouts were held for three nights after school. Anyone could try out. After everyone did Mr. Romsland picked who he thought was best. The play presented a challenge to the cast. They rehearsed for eight weeks mostly after school and in the evening. The crew worked three weeks building the set which represented the Turner's living room.

Big Maroon Makes Debut During Beat Urbana Week

It all started one evening when Student Council decided to give the "go" for "Beat Urbana Week" hall decorations. From then on it was utter chaos.

On the evening of Nov. 5, 1973 each class racked their brains for a theme and how they would follow it. As it turned out the seniors must have thought the hardest, because they captured first place, using the theme "Champaign is on the Wright side of the Street."

During the "Beat Urbana Week" assembly, the entire school was visited by a mysterious friend by the name of Big Maroon. Big Maroon consisted of all the Central cheerleaders. Big Maroon tried to encourage the students and faculty to go see the Central vs. Urbana game. Later that night Urbana beat Central by a score of 32 to 20.

Christmas Endures Energy Crisis, Mall Construction

"How do you get a bulldozer down a chimney?" Santa had an opportunity to find out this year, since he arrived at the Christmas parade in a bulldozer with Miss Merry Christmas, Tina Demeris. Tina Demeris was elected by the student body. She wore the traditional red velvet robe and an untraditional hard hat to protect her from the mall construction. The downtown mall construction forced Santa to give up his more traditional sleigh.

The mall construction was not the only thing Santa had to cope with. Due to the energy crisis, fewer Christmas trees twinkled at windows and downtown Champaign remained dimmed for the holidays.

Eighteen inches of snow was one of the many surprises that Santa left this year. As a result, students enjoyed a popular 3 day addition to their Christmas vacation.

Despite the gas shortage and snow drifts, people managed to make one last exodus to Florida, the Virgin Islands, or Acapulco, Mexico.

↑↑ Tina Demeris rides in town on a bulldozer with Santa Claus, for a very unusual Christmas parade entrance.

Traditional Sports Going Strong After 50 Years

Development of sports was a rapid thing in the eyes of a coaching veteran such as Lee Cabutti. Basketball coach for more than 400 wins and 18 years, he saw changes in rules, but traditions remained. Two unchanged traditions were sportsmanship and athletic ability, the foundation of any team, whether basketball, football, or cheerleading.

Another tradition in Central was winning. Football in the past 13 years had seen 83 wins, 30 losses and 4 ties. The 1966-67 team turned in the best record, 9-0, while being first in the state. Their undefeated season caused Coach Tom Stewart to be voted high school coach of the year by the News Gazette All State Banquet.

Basketball wins dated back to when record keeping was non-existent. During the past 18 years of Coach Lee Cabutti's influence, the school saw 307 wins and 180 losses. Three teams made state finals with the best performance going to the 1968-69 team which placed third in the state. Before Coach Lee Cabutti, Coaches Harry Combes and Les Moyer tallied 499 wins to Central's tradition.

Another activity that went with these sports was cheerleading. As long as these sports existed at Central, there was some sort of crowd leader. Traditional cheerleading was founded back in the 1920's. Although the style was considerably different, the objective was the same: organizing the crowd to support the team.

This year's performances of cheerleaders, football and basketball team, became a part of Central's glorious past and tradition in the memories of school fans.

Traditional Sports

Football Has 5-4-1 Season, Four Members All Big 12

Head Football Coach Tom Stewart entered his 20th year of head coaching Champaign Central football in usual fashion. Starting on August 22, sixty-seven football players came to the first workout willing to brave hot, humid weather averaging in the 90's bumps and bruises, and possibly the worst of all, triple sessions. The first session was from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., the second was from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., and the last was from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The season began against crosstown rival, Centennial, whom Central handled in a shut-out, 10-0. The charged-up Maroons went out next week and whipped Streator, 37 to 13 and in their first road game, pounced on Peoria, 33 to 14.

These first three victories kindled hopes for a repeat of last year's unbeaten Big 12 season. However, Mattoon stalled those hopes, 44 to 28. The Maroons came back to conquer Danville Schlarmann 35 to 14 the next week.

Then came Homecoming and "Can the Raiders" week.

Still in the running for the league championship, the Maroons thoroughly canned the Bloomington Raiders, 22 to 14. A 14 to 3 loss to underrated, underdog Stephen Decatur the next week stalled their flickering hope again. The next week's 20 to 20 tie with the Danville Vikings eliminated them permanently from the Big 12 title race.

Playing for pride now, Champaign fought back in a wild game as they lost to Springfield, 34 to 27. In the final game of the season against arch-rival Urbana, Central lost a bitter battle, 32 to 20 to end the season at 5-4-1.

Despite not repeating as Big 12 champs, 4 members made All Big 12: Co-Captain Dick Pittman, who made it as a kicker, quarterback Bill Stahl who passed for 1069 yards, split end Jeff Corley who set a school record for catches, and linebacker Maurice Hampton. These players plus the rest of the team provided excitement for Central's fans.

Varsity Wins Opener, JVs Finish with 1-4 Mark

Uncertainty hung in the air, broken only by the constant chanting of the cheerleaders, unaided by a quiet crowd. Tension at the first Central-Centennial football game subsided only after the final gun and Centennial's defeat, 10-0, marking a new crosstown rivalry.

In 1968 Champaign High School split into two separate schools, Champaign Central and Champaign Centennial. Ever since, both schools have been trying to prove something to each other. Since this was the first time these two teams played each other in football, this was a chance to display their one-upsmanship. A record 3000 spectators flocked to the field, exhibiting interest in the game.

In his first starting role at quarterback, Bill Stahl provided a potent passing attack. Stahl connected with Senior Jeff Corley for the only touchdown of the game. It was head-coach Tom Stewart's defense that sparkled, keeping a strong Centennial rushing attack at bay. Dick Pittman added a field goal making the final score 10-0.

One unusual aspect of the game was the fact that both schools were playing on their home turf, Unit 4 Field, although the contest was classified as an away game for Central. Unit 4's budget received a boost, collecting all the profits from both teams' ticket sales.

A pep assembly preceded the game. The assembly featured class competition and a few words from Mr. Fleener, Central's Principal, about sportsmanship and keeping competition on the field. In the spirit of fun, Mr. Fleener bet Mr. Al Davis, the Centennial Principal. The losing team's Principal had to sing the victor's pep song at the winning school. Mr. Davis graciously followed through, singing Central's pep song over the P.A. system. School officials sought to keep the atmosphere light before the game, fearing that the crosstown contest might bring trouble from overzealous students. Because all the action of the night occurred on the playing field, the game was re-scheduled to put the sports program in the black.

According to JV Football Coach Mr. Rich Wooley, "The JV Football season was good experience and that's what we need." Another way to say this might be "No matter if we won or lost, it's how we learned to play the game." All these comments pertained to the JV's subpar season. The only thing needed and gained from this season was experience. Victories were slim in their 1-4 season which began August 22.

Since the JV squad practiced with the varsity team, this didn't give the assistant varsity coaches Mr. Rich Wooley and Mr. Jeff Trigger much time to coach their JV squad, perhaps one reason for their single-win season. Mr. Wooley was not displeased, however, because the gain in experience was enough.

Where were you when you saw boys dribbling a basketball through chairs, with gloves and wearing blacked out glasses? No, you weren't at a masquerade party; you were watching sophomore basketball players. This was to teach the players to dribble without seeing the ball.

This year's sophomore basketball season closed with a winning 11-7 record. Coach Due, a 15-year veteran, explained that winning wasn't his objective. His objective was to make sure that the kids became experienced and adjusted to high school basketball.

At the beginning of the 1973-74 basketball season, Central Coach Lee Cabutti had 299 Maroon victories under his belt and it soon became apparent that number 300 wasn't going to come easy. With letterman Bill Stahl and reserve Karl Helfrich suffering from football injuries and not one player over 6'4", the Maroons weren't formidable.

Central's competition opened with three losses in the Quincy Thanksgiving Tournament. The losing streak continued with a loss to Kankakee McNamara and home court defeats at the hands of Springfield and Mount Vernon. The anxiously awaited number 300 finally came in a 38-36 slow-down affair at Lincoln. The Maroons were then swamped 65-49 by state power Danville before traveling to Centralia.

In the Centralia Tournament the Maroons lost to Wheeling to run their record to 1-9 but then surprised everyone by upending Homewood Flossmoor, Mount Vernon, and West Frankfort to win the consolation bracket for the second straight year. The senior Maroon forward, Jessie Myles, was an all tourney selection.

The triumphant homecoming was saddened by a knee injury to Myles and losses to Rantoul and Urbana. The Tigers, who had been tamed by Central eight straight times, finally won 49-42.

Central then rebounded with a stunning upset of the 12th ranked Bloomington Raiders. On the following night Mattoon fell to the Maroons 55-49. Central then sustained a homecourt loss to the Lincoln Raiders by a score of 56-50.

The cagers again bounced back from defeat with a 46-42 win over Decatur. That victory was Coach Cabutti's 400th career win. Ninety-four of those wins came in his five years as head coach at Herrin High School.

In the final five games of the year Central won 0 out of 5 to finish with a record of 8-18. Leaders of the team were Tony McNeal, Bennie Williams, Jessie Myles, Steve Yount, Andy Rohn, and Al McFarland.

Cheers, Trampoline Give Cheerleading New Look

"Wanted: Junior or Senior female student of Champaign Central High School. Must be cheerful and happy, when we win and sad and heartbroken when we lose. Prerequisite: should be a fine gymnast who can do back flips, somersaults, aerials, splits, and other miscellaneous floor exercises. Must have a loud voice and a large smile."

This want ad never appeared in any newspaper, but these were some of the requirements for the Champaign Central Varsity Cheerleaders. These eleven girls went through many long, hard hours of work. Their practice was not only confined to the school year, but was also done during the summer at Clark Park.

A new addition to the squad was a trampoline which the cheerleaders earned through their shampoo and bake sales during the year. They performed new routines and made up some new cheers for the crowd like "1,2,3,4,5, Champaign High don't take no jive.!"

Theirs was a truly herculean task in trying to keep the students' spirit up as well as keeping their own during some of the defeats of the basketball and football teams.

7-Girl Sophomore Squad Cheers to Victories

Nervous and anxious, 22 girls sat before the entire sophomore student body eagerly waiting to try their hand at cheerleading during tryouts. After the confusion of learning, practicing, and final tryouts, 7 girls survived, determined to prove their talent at home basketball games.

Every Tuesday after school and Thursday after dinner, one could find seven girls working on cheers in the halls. Those girls held the responsibility of lady-like conduct in and out of their uniforms, and lifting school spirit before and during basketball games. Small crowds did not change the cheerleaders' hopes and spirit.

You can find the sponsor, Miss Rasmussen, amusing herself with mistakes made during rehearsals. Miss Rasmussen has helped the sophomore cheerleaders for five years. Her experience, and students' talent, have comprised the cheerleading squads which backed the school.

Band Gets New Look: Mickey Mouse, New Uniforms

Band director Mr. Richard Dunscomb created a new character for Concert and Marching Band. Mickey Mouse, played by Mary Verdeyen, was a new addition to the Central's band. The idea sprang from a medley of Walt Disney tunes and became a permanent member of the band.

With two drum majors, Mike Street and Bob Johanson, and majorette Terry Kelly, Central's Marching Band took a first superior rating and a second overall in the University of Illinois State Marching Band Concert. The Concert Band took a first superior rating at the IHSA Concert Band Competition.

They needed money to travel to Rock Falls Midwest National Band Contest and to Chicago for the American Legion State Band Contest, so they sold maroon wind breakers to students, faculty, and parents. Kazoos were a success with students, seat cushions with parents, and bike reflectors with the athletic minded. New uniforms, percussion instruments, and uniforms for the Flag and Rifle Corps were some of the major purchases made.

It's second year proved exciting for Flag and Rifle Corps, and band too.

Revised Election Board Runs Elections with Ease

A revamped Election Board, under the supervision of a new sponsor, successfully completed another year of voting. The board was pulled together and organized by Mrs. Sue Augustine, who picked up the pieces of a club that had, in past years, been all but forgotten. The members of the board were organized and ready for the oncoming elections.

The homecoming king and queen elections ran smoothly. Miss Merry Christmas and her court were nominated and voted on well ahead of time, only as a result of the Election Board's determination and hard work.

↑ → Karen Valentine, Susie Robinson and Becky Barre give Teddy Morgan a hand with the Miss Merry Christmas elections.

↑ Karen Valentine and Teddy Morgan count ballots from Miss Merry Christmas elections in Mrs. Augustine's room.

→ Colleen Butler waits patiently for April Thomas to decide on and check off her vote for Miss Merry Christmas.

with Ease

Women's Glee had some exciting events to add to the regular activities of 1974. Among these events were singing at the Round Barn for Foreign Exchange Club. They also sent individuals to ensemble contests.

Women's Glee could have been mistaken by an outsider as a Betty Crocker baking course. They had bake sales to raise money for the hiring of a professional harpist to accompany them in the Christmas Concert, but it was postponed. They didn't come out at a total loss, though, because they came out twenty dollars ahead in their budget for the Choral Parents' treasury.

Anytime a person wanted to hear good music, he only had to walk past room 120 where Women's Glee sang both with and without accompaniment every fourth hour.

← Terry Proudfit and Stacy Fritz barter and bargain their goods away at the Girls Chorus bake sale after school.

↓ With hands on their ribs, Women's Glee Club members can feel their diaphragms moving as they rehearse warm-ups.

First Year A Cappella Gets Credit for Graduation

"A Cappella: In chapel style; that is, unaccompanied of choral music." This is the technical definition of A Cappella, according to Mr. Webster.

Central's A Cappella Choir did sing, but not necessarily all chapel style. They sang, not because they had to but because they wanted to. This was the first year that choir students were allowed one half credit per semester toward graduation. Not only was it an enjoyable class, but a profitable one for those who liked singing.

They sold candy early in the year to build up the "Choir Kitty." They planned to use it for their tour during the weekend of April 27, 1974.

Chamber Choir Rounds Year Out with Clinic

Few sophomores were admitted to Chamber Choir. It was mostly for the juniors and seniors but also exceptional sophomores. They sang for twenty Christmas programs for Civic organizations, like at the Ramada Inn.

The only thing they did more of than Christmas programs was contest work. They sang at an invitational in Springfield and also in the Big 12. Also Eastern Illinois University had a visit from Chamber Choir. They represented the District All State and the Final All State in Arlington Heights, a suburb of Chicago.

To round off the year they participated in the Ensemble Clinic at the University of Illinois.

German Honor Society Gains Twenty New Members

On February 8, 1974, twenty German students joined the German Honor Society, chapter "Nu", which stands for Illinois, of the Delta Epsilon Phi, which stands for the American chapter. To join the German Honor Society was almost as tough as joining the National Honor Society. The German student had to have all A's or all A's and one B, plus a good rating in citizenship, like Honor Society.

The German Club, unlike other clubs did not try to sell candy or buttons or flowers. Instead they kept busy with other jobs like preparation for the International Supper. They made a banner for the German Honor Society initiation and they played soccer last fall before it got cold.

Enlarged Chronicle Staff Creates Enlarged Paper

If you had looked in room 105 on the average day you would have seen the Chronicle staff busily changing their typewriter ribbons, cleaning their typewriters, feeding fish, cleaning aquariums and occasionally writing articles.

They must have found some new secret about publishing, for this Chronicle put out an eight-page paper every two weeks when last year they had put out a four-page Chronicle every week.

Another Chronicle first this year was the addition of our own Ann Landers, "Dear Darcy". She was welcomed with open arms and a "flood" of adolescent problems. For example:

"Dear Darcy,

I have a unique problem. You may not believe this, but I have a crush on one of my teachers! She has a terrific personality, beautiful eyes, gorgeous hair and her glasses are something else. Her breath melts me."

They also tried to get more in depth stories in the paper and to be more of a forum for the students to express their ideas. It was well worthwhile, for their paper was awarded a first-class rating from the Illinois Quill and Scroll for their outstanding efforts, and hard work.

National Award Triggers Record 975 Yearbook Sales

Confusion, determination, and aggravation came from room 312 every fourth hour to maintain Maroon's national awards from the 1973 yearbook. NSYA (National Scholastic Yearbook Association) gave the 1973 Maroon an A+ rating and the National Scholastic Press Association and Columbia Scholastic Press Association gave the book first class ratings. Because of these awards, the 1974 staff had many expectations, to fulfill during the year.

With all the rules, copy and layouts, everyone had to have patience to survive the pressures. Mrs. McEwen and Pat Logue, Editor-in-Chief, and staff started with a blank cover and 224 blank pages to portray the 1974 yearbook theme, "Concrete and Cornfields".

Everyone had to be on his toes because if he wasn't the school events passed him by. Between getting pictures of the events and interviewing the club members, and faculty, the staff had plenty to keep them busy.

Even Maite Gonzalez, a foreign exchange student from Spain got caught up in the excitement. When asked her experiences in Maroon, she tactfully replied "It was pretty easy, I haven't had any problems."

Besides publishing the yearbook, Maroon also participated in the International Supper sponsored by Foreign Exchange Club, and provided appetizers.

After the last deadline, everyone was relieved briefly, then began work on the supplement. The most exciting day all year was the May distribution of the 900 books ordered in advance. But there were 75 ordered for the late comers.

FHA Walks for Mankind, Holds Poster Contest

Websters Dictionary describes homemaker as "one whose occupation is household and family management," but the FHA chapter disagreed.

They made the FHA club a club that raised money for traveled around to different rallies and sponsored an FHA poster contest. They were not just homebodies.

After the club traveled to Broadlands to elect new officers, Gemma Miner, president of FHA at Central, became the Section 4-B secretary. She also won first place in the Poster Contest held by the FHA chapter. Second place went to Susie Stewart and third to Rich Englehardt.

Rich, the first male in FHA for years, became involved in FHA by enrolling in a home ec class.

Like any other club, FHA had to have some way to support themselves. They sold taffy apples which they worked on for two nights. They also sold cookbooks, and were kept very busy with the Rosana Gainette kits from which they profited $160 and made some people very happy at Christmas. Their biggest money-making project was the Walk for Mankind, from which each girl profited 20% of their earnings, which they gave to the treasurer.

- Walking for Mankind the club members take a break, and enjoy a few apples while they rest 18 sore feet.
- Mary Brown demonstrates the spider from the FHA Rosana Gainette kit, one of FHA's money-making projects.
- Adjusting the showcase for the Poster Contest is Gemma Miner, first place winner, and president of the club.
- A few FHA members board the bus to Broadland's state FHA rally where they will elect new officers for Section 4-B.

“... And in their school they had some farmers, E-I, E-I-O!” The FFA members started the year by harvesting 17 acres of soybeans which brought them over $6 per bushel.

The club was not an inexpensive one to join. In order to purchase a blue and gold FFA jacket, the members had to pay around $12.00. Their dues were $4.00 for the first semester and $3.50 for the second semester.

Comprising 34 members from Central, Centennial, and Urbana, the active club met the second and fourth Tuesday of every month. They held a grain and poultry show participated in by 8 members and took second in soil judging at Tuscola. The FFA members also became involved in the Building American Communities Program. Finally they practiced and participated in parliamentary procedure contests. Senior Varsity participated at Fisher and Junior Varsity participated at Paxton. With a more active recreation committee, they even sponsored an ice-skating party.

With the motto: “Learning to do, Doing to learn, Earning to live, and Living to serve,” the FFA chapter had a productive club and year.

→→→↓ Robert Ward displays the study skills that earned him his membership in the National Honor Society.

↓ Mr. Travis Poole and Kris Ensrud display the hard work behind the scenes as they slave in a hot kitchen, over bisquits.

"Howdy pardner!" A bow-legged cowboy came swaggering down the steps, and who was it? Why none other than a National Honor Society member. This year's National Honor Society sponsored the "49ers" table at the International Supper. Their menu featured chili and beans, hot biscuits, cole slaw, and peach cobbler.

Why a theme like the "49ers"? This theme was chosen to honor the 49th anniversary of the Illini Chapter. This chapter was received by the Honor Society on Feb. 15, 1925. During the 49 years, no sophomores were officially allowed in the Honor Society. But this year for the first time, sophomores were admitted, as long as they met the requirements of a 5.0 average. Seniors had to have a 4.5 average and Juniors a 4.75 average.

So the 46 "scholar-cowboys", along with their sponsor Mr. Travis Poole, put on their boots, climbed on their ponies, and hurried on down to the "49ers" table at the International Supper on the night of February 26.

↑ Rita Barenberg breezes through the days attendance cards.

→→→ Sara Newsome, feeling the Christmas spirit, decorates the attendance office for the oncoming holidays.

Rescuing kids from tests and sticky situations and zip-ping through the halls, they were the Counseling Guides. That was what they represented to the student body but to the counselors, they meant just a little more. The guides took messages, filed away information and kept the college library up-to-date. These trustworthy girls applied and had to be approved by the counselors and Mr. Felty.

Just as valuable were the VOA girls. Collecting and recording daily attendance, answering phones, checking monthly attendance and delivering messages were the services they performed that made them the backbone of the attendance office and the entire school.

However, the attendance office wasn't the only place where they made themselves helpful. They had the concessions stand for the Urbana game. With the money from this, they sponsored the "kiddy care room" at the International Supper. This babysitting service gave parents a chance to enjoy their meal in peace and quiet.

A smoothly run office can only be obtained by the sorely needed help that these girls provided.

Qualifying for Junior Leaders was a hard task. They were required to fill out a form stating their grades and friends which had to be processed and O.K.ed by Mrs. Miller, the adviser of Junior and Senior Leaders.

The ones who made it had to take orders and give them. They weren't allowed to officiate any game until they knew all its rules and regulations.

One way they found out how well they knew the r was by taking a test which they had to score 85 or better

Being a junior leader was hard, but judging from shouts echoing from the girls' gym during second hou must have been at least a little fun.

Senior Leaders Receive New Uniforms and Letter

New maroon and white uniforms which were purchased for under $10.00 started the Senior Leaders' year out. Being a Senior Leader meant more than wearing school colors. It meant hard work and participation. They played an important part in intramural and extramural games, by knowing the rules and the ways to demonstrate skills. They explained new techniques to the P.E. classes.

Senior Leaders started out as Junior Leaders. They ended with teaching in the spring of their senior year. They taught grades one through nine. The program usually consisted of large group games, basic rhythm games, drama plays, small group games and rope jumping. Also taught were stunts and tumbling, ball handling games, relays, and self testing activities in squads.

Senior Leaders were graded by points. If they received 5 points by the end of the year they were awarded a letter

Would you pay $65 for an outfit you might wear two times in the course of one year? The pepettes paid just that price for their outfits. The $65 covered the cost for sweater, saddle shoes, briefs, stocking hat, and pom-pom.

The pepettes were divided into four groups, with one girl as leader. The leaders organized their groups and generally helped all around.

The sponsor of the pepettes was Miss Karen Rasmussen. The pepettes had a regular class, which met during the third hour. In that class they practiced their routines which they used at the next game.

During the summer of 1973, Terri Dodd, and Philomena Calcagno visited Anderson College, Anderson, Indiana, for a pom-pom camp. At this camp they helped the girls learn new and different techniques, and how to perform better. Pam Christman and Cindy Wasson attended the University of Illinois pom-pom camp, where they learned the same type of things.

Spanish Honor Sells Patches, Serves Food at Supp

"Sociedad Honoraria Hispanica," translated meant, Spanish Honor Society. It was a club that honored students who had done well in Spanish.

It had been in existence since 1965. To be qualified to be in it you had to get extremely good grades and you also had to be in your third year of Spanish.

The big candle used in the initiation was called the mother candle. The mother candle represented inspiration. The individual little candles that the new members held and lit from the mother candle, typified their careers in life, in Spanish, and in school.

In Spanish class you not only had the chance to have learned a new language, you also had the chance to have been in Spanish Honor Society.

Classes made up the purpose of Champaign Central. The aims were to educate high school students in academic and practical knowledge, and to prepare them for whatever life offered them, whether on the farm or in the city.

The facilities promote teaching and learning in every aspect. Well-equipped Home Ec classes furnished sewing machines for promising seamstresses, and kitchens for male as well as female chefs. The Industrial Arts Department had opened its doors to females in all field choices. The proportion of male to female students wasn't exactly even in Plumbing and Refrigeration, but was rapidly increasing in classes such as Photography and Drafting. With the Fight to Read grant from the State of Illinois, the library was able to purchase some much-needed materials and equipment, and made it a better place for both students and teachers.

Both the new and the more experienced teachers contributed greatly to the learning environment strived for at Central. The new teachers brought in a fresh insight with new ideas to introduce, which the older teachers tempered with knowledge and common sense. Both these factors together created a better place for everyone at Central.

One important ingredient needed for classes was the student body itself. Without them, there would be no classes and no Champaign Central High School. The students were much like those of any other school, with the workers and the non-workers, the jocks and the brains, the socials and the nobodies. Every student offered some kind of knowledge or talent to share with others. It may have been a knowledge of film projectors, tape recorders, or repairing cars, or a talent for drawing, singing, or merely height, for reaching books off high shelves.

The object of the classes at Central was to provide students with more knowledge when they left than when they came. Everyone gained something from a time at Central, whether student or teacher, and each person gave as much as they received.

Title 7 Gives English Department a $5,000 Grant

Which department has

- A) a student advisory committee?
- B) a new reading skills program that is sponsored by a grant?
- C) and has three new teachers, one of which is the new head of the department?

If you didn't guess the English Department you obviously hadn't taken English. Changes were made including the head of the department, now Mrs. McGreal.

One new program in the English department was the student advisory committee. The committee was made up of four minority kids and four non-minority kids who tried to get information to others, also tried to think of improvements needed, and advised about needs of the school.

Another program was the New Reading Program which was sponsored by a federal grant. Mrs. McGreal and Mrs. Mocella helped kids improve their reading skills.

These were just a few of the many new projects and new programs going on in the English Department this year. If you didn't take English this year, or skipped, or slept through English everyday, you missed out on a lot.

← Mrs. McGreal looks over the new reading material used in the reading program taught by her and Mrs. Mocella.

↑ An attentive class takes a time reading of 450 words a minute in Mrs. Mocella's speed reading labs.

→ → Mike Corson and Doug Adams give a demonstrative speech on ball in Mr. Beck's Basic Communication class.

→ Junior Theresa Butts tries to keep two active children under control at the First United Methodist Day Care.

↑ Senior Linda Clacy and junior Theresa Butts play with the little kids at the First United Methodist Day Care.

Home Ec Adds Equipment; Cares for Children

The Energy Crisis curtailed a lot of field trips, but one department had more than one way to compensate for it. Some 270 people taking Home Ec classes this year didn't miss any field trips. Besides the usual classes offered, new classes like Child Care and Training gave Home Ec students a chance to take care of children outside of school. As a matter of fact, Child Development and Child Care classes accounted for one half of Home Ec enrollment.

New equipment, such as a dishwasher and an industrial sewing machine, the same kind as Cap and Gown used, and new projects like working with Project House and Interior Design classes were a change from what everybody thought Home Ec was!

Probably the most diverse of all departments, the physical education program offered 20 different sports for almost 1200 students. The boy's P. E. classes started the year with flag football, and went on to soccer, flicker ball, volleyball, basketball, weight lifting, and softball.

The girls' P. E. program offered more sports than the boys' program, partially because of more and better equipment. They started the year with flag football and tennis. Then they got into volleyball, swimming, basketball, gymnastics, golf, archery, fencing, folk dancing, and softball.

← Fred Fliegel, senior, works out on the muscle building machine during fourth hour P. E. on the stage in the gym.

New Equipment, Books Ordered from $5,000 Grant

Eighty seething kids, milling around, bumping into each other, scraping chairs back and forth, giggling and whispering to one another, suddenly a distraught wild-eyed man stands up and screams "Quiet!". Is this some poor teacher having a nightmare?, some student teacher dreaming of things to come?, No, it's just another average day at the Champaign Central library.

Mr. Grace, the librarian, had a busy day beginning at 8:00 a.m. and ending at 4:30 p.m. Everything from light bulbs to books were selected and ordered by him. This year his job involves more thanks to a $5,000 grant won by the teachers. The library was then able to have a bigger and wider selection of books, equipment and records.

New equipment included two tape recorders, three 8mm cameras, three record players, a loop projector and a machine to make slides out of pictures. Books ordered are over a thousand, records three hundred.

Different factors help make the library a nicer place to be, including no homework.

Ads were a key element in the production of the Maroon. Their ads brought the money that provided a yearbook every spring. The advertisers offer many varied services that were stated in the ad space they purchased.

Money in the hands of high school students wields more power than they may have realized. Clothes were high on the shopping list of a fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, or eighteen year old, whether they were the blue jean and t-shirt type or the skirt and heels type. Most stores carried clothes for both these kinds of teenagers, so they didn't have to run over Champaign to find their type.

Next on the list for student purchases would have been cosmetics. This category held razor blades and hair coloring products, make-up and soap. Stores such as Robeson's carried a large line of make-up products with nearly every brand and available in stock. It could have been considered a one-stop shopping trip if a girl was hunting for a specific product and chose Robeson's for her first stop.

chose Robeson's for her first stop.

Probably at the top of the shopping list was food. Pizza was always a favorite, and Monical's was visited often after both football and basketball games. Everybody liked ice cream, especially in the spring, summer, and early fall, and Duple Dipski's was a good place to get cooled off.

Many students had money to spend for the first time when they got to Central, because it was the first time they were able to get a job other than babysitting or mowing lawns. Much of it was spent, but a good deal of it was saved at one of the many banks in Champaign-Urbana. A savings account gave a student a feeling of pleasure as he watched his interest grow, and a checking account would be used as a status symbol as well as an easier way to pay bills—unless, by chance, it became overdrawn!

Advertisers and money were a big part of the life of the student at Central, and a big part of life in the Maroon.

The people known, not known, liked, and not liked formed the basis of the three year stay at Champaign Central High School. Friends helped soften the shock of the first day at a school of 1308 students, 85 teachers, 5 administrators, 5 counselors, and 30 non-academic staff.

Everyone had doubts and worries about returning to school. Would the classes be harder? Would anyone notice the hair had grown (or been cut)? Was the tan obtained any deeper than anyone else's? Would Tom (or Sue) still feel the same way? All these questions came to mind at some time or another, and the answers depended on the people involved and the circumstances.

The people known were the girl across the room in Algebra II, the dizzy English teacher, and the principal who always spoke at assemblies. The people not known were the teachers everyone talked about, the senior guy who was "so-o cute" but was only seen on the football field, and the girl who was talked about behind her back and was only seen at a distance.

The people liked were obvious. Of course, the friend known since kindergarten, the guy or girl as an object of affection, and the teacher that everyone liked because he was so funny were all included. The people not liked were just as easy to list. Among these people were the girls who snubbed everyone but a certain select few, the strange guy who roamed the halls, and the teacher who never gave any study time at the end of class.

The people of Champaign and Central are really caught in the middle of a country existence and urban and suburban city life. Although modern buildings and impressive Broadway plays were examples of a very up-to-date place, nearly every well-traveled street would lead to its end in a distinctly rural setting. Many teachers from Central preferred to commute to and from school from area small towns rather than live in either Champaign or Urbana, while almost one quarter of the students ride buses to school. All these factors prove that all are Caught in the Middle.

could vary from "I thought it was fun" to "I thought it was a waste of time". Many seniors filled their time at school by joining clubs like Peppettes and Counseling Guides while others found it hard to even fill their schedules. Students who found school boring either took CCE or signed up to spend part of their time at home. The partial day program is a new program initiated this year where seniors could spend part of the day away from school although not necessarily at a job. Seventy-nine seniors decided to leave school altogether by graduating at mid-term.

Those who did stay around all year were hit by an epidemic of "Senioritis" in the spring. Hall roaming, class skipping and tardiness were all symptoms of this yearly disease. It seemed that all that was left for seniors to get excited about was yearbook distribution and graduation. In a sudden flood of sentimentality, it became important to have every possible person sign their yearbooks, even the ones whose name they never quite caught in Algebra class. These formed a memory called their "senior year".

Junior class members seemed to support women's liberation when they elected four girls as their officers: Cathy Smith, treasurer; Terry McMahon, president; Susan Scanlan, secretary; Lollie Yancey, president, who pose on the new furniture in the courtyard.

According to Webster, a junior is "a student in his next to last year". The juniors, however, were much more than that. What with class rings, hall decorations, and prom, juniors participated in nearly every event offered at Central.

The junior girls had a chance to take part in junior gym and cheerleading, while the junior guys participated in football, basketball and other sports.

Besides doing things for fun, the juniors also had to live up to the responsibility of buying class rings, which went for $15.00 from last year! Another big step was taking the PSAT and ACT tests, which showed if their past eleven years produced any knowledge. Of course, there were many other requirements for college, for instance, keeping up grades, class rank, and most important — money.

Traditionally, the junior-senior prom was given by the juniors every spring. They supplied music, decorations, and refreshments through funds in the junior class treasury.

"A student in his next to last year"? No, Mr. Webster, the juniors of 1973 and Champaign Central were much more than that.

New Sophomores Struggle with Lockers on First Day

They all flocked in at once, all 496 of them slightly scared and nervous. Most of them, if not all, were more than anything lost.

It was hard for them to fight their way through crowded halls, but that wasn't too bad of a problem. The real problem was getting their lockers open once they found them.

Did you notice a lot of sophomores wandering around by themselves? No, they all stuck together, either afraid of the building, or the upperclassmen who looked down at them.

They sat for a long 70 minutes in scorching hot classrooms, trying to make heads or tails out of what the teacher was saying.

Figuring out which lunch they had gave them trouble too. Some had A and B lunch, by mistake of course. The sophomores liked being able to go wherever they wanted, but a half hour?

The juniors and seniors ate up being asked: "Where is the girls' gym?" "How do you find the cafeteria?"

As their friends laughed, the sophomores said "Remember, you were once one too."

Cooks Dispel Stereotype with Delicious Meals

Few people knew that the cooks planned their menus for the Christmas season around green and red. In fact, Mrs. Dean, supervisor of the cooks, made sure every season's menu matched its colors, a job which got pretty difficult at Halloween and Easter.

Mrs. Dean and the other cafeteria workers must have done a good job, because each day found at least 200 people in the hot lunch line and 100 people in the snack line, the highest count since the return of open lunch. This number increased on days they served hot dogs, or pizza.

Besides planning menus, Mrs. Dean also supervised 1 head cook, 1 baker, 1 salad lady, 2 cashiers, and 1 server for the teachers. The cook, baker, and Mrs. Dean arrived every morning around 7 and stayed till 2 p.m. The others came at 9:30 and left at 1:00. Between these times, they prepared food and cleaned up the tables and the kitchen.

un Central

Central Reflects Mod Growth of Cham-Bana

The "Twin-Cities" is not an appropriate name for the cities of Champaign and Urbana. The form of government is different, the population count is different, the street names are different, . . . the differences are too numerous to mention all in one small yearbook.

Urbana is governed by a City Council of elected alderman, while Champaign is under the council-manager form of government. The 1970 census showed that Urbana had about 33,000 people, and Champaign had a population of 59,000. Kirby Avenue changes to Florida Avenue in the transition between the two cities. There are several similar street names, also, with Church Street, Washington Street, and Park Street in both Champaign and Urbana.

Two high schools hold classes in Champaign, Central and Centennial, and Urbana High School is the only secondary school serving Urbana. Before Centennial was built, the history of the Champaign High School and Urbana High School rivalry went back to when the schools were first built in the late 1800's.

Central has a history of growth in both traditional and modern directions. The ties of the present school building go back to the very first high school built in Champaign, on the site of this building; yet it holds some of the most modern equipment built today. The school is affected by everything that goes on in the world, not only in Cham-Bana, as the energy crisis and food prices show. Policies have changed, been added and dropped, according to their relevance to what went on in the world.

Centerfold Gives Glimpse at Concrete and Cornfields Theme

A centerfold in the Champaign Central Maroon? It was an absurd idea, but the Maroon staff thought it would best picture a division between the concrete and cornfield sections. What do you put in such a centerfold? Certainly not Burt Reynolds or Raquel Welch! Only pictures that illustrated the traditional or new were put in the foldout part of the book.

The Pepettes and a school bus really have little to do with cornfields. But the Pepettes are very active at Central. Is there anything more traditional than a performance by the Pepettes at Homecoming in the town which originated Homecoming?

Today, school buses play a varied role in education. Buses first were meant to transport children from farms to school. Now they are used to provide racial integration, transportation to and from field trips, and bus children from rural areas not necessarily used for farming. They also provide a ride to away football and basketball games for spectators and a means for the P.E. classes to go swimming at Spalding Pool.

The centerfold is to "bring it together," to combine concrete and cornfields to form Champaign-Urbana and Champaign Central High School as we know them.

The dominant picture of this centerfold depicts concrete and cornfields co-existing out of mutual need. The sign is a constant reminder of concrete and industry, and the cornfields growing silently in the background show the influence of the farm and a more traditional lifestyle.

The student working on the courtyard illustrates modern man's feeble attempt to imitate nature. The courtyard offered two Coke machines in place of a rippling stream, asphalt painted green for grass, and holes in the asphalt for nursery-grown trees in place of woods.

The "object d'art" at the Krannert Art Museum shows an artist's effort to communicate an idea. The traditionally minded wonder, "What is it?" Modern art replies, "Whatever you want it to be!"

The little black girl admiring the plants exemplifies the concrete half of the book. Due to updated ideas about blacks and women, she will probably have more choice in lifestyle than her grandmother did.

Nostalgia may seem to be a traditional characteristic, but the most stylish people today dress in the Great Gatsby look, or wear their hair in the fashion of the fifties. Here at Central, The Boyfriend was produced by the choirs. What could be more nostalgic than a musical about a finishing school during the twenties?

Mickey Mouse, new to entertain at football games, has been a hero of children everywhere for fifty years. Traditionally, the Homecoming King and Queen have been the heroes of the student body. The queen demonstrates beauty, poise and desirability, while the king must be a popular senior football player.

All of these pictures explore some aspect of either concrete or cornfields, new or traditional, at Central and in Champaign.

Central Makes Bridge Between Concrete & Cornfields

Central was a bridge between concrete and cornfield, just as the color section was meant to be a bridge between the two parts of this book. The agriculture courses and the Agri-business section of CCE were available to the students who thought they wanted to be involved in farm life, while several classes in the Industrial Arts department encouraged a look at career fields of predominately urban and suburban areas of the city.

It didn't matter which mode of life was chosen, as long as the people involved were satisfied. At Central, students could look into both types of lives, and decide which was right for their needs and wants.

→ Coach Charlie Due demonstrates one reaction to the pep assemblies held before important football and basketball games.

z Cornfields

Updated means to conform to the most recent facts. While some events at Central were updated, others were completely new.

The events that affected the students on the national scene were the energy crisis, the gas shortage, and Watergate. The temperature dropped inside the school from 74° to 68°, forcing a lot of people to wear their sweaters and sometimes even their coats to classes. The price of gas went up which caused more people to cut down on their driving, although many Central students still went to McDonalds after games. Watergate hearings were another big topic of conversation. Although they conflicted with some interesting television shows, students were able to learn more about the American political process.

Local current events were the break in that occurred on December 14, when nearly $1000 was taken from the school safe. Downtown was a mess during the revamping of Neil to create a mall.

Early graduates had an advantage over other students by getting out of school after the first semester. They still got measured for their caps and gowns which would be used in the June ceremony. Juniors had a choice to graduate as juniors or wait until their senior year, but they were not eligible to graduate mid-term.

Fads have changed a bit, but the dress of the 50's was brought up to date in the 70's. Fads didn't stop at clothes. It seemed like there were girls and guys everywhere walking down the halls like young lovers. Sports was a big fad with everyone. Extramurals and Intramurals played a big role in the lives of the students.

For 13 years Foreign Exchange sponsored the International Supper as a money making project for sending and bringing Foreign Exchange students. It was a cooperative effort by 14 clubs to produce a main dish, vegetable, and dessert at a table representing a country of their choice. Each student paid $1.50 for all the food he could stuff in his stomach.

These events mentioned were only a few of those that took place. Things have changed, but all the events that occurred during the year happened before, but were moderated along with the times to keep up with the changing pace of the world.

A torn up Neil Street, no gas, and cold and dim school rooms were all par in 1973-74 school year.

Workers started tearing up downtown Champaign in preparation to build the new mall. While this disadvantaged the people of Champaign-Urbana, they couldn't get anywhere anyway because there was no gas.

The problem of gas was a worldwide event. The schools had possible cancellation of extra-curricular activities that required extensive travel, such as IE and debate, field trips, music trips, and band tour. Since reducing the speed saves gas, the speed limit and the national scene was reduced to 55 mph.

As the gas supply and the speed limit went down, so did the temperature. Even with a heavy snowstorm that closed all schools down in central Illinois, the temperature of the school rooms were turned down to 68°. Atop all light switches small orange signs said "Power off Please" as Central's contribution to the energy crisis.

Along with the problem of the energy crisis, Watergate was one of the most important problems of the year. One citizen, Dwight Dobbs, paid $300 to express his feeling for the president and about Watergate.

Besides these events, Central had its own problem, a break-in. The students got a half day break and enough excitement to last all year.

Students Exhibit This Year's Fads with High-Waisted Baggies, Blazers

You didn't need a time machine just to see some of the fads of the past, because they returned in 1973. Wild fingernail polish, baggies, and cardigan sweaters were a few examples.

In the jewelry line, a lot of guys wore cross necklaces, while girls wore the wooden bead necklaces with matching bracelets. Rings made out of silverware was another fad.

Fads didn't stop at clothes. Sports were included in many of the students' lives. Some participated, while others were only spectators. If it wasn't extra-mural, then it was intra-mural for both guys and gals.

With the gas shortage, a lot of students bought bikes and back packs and peddled around town.

Times will change, but 1973-74 fads will stay alive in the pages of this book for a long time to come.

↑ ← These overcrowded bike racks show the increased use of bicycles to beat the gas shortage and get plenty of exercise. Due to a decrease in bike riding during the 60's, the administration had given away many racks and were unprepared for the deluge.

↑ ↑ Approximately three hundred, fifty volleyball shirts for 25 different teams could be seen around school on any Tuesday or Thursday when they played their intramural matches.

↑ → In styles reminiscent of the 40's, both girls and guys display wild, argyle socks and saddle shoes with plaid laces and sometimes heels.

↑ Wooden and cork clogs bring height and possible danger to their owners.

International Supper Adds $800 to Foreign Exchange

Another year of fascinating foods from far away countries made up the 1974 International Supper. The tickets were $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students, and $1.00 for Kiddie Kare. For this the customers got all they could eat, plus a free babysitting service provided by VOA and Counseling Guides on alternate nights.

The Foreign Exchange Club sponsored the entire kit and caboodle in order to bring over and send Foreign Exchange students to and from other countries.

Due to limited money, no student from Central was sent to Europe, but Teresa Gonzalez, better known by her nickname, Maite, was the 1973-74 exchange student from Spain, and stayed with Penny Cross and her family for the school year.

Jan Strombeck also came to Central from Sweden, though on his own, and took part in Foreign Exchange.

Sixteen clubs participated in the dinner choosing a country and preparing a full course dinner of that country's food. Some of the countries represented were Italy, Scandinavia, the Orient, Germany, France, and Spain. A Chuckwagon Table, representing Southwestern USA, and a Hawaiian Table were also included.

Approximately $800 was made to contribute to two successful nights of students and faculty working together for the benefit of Central and the Foreign Exchange program for next year.

→↓ Early graduating Dawn Skeels congratulates other mid-year grads with this bulletin board.

"We don't promote it, but we make it possible," said head counselor, Mr. Harold Felty. "I myself don't advise it, but that's my opinion. It does have its advantages and yet it has its disadvantages."

One advantage that was involved with graduating early was being able to work at a full time job, for those who needed to save money for college, or even those who didn't. These people had an early start on getting a permanent position. Some students just liked to get a head start on college by enrolling early.

Many early graduates of past years have said that if they could do it over again they wouldn't have graduated. To most people, it depends on the field that they planned to go into. If the field required a lot of courses, it would be better to take them in high school, if their field didn't have many requirements, they could get them over with and make a living earlier in life. This was the choice they had to make.

Early Grads Seek Careers or Further Education

er Education

What motivated students to participate in sports? Was it the recognition, the pride of playing on a team? There were many answers to that question as there were coaches. But all agreed there had to be some reason for the expansion of sports.

Perhaps due to an increased amount of leisure time in an automated society, traditional sports like football and basketball were joined by relatively new high school programs. Tennis, golf, swimming, cross country and wrestling were added to the extra mural program at Central.

Many of these updated sports grew tremendously since beginning. With little or no spectator interest, all new sports suffered limited budgets. A few of the struggling teams relied on garage sales and bake sales to supplement their meager funds. Girls' varsity sports won the funding battle only last year when the school board allowed the program $1300 and use of school facilities for practice and travel.

Girls' tennis, volleyball and basketball matched the mood of the country so well that as many as 50 girls tried out for a twelve person team. Because of high interest and good coaching, all girls' varsity teams, including tennis, volleyball, basketball, and softball remained undefeated in the three years of their existence.

Controversy centered around the girls' sports program during 1973-74; namely, should girls be allowed to participate in all male sports with males? Some people felt that in non-contact sports like swimming, golf, or tennis co-ed participation should have been welcomed. Others disagreed, arguing that if girls' sports programs were eliminated in favor of only one program open to both males and females, only a minority of exceptionally strong, talented girls would qualify. The battle raged even stronger when Diane Bell, a student at Urbana Junior High School, brought suit against the Illinois High School Athletic Association for suspending UJHS after it allowed her to run in a track meet. In a landmark decision, the judge stated that Diane could run on the boys cross country team since no girls' team existed, but could not run on the track team since a girls' track program existed at the school.

These updated sports would soon become entrenched, traditional sports themselves. Meaning, of course, there would be new updated sports. Soccer, anyone?

Girls Tennis Team Wins District, Aces Opponents with Perfect 4-0 Record

Despite a limited budget, lack of transportation and unseasonable weather, Coach Sue Cattle and Central's girls tennis team went undefeated in their four dual meets. In the three years the tennis program has been in existence, the number of girls who tried out this year was 30, the highest ever. Of these, only eight made the final cut. Though only three of the eight were returning varsity competitors, inexperience seemed to have little effect on the team's overall record.

For the second year Ruth White qualified for the state meet in Arlington Heights, but was eliminated in the first round. With Jan Anderson as the only senior on the squad, the girls tennis program is looking forward to other successful seasons in the future.

Cross Country Team Wins Twin City, District; Goes to State

The beginning of the season had Coach Dike Stirrett mumbling to himself. It started out like a disaster. Bob Wolf, number one man, contracted mononucleosis and was at first thought out for the season. His brother Guy had a strained hip and was out for the first two weeks of the season.

Rick Rundus's knees bothered him so much after a race, he could hardly walk. Other men on the team had injuries ranging from pulled muscles and broken blisters to heat exhaustion. Somehow, the harriers braved it all throughout the season.

For the first time Coach Stirrett started two-a-day workouts. These practices lasted from the end of August till the end of September. The first daily session was at 6:30 in the morning while the second was after school in the hot, humid weather. The striders ran from eleven to fifteen miles per day in these workouts. All of this was paid off as the Maroons improved their dual meet record of 10-1.

Junior Rick Rundus grabbed the team by winning five races, including the Twin City Meet. He also finished second in three races, including the District A Conference Meet.

Hot on his heels came Senior Pat Carter in the second spot. Senior Bob Wolf ring of the season had Coach mumbling to himself. It started faster. Bob Wolf, number one, had mononucleosis and was out for the season. His brother rained hip and was out for the rest of the season. The first time Coach Stirrett started workouts. These practices lasted from the end of August till the middle of September. The first daily session started at 6:30 in the morning while the other was after school in the hot, humid weather. The striders ran from eleven to fourteen miles per day in these workouts. All of this training paid off as the Maroons achieved an improved dual meet record of 9-4. Junior Rick Rundus grabbed the top spot by winning five races, including the Twin-City Meet. He also finished second in five races, including the District Meet and the Conference Meet. Hot on his heels came Captain Pat Carter in the second spot. Senior Bob Wolf set an example of courage and discipline by finishing fifth in the Twin City after a three-week bout with mononucleosis. The fourth and fifth man positions were shared by juniors Mike Trippiedi and Steve Revak. Rounding out the last three spots were junior Charlie Owens, sophomore Guy Wolf, and senior Bill Parkhill. The team won the Twin-City meet for the second straight year, and reported to the Conference Meet as underdogs. But they finished second in the meet, barely missing perennial champion, Mattoon. Two days later, Central won the District championship for the first time since 1961. A week later at the Sectional, the amazing Maroons placed second. This finish qualified Central for the first time since 1962. The harriers' inexperience finally caught up with them when they finished in twentieth place, out of twenty six teams. At the end of the season, Coach Stirrett lauded the team at the banquet. "With running," he said, "you can be happy with your performances but never satisfied. If you are satisfied, you might as well quit because there is nothing to prove to yourself. Although I've never been satisfied, this team has certainly made me the happiest in my four years of coaching."

A & B Volleyball Teams Finish 7-0 Seasons in Fourth Year

What sport at Central had the most success over the past two years? The seventeen members of the volleyball team were sure to come up with the right answer. They proudly pointed out that the A and B teams of Central volleyball had season records of 9-0 and 8-1 last year and records of 1-0 and 1-0 this year. These records reflect the steady progress of the volleyball program since its beginning four years ago.

Coach Susan Cattle attributed this success to the growing popularity of the sport which attracted between forty and fifty prospective players at tryouts. Only a talented minority made the team.

Despite a budget of less than one tenth the size of that given to the boys' sports program, volleyball, along with the other girls' sports, achieved great success.

The 1973-1974 swim team, winning all but two dual meets, had its best over-all record since 1967. Central's two defeats came early in the season, losing to Springfield and Bloomington. But the yardage the Maroons put in paid off, enabling them to win the last six dual meets of the season.

Coach Jeff Trigger put some of the distance swimmers through practices which added up to over 250 total miles.

Highlighted by 3rd place finishes at the Centennial and Kankakee invitational, the team went on to place 3rd in Conference and captured 2nd in the District meet.

Juniors Kirk Hartley and Kirk Wolfbarger won individual events at Conference, the 500 yard freestyle and the 100 yard breast stroke. Captain Dave Edmison, Sophomores Sandy Leach and Brad Thompson also made strong showings. Junior Steve Capes placed 2nd in the 100 yard butterfly in the Conference meet. IM Basketball, Volleyball Expand to Let 450 Play Ball

Several days a week from October to February, a boy or girl could be seen walking down the hall wearing a tee-shirt that might have read "Jan's Rejects," "The Flying Zambini Brothers", "Frug" or "CBS". These four and many others like them were involved in girls intramural volleyball and basketball and boys intramural basketball during the late fall and winter. These teams were formed by the students themselves and played Tuesday and Thursday nights.

The girls were organized by and Mrs. Miller, while boys basketball was formed and supervised by Mr. Gher. The teams also played games from the University of Illinois to the University of Chicago. Although the referees were questioned countless times about the bad calls and had a good time.

Girls Record First Season In Basketball With TV Report

"A late report says Champaign Central's basketball team won a four-overtime game with a last-second shot, 65-64. Bloomington failed to break Central's 4 game winning streak."

Does this sound like the state tournament? Actually it was televised coverage of the first extramural Girls' Basketball Team at Central. Becky Beach sank the winning shot during the toughest game of the season in front of an unexpectedly large and enthusiastic crowd in Combes Gym on February 13, 1974.

Coach Bette Theile was responsible for the team's selection and made a successful season with her A team. She was even satisfied with her winless B team.

The Girls' Basketball Team took its place with style in the girls' extramural sports program by adding an undefeated varsity season to the undefeated tennis and volleyball seasons.

District Meet 8th

"A wrestlers work is never done" could be a cliché for the Champaign Central wrestling team. From October to February, Monday through Friday, these young men went through sweating, grimacing, weightlifting, and work beyond belief. Unfortunately for the team, severe setbacks such as academic troubles, knee injuries and sore ribs to top wrestlers hurt the crew badly and dropped 2nd year Head Coach Dick Allan's grapplers to a 1-16 dual meet record for the season. Even though the dual meet record was much poorer than expected, Coach Allan like last year, got outside people involved with the team. Junior Cindy Gilles headed 14 members of the mat maids. These girls helped with scorekeeping and various other jobs as well as cheering on the team. The Parents Booster Club, its third year in existence, donated warm up robes to the wrestlers. These fans helped the team find a silver lining in an otherwise frustrating season for the Maroons.

JV's Rebuild As Barbercheck Goes Unbeaten

One of the most difficult coaching jobs at Central belonged to 2nd year J.V. coach Mr. Joe Burdeau. For him, every year is a rebuilding year because most of the J.V.'s would move up to the Varsity each year. Add to this another rebuilding job where injuries to the varsity exhausted the thin J.V. corps even more and the best the junior grapplers could come up with was a 2-8 record for the '73-'74 season.

There weren't many bright spots on the team, but one exception was Paul Barbercheck who went undefeated. Another exception was the large turnout of sophomores, which should ease Coach Burdeau's rebuilding job for next season.

Probably one of the most updated clubs was Jazz Band. They competed in such meets as Decatur and Eastern. On Saturday February 2, the Jazz Band packed up their instruments, including a 6 piece drum set, and took a 200 mile trip to Oak Lawn, Illinois. When they returned to Champaign, they brought with them a superior rating, and a 3 foot trophy. Central's 1973-74 Jazz Band was the first class "A" school in the 15 year history of the Oak Lawn Festival, to take first place, receiving a superior rating, best of class rating, and Best Festival rating. Three Central students were selected to participate in the "All State Band". Mary Coggins for her flute playing, Kent Shirley, alto saxophone; and Jeff Miller, drums.

While the jazz band did its practicing, Ross Johnston practiced his Original Comedy routine, which took him approximately 10 hours to write. Although not the only event he entered, it was his favorite, and earned him a first at the Eastern Illinois tournament plus several second place awards. The skit that he performed was about a television producer who went crazy over the assinine commercials that sponsored his program.

Another competitive updated club was Debate. This year's debate topic was "Resolve: That the federal government should guarantee a minimum annual income to each family." Many debaters welcomed their tournaments for the intellectual exercise or a free trip away from home and their parents.

After a declining 1972-73 season record, this squad reestablished themselves as a state power with a season that collected five first place trophies.

Afro American Club was typical as a non-competitive updated club. Their enlarged slate of activities included a trip to the Black Expo in Chicago, a parent appreciation dinner held in the cafeteria with a program afterward, and a Black Awareness Week complete with seminars.

Another updated club would certainly be Student Council. This year's Student Council sponsored the annual Homecoming dance, and Valentine dance. They also sponsored an "anti-Litter" campaign. During this campaign, the Student Council managed to clean up enough garbage to fill one whole show case. To correct the problem of no black members, the council invited the Afro-American Club to appoint 2 of their own members.

The above mentioned clubs were only a sampling of updated clubs available to students of Central.

Jazz Band Features Music From Australia In Concerts

Music from Australia was featured in this year's Jazz Band. Howie Smith, a former Central student, wrote a piece exclusively for the Central Jazz Band named "Ritual."

The band performed this new piece at the many contests and concerts they entered. The more important contests included firsts at Oaklawn, Eastern Illinois University, and Millikin University Jazz Festivals. Concerts included a Northern Illinois University concert along with Bill Chase, and the annual final concert, this year called "Jazz '74."

Success of this year's band could have been caused by the accomplished director, Richard Dunscomb. With a Masters Degree in Music Education, he was voted President-elect of the Illinois Chapter of the National Association of Jazz Educators. The combining efforts of student and director made this year's Jazz Band a winner.

Quiche Lorraine and Candy Canes Help French Club

"Quiche Lorraine, Coq au Vin, Viche sois" and Cherries Jubilee were just a few of the dishes at the French Club's supper last fall when fifteen of the members and the sponsor, Mrs. Sandor got together and fixed a French dinner at a member's house.

In November the French Club went to see a troupe of French actors perform Moliere's "The Miser" at the Krannert Center.

Candy canes were sold before Christmas vacation and because of the extra three days, they were sold after vacation too.

The 95 dollars cleared was put into a fund, and the money will be used taking the French club to a French restaurant in Chicago sometime in the spring.

Debate Squad Accumulates Eight Trophies Over Season

Dozens of well dressed young men and women flooded the halls armed with bulging boxes and grim, determined attitudes. They gave their opponents the once over, sized them up, then made with small talk. Yes, these were the debaters, ready to argue a point to the death.

After having debated throughout Illinois and Missouri, the Champaign Central High Debate Squad had accumulated a collection of 8 trophies.

As one debater laughingly remarked "the season extends from the end of October to who knows when!"

The topic for this year, with which they had so much success was "Resolved: That the U.S. should adopt a guaranteed annual income for each family unit."

Carey Fletcher, Joe Bannon, Mary Kaczowski, Mark Everette and Mike Huber were just a few of the debaters who helped the year end on a successful note.

I.E. Hits Winning Streak Throughout Ill. and Mo.

This year I. E. made a fresh start, with a new coach and a full schedule. Everybody wondered how they could miss? . . . and they didn't with a beautiful record.

The new Individual Events coach, Mr. Sarnowski, shaped up the I. E. team and got them prepared for a full schedule of meets. In these meets they competed against some of the largest schools in Illinois and Missouri.

Even with their busy program, they managed to make themselves useful around Central by giving demonstrations for English classes.

Many of the members brought home awards or trophies to make the year a satisfying one. In fact the entire I.E. squad qualified for the regionals.

Drama Club Hosts 10 Nearby Schools in Drama Fest

When the Drama Club met, heads got together and ideas started to form. Ideas of new publicity began to take shape, along with ways of elevating the theatrical department and improving the facilities that the school offered. It also gave an opportunity for actors and actresses to get together and exchange self-improvement techniques. This year Central hosted a drama festival which included Central and ten surrounding schools. They got together, performed and were judged, though it was not considered a contest.

The Drama Club put on Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" for the spring play. It had been quite a long while since a Drama club from Central had attempted any Shakespeare but this didn't seem to faze them much at all.

Ideas, talents, and experiences tossed around, shaped, and lived through made the Drama Club wiser if not wealthier.

The Afro-American Club began the year with a trip to Chicago for the Black Expo where the Jackson Five was one of the many highlights. Enthusiasm showed throughout the year as they hosted several activities including dances, bake sales, and an appreciation dinner for their parents.

The club, in keeping with the national theme "Helping America Understand", held three seminars during 4th & 5th hours, with guest speakers and a play written by one of Central's own students.

The year was finished off by the annual Black Ball in the spring which was attended by several local high schools.

The events were successful only because of the interest and effort of each club member throughout the year.

As few people know, the training of a secretary took a lot of time and concentration. Two clubs covered this training, Future Secretaries of America and Office Occupations. OO was part of CCE where future secretaries worked in offices half day, and went to school the other half. Most girls enrolled in OO were also in FSA.

FSA was part of the National Secretaries Association. Each month they had a meeting with a speaker, speaking on different secretarial fields.

Various field trips added to the excitement of being a Future Secretary. OO visited Carsons office building, and traveled to St. Louis to visit the Ralston Purina offices. FSA planned a trip to either Chicago or Indianapolis in the spring.

All through the year FSA and OO members sold candles, candy and had bake sales adding to their growing bank accounts, and interests.

Exchange C Hosts "Mait Holds Week Enjoys Picnic

Exchange Club Hosts "Maite", Holds Weekend, Enjoys Picnic

Whenever someone thought about Foreign Exchange, they thought of International Supper. However, International Supper wasn't all they did. Foreign Exchange had lots of fun times, such as the Foreign Exchange Weekend, picnics, and ice skating. Foreign Exchange also hosted most of the concession stands.

The main purpose of Foreign Exchange was to exchange students at Central for students from other countries. The Central students didn't have to know the language of the specific country they were going to, but it helped. According to Mary Frasca, president of Foreign Exchange, "It would be easier to know the language, but if you don't, you learn it really fast, because they don't speak anything else!"

Have you ever heard of collecting garbage as a hobby? Because of the litter problem, Student Council collected garbage from around school and displayed it in the Little Theatre showcase.

Out of 12,095 students in Central, 32 of them put out their time and energy every Tuesday night at 7:00 in room 209. There were fewer people in Student Council this year because of the confusion in sophomore elections.

The Student Council was for the student body. For instance they were trying to get an hour lunch period for everyone. They were a major part in Homecoming preparations. Also Student Council donated fifty dollars to YEA (Youth Employment Agency) and initiated a project for raising more money.

Since there were no black Student Council members on Student Council, Mr. Smith and the members thought it should represent the entire student body. They went to the Afro-American Club and asked them to elect three members to be part of Student Council. When asked if they intended to keep electing blacks Mr. Smith replied, "hopefully not, we hope they get involved on their own."

From 8:25 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. each day the students of Central went through a daily routine of brain-wracking and body exhausting torture, known as classes. Some were real experts at shortening the endless hours, from skilling classes to just sitting dreaming about the outside world and what could be done if the day was free.

This year not all the students felt that way. Rich Englehardt had fun helping preschoolers do gymnastics and Patty Schwerdt and Mike Karr enjoyed working together in Jewelry class, and Brad Davis hung on to an old tradition, catching forty winks behind the teacher's back.

English had a program made possible by a federal grant that enabled students to learn how to read better. Social Studies had a course for students who could not speak very much English, learn history. String pictures and geo-desic domes made classes less boring to students in the Math Department. EMH classes even touched on filling out Income Tax forms.

Non-required courses were also updated. Home Ec students got first hand experience in handling little tots by having a course where students went to a Day Care Center and helped take care of the kids. Industrial Arts became less segregated with the enrollment of five girls in drafting classes. The Science Department added a new lesson in Chemistry: Making peanut brittle. Kids in foreign language classes played games to liven up the hour. Even the library got into the act with $5,000 worth of new books and films.

Classes were the reason for school existing. Each class was in a particular department; each department had a chairman. While each department met with one another at meetings and institutes, they are more or less separated and segregated apart. Paper was the biggest requisitioned item in the English department, as opposed to chemicals from the sciences. Social Studies had a large department library of related books, and the Music Department had thousands of pieces of music.

Updated classes were not necessarily new classes. They had more in common with the modern type of life than the traditionally older, more conservative classes. Updated classes offered much to anyone interested in newer ways of doing traditional homework.

Updated Classes

More Books, More Teachers Stimulate More Students Into Updated Classes

Foreign Languages Play Games, Read Popular Books

↑ April Tucker, Scott Rafferty and Elaine Oldham use their skill in Spanish and Monopoly as they try to out buy and out sell each other.

→ Alfie Wilson and Lisa Miller use their acting experience in Mrs. Vanes's class for the Spanish Christmas play, "Cortez Conquers Mexico."

→→↑ Mrs. Sandor makes understanding French a little easier for Colleen Getz.

Popular Books

Throughout the rooms on the first floor a person could hear "Hola", "Guten tag", and "Bonjour", when translated means hello in three languages: Spanish, German, French. These three languages made up the Foreign language Department at Central.

These languages gave the student who participated in them experience in that particular language and some background information of the countries where the language was spoken.

All the language classes had their own club and honor society. To be a part of the honor society each student had to maintain an A average in that particular class.

When the students weren't reading magazines or studying, they enjoyed several games like Monopoly, Scrabble, and Battleship. Each game was played in the language of the class. With the combination of studying, reading, and playing different games, the people that took a foreign language had a full hour's work.

Social Studies Adds a New Bicultural History Class

The social studies department had the regular history with its field trips, psychology with its experiments, and sociology with its surveys and comparisons.

Contrasting with these classes was a new bicultural history class. The class was a combination of six different languages with tutors from the U. of I. helping in Thai, Spanish, and Mandarin Chinese. The state of Illinois sponsored the class by paying the teacher, Mr. Les Bowman, and the tutors.

Mr. Bowman explained how the class gave the students an opportunity to learn how our culture developed. The twenty-five members of the class came from Urbana, Central, and Centennial High Schools. Some of the students will return to their native countries after school's out.

This year's social studies classes helped the student learn about themselves, learn about others, and their environment.

Science Department Offers 8 Classes to 435 Students

↑ John Bergstrom and Fred Fliegel work on a physics project in independent study.

→ Dan McCulley removes one of the internal organs of "Francis," the biology dummy.

→→↑ Charlie Brown, David Foster and Joe Hardesty cut their homemade peanut brittle in chemistry.

→→ A look of disgust goes over the face of Barb Nelson, as she mixes her bubbly brew that will soon be peanut brittle.

435 Students

What do dissection, fission, and peanut brittle have in common? Science. For those who liked to dissect fish, frogs, worms and other animals, Biology was offered. For those who wanted to learn about fission and the laws of mans surroundings, a more complex science was offered, Physics.

For those who experimented and saw what elements and compounds were in even the simplest materials, chemistry was offered. One of the more fun experiments was making peanut brittle. The students used all of their knowledge about cooking and chemistry to whip up some pretty tasty peanut brittle for their class.

Besides these three, the other courses offered were Environmental Science, Microbiology, Anatomy, Physiology, Advanced Physics and Advanced Chemistry. With all these subjects, no wonder science was one of the most popular courses offered in the year 73-74.

If you were walking down the third floor hall last year you would have heard strange sounds coming from Miss Potter's Geometry class; "Gimmie a razor" "Who has the scissors?" and "Can I have the staple gun back now?". A mass suicide course? How to make two-dimensional? people out of three-dimensional? No, it was just thirty-two kids and teacher making a geo-desic dome out of cardboard. If you weren't careful you would have heard the same sounds this year, only this time little domes, not big domes were being built.

This year two new teachers, Mr. Jerry Hardesty, from Edison and Mrs. Marion Robinson, from Centennial joined the Mathematics department bringing new ideas like string pictures with them. There was no new equipment or new classes this year. One new class being thought over for next year is Math Topics, a course dealing with a lot of different courses put together.

Mathematics Department Gains New Teachers and New Ideas

d New Ideas

For those who liked to let their imaginations go, art courses were for them. There were 13 different courses offered such as pottery, jewelry, crafts, sculpture and printmaking, in which the students worked with their brains and their hands.

The classes displayed their jewelry, paintings, pottery and crafts in the showcases around school. The art classes not only improved the students' talents, but made a more attractive school.

13 Courses Offered to Students by Art Department

↑ ← ← ← Barb Bargh concentrates intensely on which space to paint next in art class.

↑ ← ← Jaci Tester gets all tied up in macramae class.

↑ ← As she holds her painting up, Terry Kelly finishes her tree in oil painting class.

← Mike Karr buffs a piece of jewelry that he made in Mr. Lindstrom's jewelry class.

↑ Chris Ferre puts the finishing touches on his early morning scene of a horse on a hill.

CCE was "A cooperative effort between the school and the business community to provide students with career-related training not available in traditional classroom situations."

On November 1st, the students in CCE took a field trip to St. Louis and they visited 12 different types of businesses. They also had picnics, breakfasts, and banquets.

Some of the students who were working in a garage or as carpenters bought their own tools. Sales work, office work, hostess, waitress, and orderly work were some of the jobs offered.

The students could receive up to one credit for every period of school they missed by working. Their credits could be reduced or taken away by not doing the work correctly or misbehaving. Before the students could go to work they had to have some classes on safety on the job and job training to be qualified.

The students in CCE had an advantage over the other students in school, because they got job training and . . . their own money.

Business Uses New Key Punch to Improve Training

"Hash Import profits up three percent; Doo Drops Inc. falling rapidly." These were just a few of the problems Mr. Horn's accounting classes faced when they played their computer games. Each team had its own company and competed with the other teams while dealing with real life problems of the stock market.

Accounting was only part of the scene. A new key punch was added making it possible for more students to work at one time. Two new teachers enlarged the teaching staff. As a Southern Illinois University graduate, Miss Susan Krone came to Central for her first year of full-time teaching. Mrs. Kathy Arnold, also new, taught in this area before. Besides new teachers, two courses were revived.

According to Miss Dorothy Munger, head of the department, "The courses offered by this department can benefit every student, business major or college-bound."

Industrial Arts Adopts Equipment Replacement Plan

Central's Industrial Arts Department got a financial boost this year. As the result of a new system whereby equipment may be replaced upon request after five years of use, the industrial arts classes became more modern and efficient. Among the new equipment were lathes in the metal shop, and offset press in the print shop, and a tire balancer in auto shop.

This year's Project House was again supervised by Mr. Robert Pittman. The blueprint came from a Centennial student but eleven of Central's students worked on the tri-level house in Brookshire.

Although the fuel crisis was a threat to the department, only transportation was affected. With the exception of the bus to the Project House, all field trips had to be discontinued this year.

Besides feeling the effect of the fuel shortage, the department also felt the impact of Women's Liberation in the form of rising female interest in industrial arts. Five girls enrolled in drafting classes; the highest number ever at Central.

OE and EMH Students Show Creativity in Their Work

EMH students welcomed a new teacher. Miss Leslie Kuflick joined the staff bringing with her new ideas to make learning interesting and fun. Students worked with W-2 forms and Income Tax Returns, newspaper ads, wages, and even made picket signs to help in the study of unions.

Each student was taught how to use subjects such as Math and History outside of the classroom. Each person in OE learned how to take facts in a given situation, weigh them carefully, and make a good judgement for the situation.

Many of the students worked half day in cooperation with the CCE program. This helped them get on-the-job training for the future and get a little extra spending money besides.

Current Issues

Health classes were one thing that all juniors and seniors had in common. Projects completed during the six week course reflected the problems of 1974. Units covering such current issues as drugs, the ecology and the population explosion were studied as well as older issues such as alcohol, sex, and consumer health.

Safety was a class required for sophomores as part of a combined classroom—behind the wheel program. Every sophomore had to pass Safety before they could enroll in Drivers' Ed. Students learned about rules of the road, law enforcement, defensive driving and the uniform vehicle code.

Lower insurance rates and free driving lessons were enough motivation for most students to want Drivers' Ed but with 240 students enrolled and only 2 cars to use, the traditional hassle of who could enroll in the class first arose again. The energy crisis had no apparent affect on the 1973-74 program except that students held down their driving speed to 55.

Independent Study Widens Chances for Students

Contrary to popular belief, independent study was not an easy way out of class work. Mr. Allen Smith, teacher of this course, described it as a chance for a student to work in some area of education that he was unable to take otherwise. It may have ranged from chemistry to art or even taxidermy, to name a few.

Because of the wide variety in independent study, other teachers were willing to give of their time to help the students in special areas. Teachers such as Mrs. Nast, the German teacher, and Mr. Milburn Smith, the Art teacher, were greatly appreciated for all of their assistance.

The class consisted of about twelve students, each working on the goal which he or she set up at the beginning of the year. Among them was a static electricity machine that John Bergstrom and Fred Fliegel worked on. The students put in many hours after school and on weekends.

'74 Maroon Proffers Capsule Analysis of Central

The yearbook staff would like to extend best wishes for a happy future to all who read this book. In ten years it will be hauled down from the upper shelves of a closet, and children and teens of the next generation will laugh at the funny styles and fads of the struggling seventies.

The book consumed many hours, many grudgingly, and only this, the finished product, will prove whether or not they were worth it. Many people will like the book. To them is offered a polite bow of thanks. Just as many others will dislike the book. To them is offered condolences and a muttered, "Who cares what they think anyway!"

Each division of the book was made, not because it was thought that one club, sport, or class was older or newer than another, but because it seemed to fit best there.

The Maroon doesn't try to interpret the happenings of the school year of 1973-1974, only to put them forward for examination. The book is not dedicated to any one person or idea, but to the entire school. For anyone who had anything to do with Champaign Central High during this school year, here is the '74 Maroon.
